New Franchise is Delayed by Rouyn

Northern Telephone Franchise is Approved by Noranda but Rouyn Council Holds it up.

At a recent meeting of the Noranda town council by unanimous vote the application of the Northern Telephone Co., Ltd., was granted for a five-year franchise in consideration of the company this year changing its system at Noranda and Rouyn to the common battery system, similar to that in use in Timmins. At present the magneto system, requiring customers to "ring in" to central is the type of system serving the Rouyn camp.

The Northern Telephone Co. applied to both Noranda and Rouyn for a franchise for five years, proposing an expenditure of $40,000 in connection with the changing-over to the new system. Supt. Fred Thompson appeared before the Noranda council to give any explanations or answer any questions, but the Noranda council saw the value of the proposal at once and the reasonableness of a franchise for five years to protect as large an expenditure as needed for the change. The members of Noranda council felt that the $100 a year extra rental charge was not excessive for the improved service. It was a small amount to telephone users but would be a reasonable assistance in the aggregate to the telephone company in providing the improved service.

At Rouyn, however, the attitude of the town council was not so agreeable. The council was not prepared to deal with the matter at the meeting, though Mr. Thompson was present and pointed out that he had made several trips to Rouyn in the matter and as these cost money it was not quite fair to the company. Rouyn had asked for the new system and now when the company was offering it there was delay. About the only objection the council seemed to have against the company was that the company's office had been moved to Noranda and the town of Rouyn thus lost $400 per year in taxes, according to one alderman. Mr. Thompson replied that if two exchanges had to be maintained it would need a 10-cent toll for conversation between the two and this would scarcely be of advantage to Rouyn. He reminded the council that out of 17 employees of the company 14 had their homes in Rouyn. After some cross-firing, Mr. Thompson said that Noranda had used the company fairly and it would be necessary now to proceed with the change to the new system at Noranda, and if Rouyn wished to remain on the magneto system the town should notify the company to that effect.

Rouyn council eventually decided to discuss the question with the Chamber of Commerce and the Retail Merchants' Association and learn the views of these bodies. It was also suggested that the council meet again this week to give decisions on the matter.

