T. N. O. Will Not Extend in Quebec

C. N. R. to Supply Need There. Air-Conditioned Cars Now Running on T. & N. O.

The T. & N. O. is not considering extending its present railway system in the North. A. H. Cavanagh, general manager of the railway assured The Advance this afternoon. A rumour published in Toronto to the effect that the Ontario Government road might extend its services further into Northern Quebec has no foundation in fact. An extension will undoubtedly be made to serve the needs of the large mining country but it is believed likely that the Canadian National Railways will undertake the construction.

Mr. Cavanagh arrived in Timmins last night on one of his regular tours of inspection and was accompanied by C. O. Baker.

The new T. & N. O. engines will be placed in service early in June. The first is to be delivered about June 6th from the Kingston railway shops, while the second will arrive a week later. Service on the railway will not be speeded up at present by the addition of the engines, Mr. Cavanagh said, since they have been purchased more with the idea of keeping increasingly heavy trains up to the present schedule between Timmins and North Bay. They are designed to make the run without the change of engines at Englehart and in this way a considerable economy will be effected.

Air Conditioned Cars Running
New air conditioned C.N.R. Pullmans have made their appearance on the T. & N. O. line and have proven popular with travellers, the railwaymen agreed. More of them will be placed in service as they are released from the railway shops.

In regard to the new locomotive shed to be built in Timmins this year, Mr. Cavanagh said that the situation in the local yards will be relieved by the installation of a turntable. At present all turning has to be done on the "Y" that runs from the railway yards proper across the cyanide.

Hallelujah Street Singer Attracts Good Crowds Here

Envoy H. J. Ferguson, S.A., of London, Ont., was a visitor to Timmins this week and attracted big crowds, despite the unfavourable weather. Singing on the street, he won attention and interest, and there was a good crowd at the service at the hall last night. All were delighted with the "Hallelujah Singer." Envoy Ferguson, who followed the trade of jeweller before joining the Army, gave a striking address on the topic, "The Pearl of Great Price." Major L. Usarki, Divisional Commander, accompanied the Envoy on his trip through the North.

Russell T. Kelley Urges Development

Jack Thomas, of the Welsh Choir, was director for the musical features of the evening, and provided a pleasing number of selections. Tenor solos by Tommy Williams featured the musical programme. This singer appeared twice on the programme and each time he won hearty encore. By special request he sang "The Old-Fashioned Tune." Geo. E. Hale played the piano accompaniment. The other soloist for the evening was Evan Williams whose selections were much appreciated. Harold Hopkins played the accompaniment on the piano.

The dancing numbers may well be marked down as "extra specials." These delightful numbers gracefully given as well as effectively presented were by pupils of Mrs. H. Burt. Those in the Group Dance were: Helen Spinks, Irene Cavaney, Edith Smith, Rose Brademan, Joanne Langdon and Beatrice Pennington. For the Dutch dance, an especially popular number, the dancers were Helen Spinks, Irene Cavaney, Edith Smith, Joanne Langdon, Helen Russell and Marguerite Mackenzie. Each number was insistently encored and there was special enthusiasm in encoring the two little misses, Helen Spinks and Irene Cavaney, in their dance duo. On behalf of the Timmins Board of Trade, Mayor Bartleman presented each of the dancers and charming little dancers in the three dances with a souvenir gift. The costumes of the dancers added to the effectiveness of the numbers. Mrs. Williams played the accompaniments for the dance numbers.

Then Wilson Thomson certainly made a hit with his monologue, "Mary's Little Mine." It is a little poem of his own composition and he gave it with particular effectiveness. This monologue will be found elsewhere in this issue of The Advance, but to get the full value of the selection you should hear it given by Mr. Thomson himself.

C. W. Wright, of Toronto, past president of the Northern Ontario Associated Boards of Trade, introduced Mr. Kelley as a successful business man who for 22 years had efficiently operated a large advertising agency in Hamilton and achieved a remarkable reputation as a good business man and a valued worker in the cause of others. Mr. Kelley was well known as a Rotarian and an active exponent of board of trade effort for community advance. Mr. Wright touched briefly on the lack of knowledge of mining and the North displayed in the South and the need for this to be overcome before full justice would be done to the North.

