Northern Power Co. Sues LaRoche Mine

Interesting Case Started Last Week at Haileybury in Regard to "Life of Mine" Contract

An interesting case opened at Haileybury last Thursday in the Supreme Court sittings there before Mr. Justice Ainslie Greene. The case deals with a contract which the plaintiff holds is a "life of mine" contract. In this suit the Northern Ontario Power Co. is suing LaRoche Mines Limited for alleged violation of the terms of a contract made with the power company in 1931. Outlining the case for the Northern Power Co., R. S. Robertson, K.C., told His Lordship that LaRoche Mines, former owners of a property in Deloro township, in the Porcupine mining area, had entered into a contract with the Northern Ontario Power Co. some five years ago, the contract giving the power company exclusive rights to supply power to the property during the life of the mine, these exclusive rights being reasonable security for the expenditures necessary by the power company in supplying power to the mine and also a sort of balance for the risk taken in such expenditures. Mr. Robertson held that such a contract could not be assigned in the ordinary way, but that it must naturally remain in force for the "life of the mine." The LaRoche Mines sold the property to a company formed under the auspices of the Sylvanite Mines. This new company is known as the Deloro Mines. After the sale, Mr. Robertson said, the LaRoche Mines went into voluntary liquidation, and when the power company submitted its claim this was disputed and court action followed.

Mr. Robertson read to the court a letter from the defendant company in which it was stated that the new owners did not care to assume the old contract with the plaintiffs, and he said power had been supplied after the deal with Sylvanite interests.

If the court should find the plaintiffs have ground for their claim for damage, this should be restricted to a period of 10 years, R. F. Wilson, defence counsel in the half million dollar "life of the mine" power contract case, contended. Mr. Wilson, appearing for LaRoche Mines in the action brought against the former mining company by Northern Ontario Power Company, cited the Public Utilities Act in support of his argument on this point, raised after Bailey Harrison, general manager of the power company, had told the court the basis for the claim of $324,163.24 was based on the expectancy the mining property, in Deloro township, would operate for the next 25 years.

Predicts Oil Area James Bay District

Ontario Geologist Also Sees Much Further Expansion of Gold Mining.

Predicting that oil may some day be discovered in the lignite and gypsum areas around James Bay, H. C. Rickaby provincial geologist, told the Engineering Institute of Canada at Toronto last Thursday evening that "some day it may be well worth while to examine these rocks for oil because we know that oil occurs in rocks of similar age in Southwestern Ontario."

Mr. Rickaby's address was featured by this long-range prediction as well as by the statement that in his opinion, there were great possibilities of gold strikes in the "old" mining areas of Northern Ontario. There were still great possibilities in the Northwestern section of the province but the older, recognized areas constituted the brightest hope for further expansion, he said. It was very difficult to travel around the mining camps of Northern Ontario and not become a confirmed optimist regarding the mineral possibilities of the country, Mr. Rickaby declared. He predicted that expansion of the mining industry would be a steady one under the wise and courageous leadership of Canadian.

Canada possessed one of the largest areas of pre-Cambrian rock formations in the world, and this was one of the best explored, the speaker continued. Rocks of this type undoubtedly existed in other countries, he pointed out, but many of them were unknown because they had been overlaid by later formations.

Mr. Rickaby's address, given at Hart House, was the first of a series of seven to be given in the near future. At the November meetings metal-mining and milling and forest resources will be discussed by C. G. Williams, consulting mining engineer, and Dean C. D. Howe of the forestry faculty, University of Toronto, respectively.

Asking Fixed Dates for Sittings of Mining Court

Haileybury, October 14th. Special To The Advance.

Fixed terms for mining court sittings at Kirkland Lake are being asked by Temiskaming Bar Association. At the annual banquet last night here, a resolution to the effect was adopted. After J. A. Legris, K.C., the president had told the lawyers present of cases where clients had come long distances, as far as Amos and Valleyfield, only to find sittings postponed on the eve of the scheduled opening. Some terms had been adjourned three times, he said.

The association will ask the Chief Justice for Ontario to give Temiskaming four sittings annually of the Supreme Court. This was the practice before 1931, when the schedule was halved. Mr. Legris said that in the last two and a half years the calendar at any one court never had been cleared off, with considerable loss to litigants. Mr. Justice Greene, presiding at present sittings, told the gathering he intended to remain until next week to finish the lengthy list of non-jury cases, but to-day his Lordship was instructed from Toronto to conclude tonight and open at L'Orignal on Monday. Temiskaming sittings will resume in November.

