Couldn't Stand the Jar
So Invented Rubber Heels
(From "Business")
About 25 years ago a certain young man had a job in a factory where heavy machinery jarred the whole building. The young man was not very robust, and he did not like the jar of
the machinery.
One day he brought a rubber mat to the factory, and stood on it. At once he found relief. The jar did not annoy him when he stood on the mat. After several days, somebody stole his mat. So he got two pieces of rubber and nailed them on his heels. This idea gave him two little rubber mats that nobody could steal.
The name of the young man was O'Sullivan. He was the original inventor of rubber heels, and to-day his firm is one of the largest manufacturers of rubber heels in the world.

Attempted Robbery Case Dismissed on Tuesday

Revolver Used Said to have Been a Toy One. Magistrate Warns Against Similar Foolish Tricks. Conviction in Drunk Case, but Dismissal of Charge of Supplying to Said Drunk. Other Court Cases.

A charge of an attempt at armed robbery in a local hotel brought spectators at Tuesday's police court up with a start. A revolver, 'twas said, had been flourished before a Timmins citizen and a demand made for money. Alex Lefebvre took the witness stand. Last Thursday night he was in a hotel when one Sam Thompson came along and asked him for money. "I told him I hadn't any," said the witness. "He pulled out a revolver and 'showed' it to me and I put my hand on it."
"What do you mean you put your hand on it?" asked Crown Attorney S. A. Caldbick.
"I pushed it away."
"Did the man say anything?"
"No."
"After you pushed the revolver away, what did he do?"
"He put it in his pocket and went away."
"Was there anyone else there?"
"There was another fellow about ten feet away."
This, Magistrate Atkinson said, seemed a strange performance.
"Your worship," A. C. Brown, defence counsel, explained, "it was only a toy gun. It didn't even have a trigger on it."
"Don't make a fool of yourself any more," the magistrate said to Thompson. "Dismissed."
Two Hours To Convict Drunk
The big case of the day appeared on the surface to be the trial of a drunk. Victor Aho was arrested in the International hotel on March 31st and was charged with being drunk. The hearing, twice adjourned, occupied nearly two solid hours. In the end Aho paid a $10 and costs fine. During those two hours some harsh words were spoken on all sides. It was an important case, since on it the charge against A. H. Munro, International hotel beverage room waiter charged with supplying liquor to an intoxicated person appeared to depend. As it turned out, the court decided that the evidence was insufficient to show that Aho had conducted himself in the beverage room in such a manner that Munro would know he was drunk.
Chief of Police R. Paul was the first witness for the prosecution. He had arrested Aho in the beverage room between 11 and 12 o'clock, he said, after having seen the man outside on the street staggering and falling down on the sidewalk. He and Deputy Chief Salley had been in the patrol car at the time when they first saw Aho but had been unable to get out of the deep ruts on Cedar street. They had driven to the corner of Third, turned around and when they arrived back at the International, Aho had disappeared. After a search, they found him seated at a table in the hotel and promptly arrested both him and the waiter.
"Was he drunk?" asked Mr. Caldbick.
"In my estimation he was drunk."
"How did you arrive at that conclusion?"
"By his speech, actions, mode of walking and the smell of his breath."
"What did his breath smell of?"
"Alcohol."
Suffered From Leg Injury
Dean Kester took up the questioning. "Did you find out later that he was suffering from a broken leg or something of that sort?"
"I did not know then, but I found out later."
Both men had been placed in the cells shortly after the arrests.
"When was it Munro asked you to call a doctor?"
"Munro did not ask me to call a doctor."
"Who suggested that a doctor examine Aho?"
"No one. There was a doctor brought in."
Dr. Matheson had done the examining of Aho but had left Timmins for Kingston shortly afterwards. Although summoned to appear in Timmins court yesterday, he did not. The chief of police at Kingston advised that he had left on a motor trip a few days before the summons arrived in that city. Deputy Chief Salley had been with the chief. He corroborated his superior's evidence. "He was intoxicated," Mr. Salley replied to a question from the crown attorney.
"What time did you arrest him?" asked Mr. Kester.
"At 11:05."
"What time was the doctor called?"
"About an hour and a half later."
"Who was it asked for the doctor?"
"I don't know."
"Did Munro ask you?"
"Munro came here and said there was a doctor on the way."
"Did either Munro or Aho ask you for a doctor to examine Aho?"
"No."
"Who admitted him to bail?"
"I don't know. I have no record of that."
Crown Criticizes Counsel
Mr. Caldbick interrupted at this point. "Why all these insinuations—this getting the 'truth' out by torture—it's a ridiculous procedure. I think." "Of all the evasions I've ever heard, this is the best," replied Mr. Kester. The arrest sheet was produced and

Kiwanis Club Ready to Help Crippled Children

Clinic to be Held in Timmins on May 18th. If You Know of a Crippled Child Here Get in Touch with J. R. Walker or P. T. Moiseley. Modern Surgery Does Wonders for Crippled Children.

