Huntingdon Gleaner:—Cigar smoking landed a chauffeur in court. He was a young mechanical engineer, who agreed with the Court at Salem, Mass., that his motor zig-zagged across the road. He agreed that he staggered along when being taken into custody. But he did not agree that he was drunk. His trouble, he said, was that he had been smoking his first cigar.

North Bay Nugget:—An Icelandic journalist, rather boastfully, says there's practically no ice in Iceland. Next thing they'll be telling us that there's no ire in Ireland.

Hear Serious Cases at Iroquois Falls

Nellie Lake Man Sentenced for Burning Tractor. Sensational Evidence Given. Wife Sentenced on Serious Charges.

Iroquois Falls, Ont., June 29th, 1936. Special to The Advance.

Appearing before Magistrate E. R. Tucker here Thursday, Andrew Nelson, Nellie Lake, pleaded guilty to burning a tractor, the property of L. Silver, and Son, and was sentenced to one year in the common gaol. Nelson testified he had been approached by his employer, Sol Silver who had, he said, offered him $150 to drop a match in the tractor shed. He told the court he was employed off and on by Silver and since he could not get on relief he felt his only chance of keeping in good with Silver was to do as he was asked. Following repeated requests by Silver and urging by his wife he had finally done the job, he testified. W. J. Grummett, appearing for the accused, made a strong plea for leniency on the grounds Nelson had very willingly given the police information in this case and others and that due to the fact Nelson was out of work and unable to get relief the temptation had been very great. Provincial Constable J. Allan Stringer, who conducted the investigation, assisted by Chief Ed Olaveson, Iroquois Falls, testified as to Nelson's co-operation during the investigation.

In closed court the same afternoon Nelson's wife, 22, and her brother, L. Bar, 21, pleaded guilty to a serious charge, (incest), the former being sentenced to 12 to 18 months in Andrew Mercer reformatory, Toronto, and the latter to three years in Kingston penitentiary. Mrs. Nelson also pleaded guilty to an abortion charge and was sentenced 12 to 18 month, the sentences to run concurrently. Three Nelson children, 5, 3 and 1½ years of age will be taken care of by friends and relatives under the direction the Children Aid officials. Assistant Crown Attorney Chas. Yates prosecuted.

Pilador Desnoyers and R. J. Neddery, were each fined $500 and 3 month on charges of breaches of the Customs Excise Act. Desnoyers pleaded guilty on two counts and was sentenced to six months additional in lieu of payment of the fine and Neddery was sentenced to three months additional in lieu of payment, being convicted on only one charge. Both are second offenders. Neddery is 64. The arrests resulted from investigations by Corporal H. J. Nelson, R.C.M.P., who was assisted by Provincial Constable J. Allan Stringer and Chief Ed Olaveson, Iroquois Falls, in making the arrests at the old Nellie Lake landing on the Abitibi river, where a still and quantities of mash and spirits were seized. Neither were represented, Neddery conducting his own defence. Corporal Nelson prosecuted.

Anthony Blais, Ansonville, was convicted of obtaining relief from the township of Calvert to the extent of $33.05, while employed. Permitted by Magistrate Tucker to make restitution he preferred a jail sentence and was given one month.

In juvenile court two young boys pleaded guilty to stealing a sum of money and were given a kindly warning by the magistrate that a second offence must result in an industrial school term. The father was ordered to make restitution.

Need Co-operation in Conserving Fish

Department at Toronto zShows How All May Assist in Preserving Game Fish.

(Department of Game and Fisheries)

With the bass season opening last Saturday, fishing generally will be in full swing throughout the province. Thousands of resident anglers and visitors will be combing our lakes and streams in search of those gamey fish for which the waters of the province are so justly famed. It seems an opportune time, therefore, to draw to the attention of the public the desirability of obviating waste and eliminating extravagance in connection with the taking of game fish. The conservation of these resources is an important factor in ensuring their perpetuation and a continuation of the recreational pleasures which the sport affords.

Conservation in its broadest sense and as applied to our wild life resources means, among other things, the wise use of these resources, with the object of securing the greatest good for the greatest number of people, and the transmitting of this valuable heritage to future generations in the best possible condition. The Game and Fisheries Laws have been framed with that idea in mind. They are restrictive only in so far as is necessary to ensure the wise use of our resources, while at the same time they provide the protection necessary for their perpetuation.

It will be obvious that the greatest contribution the individual can make to the conservation of our game fish is just a deeper realization of the importance of the laws and regulations in connection therewith and the necessity for their observance.

Do not lightly pass over the actions of the man who willingly or wantonly disregards the laws. His illegal depredations or thoughtless indifference are important factors in the depletion of our waters. Co-operation with the department enforcement officers in curbing the activities of the confrmed law-breaker, will result in better fishing.

Law breaking is very often the result of thoughtlessness. When the fish are biting there is a great temptation to keep on "taking" just as long as they will strike, regardless of limits or the personal needs of the fisherman. Creel limits are quite generous, but are intended as a regulatory measure, and not as a goal to strive for. May we suggest that you take during any day only what you can personally use within the limits of the law. Do not make a practice of supplying a mess of fish to all of your neighbours and friends. The fish that are biting to-day and which you leave in the water after your needs have been supplied, will be biting just as briskly to-morrow, or on some future day, and you will want to go fishing then also. If such restraint is exercised, much waste will be eliminated and future prospects will be that much brighter.

If you catch undersize fish, be careful to release them without injury, if possible, and after wetting your hands. The latter is a very necessary precaution because it prevents rubbing off the protective coating which shields the fish from external disease.

The advent of the automobile and the development of the tourist traffic have resulted in very heavy demands on the resources of the waters of the province, particularly in respect to the more popular of our game fish. As supply and demand are inseparably related, it will be obvious that good fishing will depend on the wise use of our resources. The efforts of the department are being bent towards maintaining the supply through an extensive restocking programme. The success of these efforts will depend to a large extent on the co-operation of the public.

Fishing is one of the finest recreations available to the sportsman, and these suggestions for the conservation of the resources which make it possible, are embodied in the code of sportsmanship.

If you are a non-resident of the province, be sure to provide yourself with a license. These are available as individual and family licenses, and possession thereof will save you any embarrassment when the game warden makes his rounds.