Mr. Kelley opened with a number of new stories that were specially well told, and then touched on his impressions of the North. All here had full reason for optimism, with the resources to hand in mineral and other wealth awaiting development, he said. Co-operation was an essential to any real success, he believed. "Eliminate the knockers," was his advice. "If you are not a booster for your town, you had better go elsewhere, because you are no asset to the community." He urged buying at home, supporting home industry, helping even those who might not be liked. While complimenting the citizens of Timmins on the value of the mining industry, he touched on the importance of the farming industry. "Successful farmers make successful business," he commented. He pointed out that Canada lost $250,000,000 a year through waste in connection with poor methods in farming, weeds, poor seed and insects being chief causes. Business men might do much to offset this loss by help and advice. He emphasized the value of the Golden Rule in business success of the real kind. For the development of business, it was necessary to analyze your trading area, he said, and he advised careful study of the situation to see how much should come here. He gave many striking illustrations as to how business might be developed by thought and watchfulness. From his own wide experience of 23 years he placed advertising high in the list of aids to business, but it must be intelligent and careful. Of all forms of advertising he placed newspaper advertising first—ahead of direct mail advertising, billboards, radio or other forms. "Your local newspaper to my mind gives you the best and cheapest form of advertising and its drawing power covers the whole extent of its field of circulation," the speaker said. To this he added a number of helpful hints on writing, planning and carrying through effective advertising campaigns.

Touching on the matter of roads Mr. Kelley said that every dollar put into Northern roads was good investment for all Ontario. As soon as the South recognized this fact, the North would be much better provided with needed roads. For development of the country, for the new wealth and new business it would create, for the employment it would give, the increased progress of the North was essential. He urged Timmins, Kirkland Lake, New Liskeard and the other towns of the North to send strong delegations to the coming annual meeting of the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade so that a comprehensive programme for the development of the North might be outlined and its urgency fully impressed on the government by concerted voice and action. Speaking of the money that had come from the North in the last few years, proving a vital factor in helping the province carry through the difficult years, he concluded by emphasizing the way in which his eyes had been opened to the value and the possibilities of the North. "When I return South," he added, "I will be a persistent and consistent booster of the North."

At the conclusion of his helpful and interesting address, President Langdon presented Mr. Kelley, on behalf of the Board of Trade, with a framed photo of a typical scene of the North as a souvenir of the occasion and a mark of appreciation.