Here's a call for help every man, woman and child in the Porcupine can help to answer: the Kiwanis Club wants to get in touch with every needy crippled child in the vicinity of the town. They don't want to know who the crippled kiddies are and where they live just for the sake of statistics; they are preparing to help every one they possibly can.
Eight out of ten children can be cured or at least have their condition greatly improved through modern medical knowledge and expert surgery. Now the Kiwanis Club of Timmins, in co-operation with the Ontario Society for Crippled Children, is setting out to bring Canada's best medical skill to the crippled and malformed children.
In Timmins there are still many parents who do not realize how much can be done for their children. Others do know, but cannot afford the cost of proper care. It is to these the Kiwanis appeal is particularly directed. The club has always shown a great interest in children's work and in this latest effort they should succeed in brightening the lives of a good many youngsters.
Make Reports Now
Anyone who knows of a needy crippled child should get in touch with J. R. Walker or P. T. Moiseley of Timmins, so that the club may make arrangements to have the child at a special clinic to be held here on May 18th. The Kiwanis and the Society have made arrangements to have a surgeon from the Sick Children's hospital at Toronto in attendance. On that day examination only will be made of the cases. Recommendations of the surgeon will be forwarded by that surgeon to the family physician, without whose authority no work will be undertaken.

New Board Elected for Kirkland Property Now

According to despatches from Toronto, a meeting of Bigdoo Kirkland Lake Gold Mines, Limited resulted at Toronto on Monday in the election of the board headed by A. L. Herbert and O. L. Knutson. The meeting at Toronto follows one at Kirkland Lake April 11, when three scrutineers were appointed to scan the votes and report.
F. G. Gardiner and H. E. Coza, two of the scrutineers, returned a majority report which was accepted and the Herbert-Knutson board declared elected by Chairman F. J. MacBrian. Sam Taylor, the third scrutineer, dissented.
The group headed by Dr. R. J. Neelands lost out at the meeting when 1,167,174 votes, used by proxy at the Kirkland Lake meeting, were declared invalid.
Option to obtain 30,000 treasury shares each at five cents a share was awarded Mr. Herbert and N. H. Byrne, when Monday's meeting concluded.

Cochrane Looks for Norembega Highway

Promised as Part of Pro- jected Route from Mon- treal to Hearst.

A despatch this week from Cochrane says that Cochrane district expects to get a share of the work programme for the north to which the Dominion is being asked to contribute.
J. A. Habel, M.L.A., intimated last week that the construction of the highway from Norembega to Reine, on the Quebec boundary, is included in the programme submitted to the Dominion Government. This proposed road will extend about 56 miles and is at present being surveyed by the Northern Development Department. When and if completed, and with the Montreal-Senneterre highway expected to be completed this year, there will be a direct route from Montreal and Quebec to Hearst.
Hon. P. Heenan advised the Board of Trade some months ago that the programme would include the construction of a loop road from Schreiber to Hearst, as approved at the meeting of all parties in North Bay some years ago. There has been no intimation of any change of plan and should the Dominion Government agree to split the cost with the Ontario Government, these projects will no doubt be carried out.
Mr. Habel also stated that the work of filling the approaches to the Opasatika River bridge between Kapuskasing and Hearst, would be done this summer, as previously announced by Mr. Heenan.

Sudden Death at Val D'Or of Pioneer of Cobalt Camp

News of the sudden death in Val d'Or, in the Quebec mining area, of Walter Gillard, former resident of Cobalt, was received this week at Cobalt. Mr. Gillard succumbed to a heart attack on Saturday, it was stated. His son, Walter, Jr., of Toronto, has gone to Val d'Or to make arrangements for his father's funeral, which is expected to take place in Toronto. Mr. Gillard, an Englishman by birth, had lived in Canada for many years. In the earlier days of Cobalt he was employed at the Buffalo mine and on his return from the World War, in which he served with the Canadian Expeditionary Force, he was with the Mining Corporation of Canada both at Cobalt and at the Ashley property of that company in Matachewan. Besides his son, he is survived by his widow and a daughter, Mrs. J. Garlepy, who lives in Quebec.

Chochrane Man Now Facing Sentence Next Monday

Appeal Court Dismisses Appeal of Harry O'Donnell

A despatch from Toronto this week says that unless the minister of justice commutes the death sentence of one of life imprisonment, Harry O'Donnell, convicted murderer of 20-year-old Ruth Taylor last November at Toronto, will die on the gallows, May 5. The Appeal Court yesterday, by unanimous decision of the five judges, dismissed the appeal against the conviction and the plea for a new trial. Chief Justice Mulock announced the court's decision before a crowded courtroom at Osgoode Hall.
O'Donnell showed no sign of emotion when the decision was announced. His counsel said he would wait upon the Hon. Ernest Lapointe at Ottawa and seek commutation of the sentence. News of the decision was broken to O'Donnell in the death cell. He had nothing to say to counsel or guards. It did not appear as though the news came as a shock to him.
The Appeal Court, in its judgment, dealt with the various contentions advanced by the defence. The two grounds on which the appeal was based were that the conviction was against the weight of evidence and that there was no evidence on which the jury could convict. Both grounds were found to be baseless.
"There was ample evidence to justify the verdict," said Mr. Justice Masten. "I am wholly unable to see how, on well established principles, we can allow the appeal," says Mr. Justice Rid-dell.
"A stronger case of circumstantial evidence it would be hard to imagine," declared Mr. Justice Middleton.
Chief Justice Latchford concurred in the reasons given.
