Cobalt Old Timer Died in Silver Town Tuesday

Cobalt, Oct. 15.—(Special to The Advance)—Charles Smith, for nearly a quarter of a century in business as a merchant at the north end of the town, and a familiar figure to many old Cobalters now living in Porcupine, died at his home on Lang street on Tuesday morning. He had been in ill-health for some time past and his condition had been recognized as serious. Born in Finland 51 years ago, Mr. Smith came to Cobalt as a young man and for the past 24 years had conducted a grocery store on Lang street, near the site of the bridge which carries the main road over the T. & N. O. railway tracks. His widow and a daughter, Vianne, survive.

Sudbury Prophet Sees Vision of Awful War in 1937

P. B. Dempsay, a man of 57 years of age and who has been around Sudbury for some ten years, says that he has had a vision in which he saw a future war to start next year and in which he claims hundreds of millions of people are to lose their lives. He adds that he has had 13 other visions, all of which came true. He also claims to be the greatest bag puncher in Canada. He is quoted as saying that he travelled for some seven years with Barnum and Bailey's circus as a bag-puncher. When the movies cut in on the circus game so that he could make no money in the circus, he says he travelled alone giving punching-bag exhibitions all over Canada and the United States. He arrived at Sudbury with a bag-punching outfit on a cart. He is quoted as very earnest about his vision of the next war. It will be followed by revolution and disease he says, which seems reasonable if 600,000,000 or 700,000,000 people are killed. The chances are that before next year arrives, however, his prophecy will be forgotten. Those who are given to accepting prophecies of this kind should comfort themselves by the thought that there is to be no serious war this year anyway.

A. Y. P. A. Inspected Fire Hall

Interesting Feature at Meeting Last Night of Young People's Club.

Members of the St. Matthew's A.Y.P.A. last night learned something of the art of fire fighting, when, under the guidance of Deputy-Chief William Stanley, they inspected the fire hall and all its equipment. The mysteries of chemical tanks, alarm systems were explained to them. They even learned how to slide down a brass pole without landing at the bottom all in a heap.
It was decided earlier in the evening at a business meeting to go to South Porcupine on October 23rd by bus. This is for the annual dramatic contest between the Iroquois Falls, South Porcupine, Cochrane and Timmins clubs. The play being presented this year by the local club is "And He Came to His Father."

Bear Besieges Home Near Kapuskasing, and is Shot

(From Northern Tribune)
After laying siege to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Theophile Spooner for eight hours last Tuesday, a large black bear fell victim to a well directed rifle bullet and is departing this earthy sphere in the guise of fine, juicy bear steaks to the gastronomic enjoyment of the Spooner family.
The Spooners live on this side of the Kapuskasing river about a half-mile from the new high school. Arriving home from school, where she is a second form student, last Tuesday afternoon, 15-year-old Anna Spooner was greeted by what she claims is the biggest bear she ever saw.
He had taken up living quarters on the back porch of the Spooner home, and was making himself quite at home with a large pail of fresh milk. Miss Spooner entered by the front door and barricaded herself in securely.
Mr. and Mrs. Spooner had been visiting in town and arrived home shortly before six p.m. The bear was busy on his second pail of milk and several other courses of a glutinous meal from the well-stocked larder on the back porch, and permitted them to enter, also via the front door, un molested.
From then until midnight, the bear beat a path around the Spooner home. He tore a screen door off the front porch, chased the Spooner coves, pressed his nose against the window panes, and made sundry efforts to get in and join the family circle.
Finally Mr. Spooner took up a position at the back door, and with Mrs. Spooner holding a lantern behind him to direct his aim, scored a clean hit through the bruin's head with a .303 rifle bullet.
To compensate for their loss of provisions, Mr. and Mrs. Spooner skinned the bear immediately and partook of their first bear steak dinner the following day. The meat is excellent, they claim, and anyone who would like to taste it are invited out, providing he hasn't too healthy an appetite.

Pants Burglar Made Haul at Hailybury This Week

Hailybury, Oct. 15.—(Special to The Advance)—A "pants burglar" made a good haul here on one night over last week-end, police state in admitting they have no clue to his identity. First the home of C. H. Liddicott was entered—the front door had not been locked—and from there was taken $180 in the trousers pocket of Colin Ferguson, a guest, and $20 from a purse in the pocket of Mrs. Liddicott's coat, hanging in the hall. The same night, I. A. Lytle's home was entered through an open window and $10 abstracted from his pants pocket. In neither case was any alarm raised or noise heard. Chief McGill reported later.