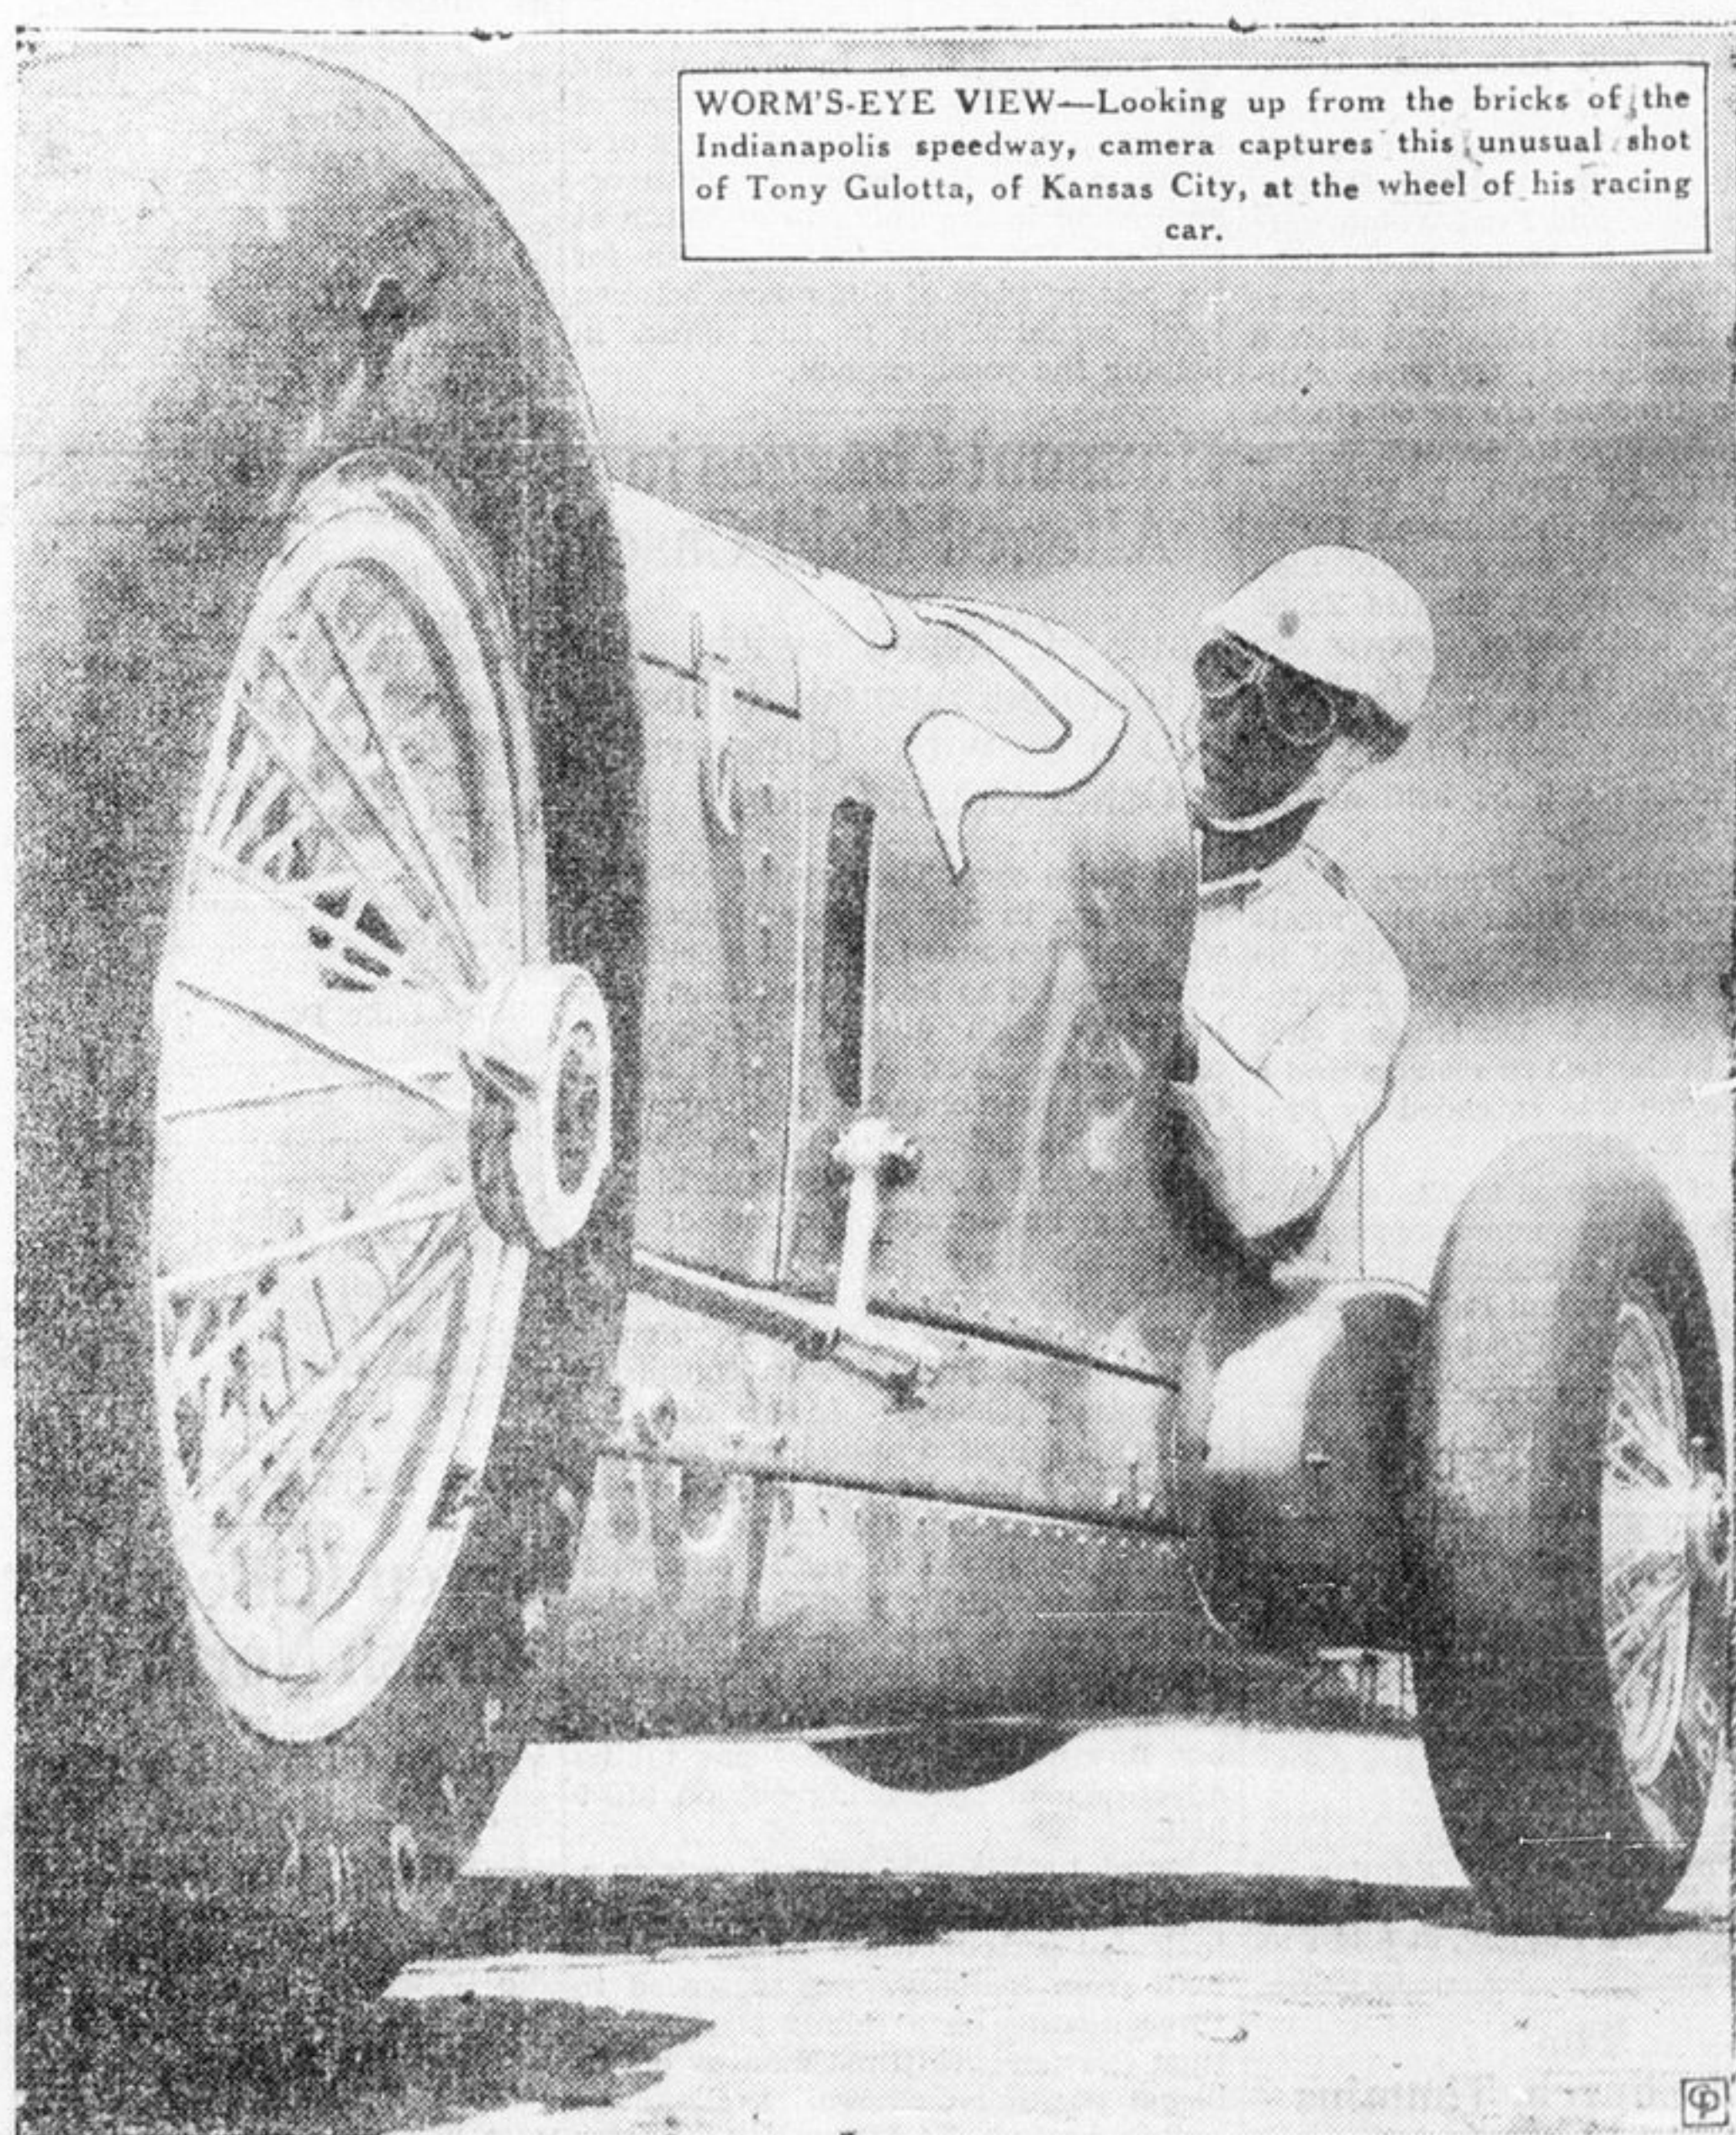

On behalf of the Board of Trade,

G. A. Macdonald moved a vote of thanks to the guest speaker, Mr. Kelley, to the dancers, the singers, the orchestra, Mr. Thomson, Mr. Wright, Mr. Thomas and all others who had contributed to the decided success of the evening.

Fates Rule 500-Mile Speedway

WORM'S-EYE VIEW—Looking up from the bricks of the Indianapolis speedway, camera captures this unusual shot of Tony Gulotta, of Kansas City, at the wheel of his racing car.

Heart - Breaking Struggle for Pilots who Whirl Over Indianapolis Bricks.

Of words I've heard as boy and man Saddest are these, "He also ran!" —Apologies to All Poets.

By BILL BRAUCHER
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

New York, May 28th—Only three of the 33 drivers who go to the post for the 500-mile automobile derby on Saturday at Indianapolis have won the event.

Kelly Pefilo, who may or may not drive, depending on how he feels when the big day comes, won it last year. Wild Bill Cummings, who will drive, come what may, was the 1934 winner. Lou Meyer has won it twice, in 1928 and 1933. Thirty of the lads at the wheel can be called, in horse race parlance, maidens.