King Talks with Minister Regarding Unemployment

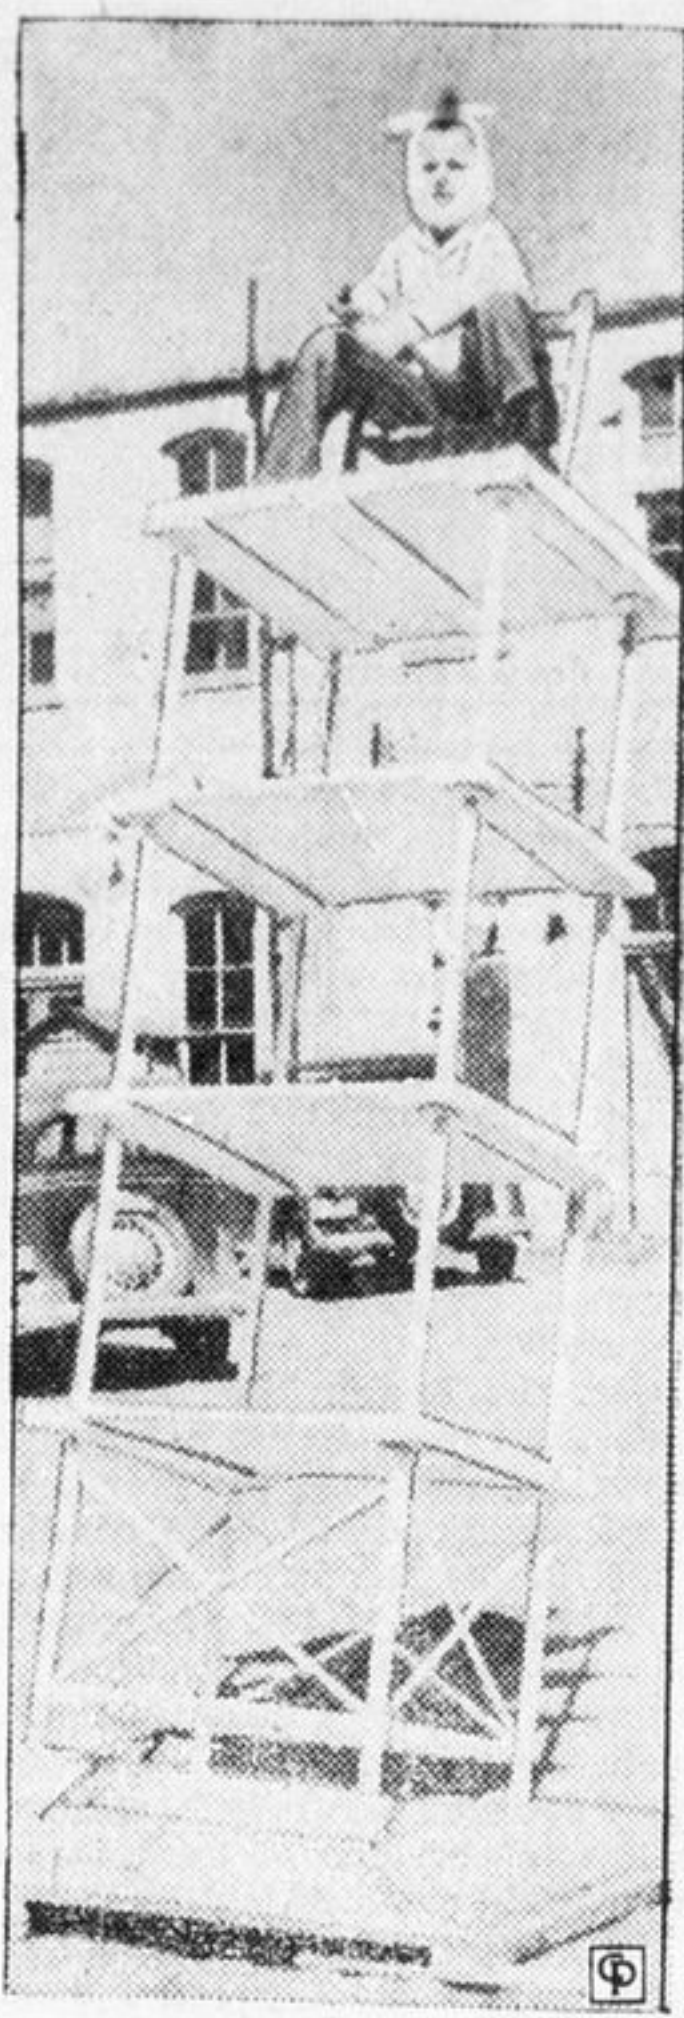

(Sault Ste. Marie Star)

Over in London they are commenting on the fact that King Edward recently called into consultation Ernest Brown, Minister of Labour, and talked with him for about an hour on the question of unemployment.

The King's deep interest in social and economic problems is well known and his elevation to the throne has not lessened his interest, as was shown by his comment on the contrast between the splendor of the Queen Mary and the squalor of the Glasgow slums.

King Edward will not overstep the bounds of constitutional decorum but it is evident that his influence, a very potent one, will be directed toward encouraging a determined effort to tackle the problem of unemployment and other similar problems.

Rev. M. Tait Makes Plea for 'Open Mind'

Address to Kiwanis Club on Monday Much Appreciated.

Voicing a plea for the "open mind," Rev. Murray Tait of Trinity United Church, Schumacher, brought an Easter message to the Timmins Kiwanis Club on Monday. The whole picture of Easter, as painted by the words of the Gospel, brought forcibly to the whole world the same message, he said. "Father forgive them, for they know not what they do," were Christ's words when he spoke to those who had closed minds, the people who crucified him.

An open mind is a necessity in all walks of life, Rev. Mr. Tait went on; in medicine, in law, and in business, those who would not be left behind must take the good from new developments. He stressed also the desirability of long-sightedness in life, looking ahead to see where actions in life are leading. "Don't go down the blind street," he said. "Take the through street."