Burglars Seen Carrying Away Safe at Sudbury

Burglars at Sudbury last week broke into the Fashion Craft Clothes Shop and carried away the safe, which contained over $3,000 in cash and cheques, it being a pay day. A waiter in a nearby cafe saw the burglars though he did not get a good look at them. He was curious enough to take the number of their car, but not suspicious enough to phone the police. He could give only a brief description of the burglars. When the staff of the shop arrived the next morning the police were at once notified and took up the case, but under added difficulties. Had the waiter phoned the police at the time he took the number of the car, the burglars would likely have been caught red-handed.

Stop, Look and Listen, with a brand new cast, new songs, new dances, attracted big crowds at the Palace theatre this week. Dolly Dot, the clever child dancer who appeared here when the company was in Timmins earlier in the year, was once again one of the best.
Comedy dance team, tap dancers, comedians, and impersonations gave the programme a pleasing variety. The show's own orchestra supplied the music.

Former Popular Resident Here Passes at Toronto.

Wide circles of friends will regret to learn of the death in Toronto on Saturday of James Venters Cran, secretary of the Trans-Canada Mining Corporation, after an extended illness. The late Mr. Cran was for some years a resident of Timmins, being on the staff of the Bank of Commerce here. He married one of the popular young ladies of Timmins, Miss Beatrice McCracken, and she with two young sons, James and John, survive. To the bereaved widow and children and to the other near relatives and friends the sincere sympathy of all is extended.
The late James V. Cran was born in Scotland 33 years ago and came to Canada in 1928. He left the service of the Bank of Commerce to join the Homer L. Gibson staff, later going into business on his own account in the brokerage line. Afterwards he joined the Trans-Canada organization with which he was connected at the time of his death.

Man's Sense of Smell Lands One in a Cell

Two fellows are seen in Thefts Gasoline. One Man Here in Jail, is Sequel to Tale.
Because Paul Engstrom's sense of smell was so keen, Charles Jenkins is at present locked up in the cells at the Timmins police station. Mr Engstrom was in the machine shop at the Buffalo Ankerite mine on Tuesday evening when he smelled gasoline fumes. On investigating, he found two men in the act of syphoning gasoline from cars parked there. Five different cars had been drained. He grasped the two men and started across the mine yard to the office.
Just as they reached the gate, the two made a break for freedom and were able to get away. Mr. Engstrom telephoned Timmins police who, in the absence of the provincial police constables undertook an investigation.
Nothing happened until the next day. Jenkins arrived at the police station, claiming that his car had been stolen and asking that it returned to him. By that time the care used by the thieves had been seized at the Ankerite by local police and brought here. Again Mr. Engstrom was called and he identified Jenkins as one of the two men with whom he had grappled.
The other man in the case was located here by police and is said to have made a full confession of the whole affair. Both will appear in police court next Tuesday afternoon.

Timmins Mining Man in Gold Rush

them again. That was on Sept. 26th, and there was then six inches of snow on the ground and all the small lakes were freezing over.
The Yellow Knife area is the home of the Dog Rig Indians. There are no white women in the area—all Indians.
Transportation in the new gold area, Mr. Filmer says, is enough to drive anyone mad. For instance, they ordered food from Hudson Bay Co. at Edmonton on July 6th but the goods did not arrive until Sept 5th. When they did arrive they had to get rid of all perishables at once to save them from freezing up. The big lakes were stormy and held up traffic. There are no doctors, no police, no movies, no dance halls—just Indians—was one comment by Mr. Filmer, who added that at present it was certainly no country for a white woman. Gasoline is $1 a gallon and other things in proportion.
There are about 1000 claims staked on the north end of Gordon Lake. Mr. Filmer says there will be great activity in the spring. Many of the large companies like Ventures, Consolidated Smelters and others have properties in the new area. Mr. Filmer says that on account of transportation costs, etc., it is certainly no place for the small man.
On his return trip to Goldfields, N.W. T., Mr. Filmer was struck by the contrast between that community a year ago and now. A year ago there was only one white woman in the area, and only a few people. Now there are good houses, police barracks, doctors, dentists, schools, stores, even a liquor store.
Mr. Filmer left here yesterday for Toronto to report to his principals.