Outstanding among those who have been knocking at the door is Tony Gulotta. For 10 years the Kansas City daredevil has been trying, but always something happened. He has driven 3,630 miles in the race, only Ralph De Palma having whizzed over more bricks than Tony. Usually some tiny mechanical fault has sent him to the pits defeated. The closest he has come was third in 1928.

Second—by 27 Seconds
Mauri Rose, little dirt track veteran, from Columbus, O., rode his first gas horse in 1933. Two years ago he finished second by 27 seconds after a brilliant performance. It was one of the closest finishes in Speedway history. Last year he had to leave the grind at the half-way mark, with engine trouble. This year he was among the first to qualify with his four-wheel drive special.

Seven times Elbert (Babe) Stapp has found the Speedway fates unkind. Three years ago he paced Lou Meyer the winner, over 300 miles of the grind, setting track records along the way, only to fall when he ran out of gas on the back stretch. In 1934 a crack-up kept him out of competition. Last year a mechanical fault spoiled his chance.

Stapp 32-year-old Texan, has another ambition. He says he will sink his winnings, if any, into a car that would break Sir Malcolm Campbell's 301-miles-an-hour record on the salt beds at Bonneville, Utah.

Mishaps for Miller
Chet Miller, of Detroit, has been competing since 1927. On the day before the 1928 race his car went into a spin during a practice round, smashed an inside wall and was demolished. Miller suffering a skull fracture and a number of broken bones. When his mangled right arm was set, silver plates were inserted at the elbow, which meant he would never be able to bend the elbow again. Miller insisted that the arm be set at an angle so he could grip a steering wheel.

In 1934 Miller made a perfect outside loop over the wall at the south turn, his car landing right side up. He was able to drive it back to the pits without shifting gears.

Just One of Those Things
Almost every misfortune except "left at the post" dots the records of the Indianapolis also rans. Rex Mays, on top from the start last year, broke a spring bracket after 307 miles. Lou Moore, one of the men who has been able to average better than 100 miles an hour over the whole distance, and still not win, has good reason to suspect the dice. Lou was second in 1928 and ran third in 1933 and 1934. Cliff Bergere, who ran third four years ago ran out of gas with only 25 miles to go.

In the chronicles of the race are scores of stories of the fight that failed because of skids, crashes, broken connections, exploding gasoline tanks, broken brakes, no more gas, broken crank cases, locked steering gear, broken shift levers, lost wheels, lost tires, broken pistons, cracked exhaust pipes.