Easter, he told the Kiwanians, is a pagan word, but the symbol of the holy season to the world of today is the open grave, from which Christ rose again to life. A sense of the spiritual benefits of life should be cultivated by all, he said in conclusion.

Rev. Bruce Millar introduced the speaker and Dr. S. L. Honey tendered the thanks of the club to their guest.

Tom Glaister, chairman of the sports committee, reported on the completing of arrangements for the spring bridge tournament of the club.

Visitors at the club meeting on Monday were Len Hill and W. Leckley of New Liskeard, and G. F. McKenzie of Toronto.

Lad Who Had Other Boy's Wheel Placed on Probation

A 13-year-old lad was put on probation for three months to A. G. Carson, superintendent of the Cochrane Children's Aid Society in juvenile court on Tuesday. Charged with having "retained in his possession a bicycle known by him to be stolen," the youngster maintained his innocence, claiming that the wheels were his and he had "found" the frame in a laneway last year.

The lad who owned the frame identified it and thought the rear wheel was his property too. The magistrate gave instructions that only the front wheel of the "bike" should be retained by the accused.

The boy whose bicycle was stolen last fall had taken the number of the frame and was able to identify it positively that way.

Timmins Golfers to Hold Annual Shortly

No Definite Date Set Yet but Expected Within Few Weeks.

Now that the worst of the snow has disappeared from the links, Timmins golfers are looking forward to a new season of the old Scottish game. No date has been set yet for the annual meeting of the club, though it is expected it will be held within the next few weeks.

Last year was one of the best in the history of the local club, with improvements not only on the links but to the clubhouse where accommodation was greatly improved.

The road to the clubhouse is not yet open but as soon as that is in good shape and the clubhouse itself ready, the annual will be called.

Hundred Injured During Parade in Dublin, Ireland

According to despatches from Dublin, Ireland, this week about one hundred people were injured in hand-to-hand fighting when crowds repeatedly attacked a procession of Communists and delegates of the Irish Republican Army on the march to Glasnevin cemetery.

The paraders were observing the 20th anniversary of the famous "Easter rebellion." They were en route to the graves of the rebel leaders in Glasnevin when throngs fell upon them with stones, sticks and lengths of rubber hose.

Upwards of 100 were injured. Police charged repeatedly, laying about them with their batons. Many women and children were trodden upon.

The crowd first attacked as the procession started from the centre of the city. Demonstrators, attempting to snatch the red ribbons worn by the Communists, shouted:

"We do not want Red homage to our dead!"

At the general post office, headquarters of the insurgents in 1916, the parade was broken up completely. Police charged in and threw a cordon about the paraders.

The mobs then marched on the cemetery and rushed the gates. Police drove them off with their truncheons. Many were carried off to first-aid dressing stations.

William Gallacher, Communist Scot and member of parliament for West Fife, narrowly escaped serious injury in a hail of stones.

COMEBACK OF EX-BOSS CALLES OF MEXICO ENDS ABRUPTLY

The jumbled wreckage of the locomotive, express car, mail car and two wooden passenger coaches, in which 40 passengers and 10 employees were killed near Paso Del Macho, Mexico, when the train, crossing a bridge, was derailed. These cars fell into the ravine 40 feet below. Responsibility for the bombing was placed on General Plutarco Calles, once "boss" of Mexico, by the Mexican chamber of deputies. Calles, former Mexican president, was banished to the United States, and is seen above as he landed at Brownsville, Texas.

Air Family Affair
The magistrate tried to settle peacefully a family discussion in which a mother asked $40 a month for her support from her four sons. Two unmarried boys were willing to give their $10 a month; one married son would pay $5 while the other son, contemplating marriage, would give $5. There is still another child, a daughter, about 16 years old who lives with the mother. She is able to keep herself, it was stated, with what money she earned. The crown insisted that $10 a week from each of the sons was not too much to expect, while the defence pointed out that either of the sons who offered $5 a month were willing to keep the mother at their homes.

"I'm not trying to dictate," said his worship. "I just don't like to see members of a family in court giving evidence against one another. It leaves a bitter feeling."

The case was left for a week and in the meantime the family is expected to settle the matter out of court.
