

NEW YORK TO NOME BY CANOE

Lumbering and Mining Helping Recovery Here

The monthly letter of the Bank of Nova Scotia says—
 "Stimulated by a busy mining industry and some increase in lumbering operations, general conditions in Northern Ontario have shown further improvement. The trend of gold production continues upward and output of copper and nickel has been stepped up in response to a growing export demand. The price of copper has advanced steadily in recent months, and in March was 29 per cent. higher than in March, 1935. The cut of lumber unlike that of Quebec was somewhat larger this winter than last.
 "Construction throughout the province was smaller during the past quarter than during the first quarter of 1935; contracts awarded were $13,500,000 and $18,640,000 respectively. A sharp reduction in relief highway work was mainly responsible for the decrease.
 The rigorous winter handicapped retail trade by blocking highways and the late spring has retarded purchases of seasonal merchandise. Nevertheless, retail sales were slightly larger than in the early months of 1935 and with the advent of warmer weather a marked upturn is anticipated."

Calgary Man Thought to Have Record in the Army

Corporal George (Paddy) Moore, staff clerk, has served 42 years in the British army under four sovereigns and believes he will have a service record when he retires next year.
 Last January he celebrated the 21st anniversary of his enlistment with the Canadian army which he joined in the early days of the war. Prior to that he had served 21 years in the Imperial army.

He first became a "soldier of the Queen" in 1893 when he joined the Royal Dublin Fusiliers with headquarters at Nass, Ireland. He remained with the regiment, now disbanded, for the full period of his Imperial army service, serving five years in India, six in South Africa including the full length of the South African War, and briefer periods in Egypt and Malta before completing his time at the regimental depot in Ireland.
 Receiving an honourable discharge in February, 1914, he emigrated to Canada with his family but the outbreak of the war found him joining the 26th Battalion at Hamilton, Ont., in January, 1915. He served in France with the First Canadian Infantry Battalion, C.E.F., and returned to Canada in 1919. Then Corporal Moore transferred to the corps of militia staff clerks, Canadian permanent force, and has remained in Canada since.

Barrie Examiner:—After outlining the sessional indemnities paid to members of the Ontario Legislature, which are $2000 or $250 a week, or again $50 a day, The Stratford Beacon-Herald adds, "The Legislature could do with fewer members, and at lower salaries." And the Beacon-Herald might have added that while they are drawing their $2000 per session these legislators might devote the necessary time to disposing of the business property instead of staging such a mad scramble to wind up the session before a certain time, frequently placing upon the statute books laws that have been inadequately considered.

Denies that Relief Not Given in North

Hon. D. Croll Claims Story Coming from Haileybury is Misleading.

Elsewhere in this issue will be found a report from Haileybury referring to a family from Hilliard township who claimed they had been refused relief and were in danger of starvation. Word from Toronto says that Hon. David Croll calls the report "misleading." Referring to the Carleton family, Milton Carleton being the head of the family, Hon. Mr. Croll enters a lengthy explanation.
 "The case has been receiving attention from the relief branch since last June," Mr. Croll stated. "At that time, Carleton complained he had been unable to obtain relief from the township. The department immediately instituted an investigation and found the difficulty was one of residence. The family had moved to Hilliard Township shortly before and so did not qualify for relief from Hilliard Township under the one-year residence regulation."
 "The department inspector granted relief immediately to prevent any possibility of hardship, and as usual charged the cost back to the municipality in which the family formerly resided. Subsequently, various officials of the Welfare Department kept in touch with the Carleton case, and supplied clothes last summer to the value of $62.18. They also appealed to the Red Cross for assistance in improving the house in which the family lived.
 "It is apparent our officials took a personal interest in the welfare of the family, an interest even beyond that required by their jobs. They seem to have gone out of their way in their efforts to solve problems for Carleton."
 "After further investigation, the relief administrator for the district decided there is no prospect of the Carletons ever making a go of it on the land they occupy at present. There is fully three feet of solid moss, not earth or black muck, on that land," the investigator reported in November, "and it would not even grow potatoes, let alone anything else."
 "The head office of the department advised that arrangements be made to have the family moved to more productive land where there would be some prospect of it becoming self-supporting. By December the district administrator had started arrangements, but severe weather prevented immediate action.
 "This spring, arrangements were resumed in March, and the administrator reported Hilliard Township would pay the cost of moving the family, while a suitable home was being provided through the efforts of the Crown timber agent.
 "It was at this point we struck a snag," said Mr. Croll. "The snag was no other than Carleton himself. He refused to move. Hilliard Township decided this was a case where a man preferred to live on unproductive ground and let the relief office look after his family's needs. With some justification they notified him he would be refused further relief after Tuesday, May 5. But our men were on the job to see no snoring ensued.
 "At the time the alleged interview took place, Carleton was still on relief. He had not been forced to sustain his family on rabbits and potatoes for two weeks, nor were the children in danger of starving. They were still living on food provided by the township relief office.
 "Our investigators are at the scene and will attempt to induce Carleton to let us assist his family."

Says Americans Live Like the Grasshoppers To-day

Lorado Taft, of Chicago, well-known sculptor, interrupted work on a miniature art gallery for the schools of the nation on his 76th birthday to comment:
 "Most Americans live like grasshoppers, without thought either for the future or the past.
 "In Europe everything speaks of a past age. But we Americans have forgotten our forebears. We are so concerned with the present that we neither cherish the past nor look to the future, culturally speaking.
 "There is hardly a school child in America who ever is privileged to see even reproductions of the masterpieces of ancient art."
 Mine Rescue Men Praise Work of Salvation Army
 Jack Simpson and George Morrell, Stellarton Draggermen, in company with Norman Sommerville, K.C., chairman of the national council of the Canadian Red Cross Society at Toronto on Monday, visited a large gathering in the Salvation Army Temple, to thank the Army for its services to the rescue workers at Moose River mine. George Morrell, whose brother was trained for officership in the Salvation Army Training College in Toronto, said that the Army's coffee distributed to the rescue workers at the mine was the only good coffee available there and, with Mr. Simpson, said that no words could express their gratitude for the oranges, chocolate bars and other foods liberally distributed.

 "The service was held at 2.30 o'clock at St. John's Lutheran Church, and Rev. Leo J. Ebinger, the pastor, officiated.

Trout Eludes Duck, but Passerby Gets the Both

From Glencoe, Maryland, and not by "Believe It or Not," but by the ordinary despatch channel, comes A. P. Gorsuch's story of how he landed a trout and bagged a duck without casting a line or firing a shot.
 Walking by a stream in his meadow, Gorsuch saw a flying duck dive in the water. A trout, eluding the bird, leaped so energetically it landed on the bank at Gorsuch's feet.
 The duck hit the water so hard it was stunned, Gorsuch easily captured it.