Sketch of the New Premier of Quebec

Hon. Maurice Duplessis of a Family Line in Canada Since 1650.

(By A.S. of The Ottawa Journal)
Maurice Duplessis, Quebec Union Nationale leader, whose stormy 10-year political career reached a victorious peak when on October 7 he became Premier of the province, is linked intimately by blood and tradition to Ottawa and to the Gatineau district.
The name of his first Canadian ancestor, Nicholas Gatineau Sieur Duplessis, soldier, notary, fur trader and judge, who came from France to Canada in 1650, is perpetuated in the swift flood of the Gatineau river which mingles with the Ottawa a mile below Parliament Hill. Mr. Duplessis' mother, the late Berthe Genest was a sister of Dr. Sam Genest of Ottawa, militant figure in bilingual education in the Capital for many years, and still active on all matters pertaining to the welfare of the French-Canadian language and race.
An unheard-of condition for the Premier of a province renowned for its large families, and where marriage is almost universal, Maurice Duplessis is a bachelor. Like Mr. Mackenzie King, Mr. R. B. Bennett and Premier Patterson of Saskatchewan he has resisted, so far, the blandishments of the fair sex.
Historians who have searched the archives of the Duplessis family in Canada find in the 46-year-old Premier the same characteristics of determination, adaptability and judgment which have marked lawyers, businessmen and judges of his line.
Most picturesque scion of the Duplessis family was Nicholas Gatineau Sieur Duplessis, who at the age of 23, left France and came to Canada to seek his fortune. On reaching Quebec he enlisted in the forces defending the Citadel, and when proficient in the use of arms set forth again to found a home at Three Rivers.
Here, where the family has flourished ever since, Nicholas Gatineau first embraced the profession of notary, and contemporaries wrote of him: "He had a fine writing hand, and made no mistakes in spelling." He studied, interpreted and applied the law then in force, and his signature is found on one of the first marriage contracts drawn up in the stronghold of Three Rivers.
A year later he was chosen as chief clerk in the Trading Company des Cents-Associés, and within the course of a few years became so familiar with Indian dialects that he was named official interpreter.
Law and business marched side by side in Nicholas Gatineau Sieur Duplessis' office over a period of some years. But after serving a short term as judge at Cap-de-la-Madeline, Nicholas decided to devote all his energies to the great fur-trading enterprise which was bringing prosperity to La Nouvelle France.
Strongly entrenched in his own conception of how the fur trade should be carried on, he dared even to oppose the autocratic Governor Frontenac, declaring openly that the trading should be carried on without giving the Indians brandy. Although his ideas were overthrown the fact remains that Nicholas Gatineau faced the French King's representative and argued with him on a matter of policy, heedless of consequence.
His fur-brigades of hardy "coureurs-de-bois" travelled the stretches of St. Maurice, St. Lawrence and Ottawa rivers in search of bales of beaver, marten, fox and ermine which brought high prices in France, and the enterprise prospered with the years.
Desirous of honoring the guiding genius of the trade which brought them affluence, members of his fur-trading parties perpetuated his name in the Gatineau river, one of their best sources of valuable skins.
In 1681, Nicholas Gatineau Sieur Duplessis was accounted well-to-do among his fellow-men of Three Rivers and according to a census of that year, had two shotguns, two pistols, 14 head of cattle and 60 acres of fine farming land in addition to other resources. Five children survived old Nicholas at his death, and in successive generations populated the Seigneurie of Ste. Marie at Baticashe, the Gatineau fief at Yamachiche and the farms of La Pointe-du-Lac.
In the light of family history Quebec has chosen as its leader a native son whose roots strike deep to the brave days when French musket boared answer to the twang of Iroquois bowstrings, and French gold poured in for luxurious furs of the northern wilds.
Brought up in an atmosphere of politics, Maurice Duplessis became acquainted with provincial and Dominion issues while still a schoolboy, and much of his political acumen is attributed to the precept and example of his father, Mr. Justice N. L. Duplessis, who was a member of the Quebec Legislature prior to accepting an appointment on the Bench.
With youth, aggressiveness, legal training and sound judgment on his side, Mr. Duplessis is now turning a new page in the history of a family which has worthily served Quebec in the past.
