Lady Controller Made Use of Railway Slogan

Controller Nora Henderson, of Hamilton, was a speaker this week at a meeting of the Board of Trade Club in Toronto and showed that she was effective with wit and ready with apt retort. She noted that she had been engaged to speak some time ago at the Toronto Board of Trade Club meeting, but had to cancel that meeting on account of the fact that her time was fully taken up as a candidate in the Federal election campaign. Later, arrangements were again made for her visit to Toronto, but these were cancelled when the club was able to secure Sir Edward Beatty as the guest speaker.

"I didn't mind postponing my visit to you in the slightest," she laughed, "because I have always believed in the now-familiar phrase, 'Co-operation ever.'"

The chairman reminded her that Sir Edward was still a bachelor.

"Then," she smiled, "I must add, 'amalgamation never.'"

MINER HEARS WORDS OF GRATITUDE

"You men are wonderful," said Mrs. Herman Magill as she turned to the rescue workers digging frantically to extricate her husband, H. R. Magill, Toronto, and Dr. D. E. Robertson and Alfred Scadding, after contact with the entombed men had been made through a diamond drill. The Toronto trio were reported alive and well; later the rescue workers were shocked when the news of Magill's death was shouted up the narrow tube and the mine was reported flooding. Mrs. Magill can be seen as she talks with a begrimed worker at the shaft-head.

Distinctive Concert by Schmerling Duo

Sidney Schmerling, Concert Violinist, Chicago, Delights Audience. Was Aided by Miss A. Schmerling.

It was a delighted audience that heard on Tuesday evening at the Croatian hall in Schumacher a concert given by Sidney and Anne Schmerling, violinist and pianist. Although it was a "family affair," that did not detract in any way from the high musical standard maintained. Mr. Schmerling, who has been doing symphony work in Chicago recently, has been visiting his parents in Schumacher before going to Europe. Miss Schmerling, a talented young pianist, lives with her parents. She not only played a fine accompaniment for her brother, but her two groups of piano solos made a pleasing part of the brief programme.

The opening selection, Mendelssohn's violin concerto in E minor, with its four movements, brought to the audience full realization of the violinist's ability. The very quick arpeggio-like parts, difficult of execution, were very well done. Through the whole long concerto, the artist maintained the feeling of the great composer's work and kept the melody strain prominent.

Pleasing Piano Group

Miss Schmerling's first group was of three selections: Mozzyowski's "Caprice Espagnol," Scarlatti's "Pastorale," and Mendelssohn's familiar "Spinning Song." The three made a good group, for the first carried an unusual harmony, the second a smoother melody, and the third more staccato notes with a more pronounced rhythm. The pianist's knowledge of music was evident and her interpretation full, though not over-accented.

The violinist returned with four selections that were so widely diversified that everyone in the audience must have heard at least one that appealed particularly. The first, "On the Wings of Love" (Mendelssohn-Achorn) produced broad, sweet melody from the lower register. "Hora Staccato," (Dini-cu-Heifetz) was almost syncopated throughout. "Impromptu," (Schubert-Heifetz) was a return to more prominent melody while "Perpetuum Mobile" (Novacek) was an unusually quick, rhythmic number.

Mendelssohn's complex "Scherzo in E minor" was the opening selection of Miss Schmerling's second group of solos. She combined two of Chopin's more sentimental works, "Prelude in A major" and "Waltz in B minor," as the second part. Liszt's "Hungarian Rhapsody No. 13" concluded the group and was one of the best piano numbers of the evening.

Audience Insists on Encore

"Gypsy Airs," (Sarasate) was to have been the final violin selection, but this so pleased the audience that they refused to let the brother and sister leave the stage without an encore. They remained to play what was obviously a favourite in the family, "Elli Elli," transcribed by Elman. It was a brilliant conclusion to an evening of fine entertainment.

The concert was sponsored by the Schumacher Lions Club and although the attendance was not as large as might well have been expected, the club will undoubtedly be encouraged to bring more such events to the Porcupine.

NEW TYPE OF BICYCLE NOW PROVING VERY POPULAR

(Marketing)

An avalanche of orders for a new type of scooter type bicycle with rear wheel off-centre so that propulsion is given by a swaying movement of the body on the teeter board between wheels thus going away with pedals and chain gear, has encouraged the manufacturer to prepare for a summer fad equal in extent to the midge foot craze that swept the country a few years ago. Movie stars have popularized the idea and sales are being made largely to rental agencies catering to fun-loving adults.

Judgment in Favour of Dr. Omer Hague

Court at Winnipeg Directs Payment of Three Months Salary.

In a recent issue reference was made to the action brought by Dr. Omer G. Hague, formerly of Timmins, against a Winnipeg hospital, for salary he claimed was due him on account of dismissal without due notice or reasonable cause. His many friends in the Porcupine district will be interested to note that judgment was given in his favour this week to the extent of three months' further salary. A despatch in the Toronto Mail and Empire yesterday reports the judgment as follows:—

Ruling that a physician has the right to express an opinion on scientific facts, Justice T. Dennistoun in Manitoba Court of King's Bench directed St. Boniface Hospital to pay three months' additional salary to Dr. Omer G. Hague, Radiologist at the institution. Dr. Hague was given a month's salary and dismissed from his post last November for expressing an opinion on "mercy deaths." His claim for a year's salary was only partly allowed in the judgment announced.

There was no evidence to show that Dr. Hague was bound by any moral code to refrain from expressing his opinion, Justice Dennistoun ruled. A professional man, he added, has a right to express himself on scientific facts.

At the time of his dismissal the right of the physician to take the life of a person suffering from an incurable disease received general discussion in Great Britain.

Approached for his opinion, Dr. Hague was quoted as saying: "You have only to take a look at the congenial department of any hospital to realize a great many of the inmates would be better out of the world."

Asked if he thought most doctors favour legalized euthanasia, Dr. Hague replied: "Fundamentally—in their own minds—I think they would."

TAILOR: "When your father sent you for samples of cloth didn't he say what colour and material he wanted?"

SMALL BOY: "I don't think it matters, sir. He wants them for pen-wipers."—Trib-Bits.
