Moose River Rescue Now Totals $77,995

$25,000 to be Distributed as Instalment. Underground Workers Well Paid in the North.

The Moose River Rescue Fund committee announced at Toronto last week that a total of $77,995 has been received. While further investigation is being carried out to ascertain just what percentage will be given to various rescuers, it has been decided to make an interim distribution of $25,000 at once.

Recognize Surface Workers While recognizing that the bulk of the fund should be used for the benefit of those who assumed greater risks underground, the committee feels that recognition must also be given to those who, by their faithful and untiring efforts in the cold, rain and mud above ground, directly aided in the whole work of rescue.

$100 Instalment The present distribution will provide the sum of $100 for every underground worker as a first instalment upon the total amount to be awarded to each when eventually ascertained.