While members were agreed on the two resolutions, there was not the same unanimity for a suggestion of the president to petition the Attorney General to change the method of handling these matters. The idea carried on vote, but some lawyers felt there should be further consideration. Speakers at the banquet included Mr. Justice Greene, K.C., R. S. Robertson, K.C., Judge Hayward, Hon. W. A. Gordon, K.C., and Magistrate Atkinson.

Can it be Possible that Toronto is Much Impressed?

(From New Liskeard Speaker)

Although a six mile area of the Porcupine mining section has produced something like $400,000,000 worth of gold, and that is but one small part of the mining area of Northern Ontario and Northwestern Quebec, a party of Toronto members of the Board of Trade of that city, had to go to Fort William, Port Arthur, Sault Ste. Marie and Sudbury to see for themselves that the North was "worth while." The business houses represented by these visitors to Northwestern Ontario have been receiving big business from the Temiskaming and Cochrane districts for many years, and that business has steadily increased. In return what do the people of the North, as representatives of these districts, receive from Old Ontario? Not a fair contribution to good roads, at least.

Mr. Gibbons, President of the Toronto Board of Trade, and the master of ceremonies on the trip referred to says:

"Throughout the entire trip we have been struck with the vast development progress now under way in Northern Ontario. Few people in Southern Ontario realize the extensive development now under way in Northern Ontario. It has been an eye-opener to many members of the party who are making their first trip into the north country."

If the Toronto visitors had an "eye-opener" on their trip out west, they should organize a similar trip up through these districts to Timmins, then pass over to Quebec and probably they might succeed in having both eyes opened to the great possibilities they are passing up in favour of the Quebec metropolises.

Huntingdon Gleaner—Complaining of pains which indicated an attack of appendicitis, Frank Hixon, Chattanooga, Tenn., agreed to an operation. The surgeons found it was not appendicitis that caused the trouble, but a dentist's drill three-quarters of an inch long in his appendix. How the drill got there is a mystery to Hixon. His only explanation is he must have swallowed it unknowingly while a dentist was working in his mouth.

Old-Timer of North Dies at Winnipeg

Hugh Smith Passes Away After Illness of Three Weeks.

Word of the death in Winnipeg of Hugh Smith, an old-timer of the Northern Ontario mining camps and for many years past resident in Manitoba, has been received at Haileybury by his cousin, Neil D. McIsaac. Mr. Smith had been ill for about three weeks before his death, but definite particulars of his illness are lacking. Mr. Smith was a native of Broad Cove, Cape Breton, came to Northern Ontario in the early days of Cobalt and engaged in prospecting in this section from 1908 for some years, later going to Porcupine, where he followed the same vocation. Afterwards he went to Manitoba where he prospected in the mining districts of that province in the early stages of that development. In recent years, he had been a field man with Flin Flon interests. Before coming to Cobalt, Mr. Smith, who was a graduate of St. Francis Xavier College, Antigonish, taught school in his native Nova Scotia for a time. He was about 56 years of age and is survived by his widow, who, as Miss Bethune, was on the post office staff in Cobalt's earlier days.

No Trace Yet of D. Willans Reported Lost in the Bush

Despite the fact that searching parties have been scouring the bush for several days no trace has yet been found of Dan Willans, well-known prospector, who has been reported as missing in the Lightning River country. The provincial police have been in charge of the searching parties but have not yet been successful in tracing the movements of the missing old-time prospector. Mr. Willans is well known all through the North as a prospector of much experience and skill in the bush and his failure to be heard from is taken by his friends as suggesting that he must have met with an accident or been taken ill or he would have returned before this. He left his cabin at Lightning River to inspect some claims he had some distance away and has not been heard from since then.

Labour Meeting at Theatre Last Night

Harry Beach, of Iroquois Falls, Among the Speakers

Last night at the Goldfields theatre a group of men representing the "International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers" addressed a crowd of men and women that filled the main body of the theatre and had the gallery partially filled. The seven hundred people listened quietly during most of the evening to what the organizers had to say, although there were occasional bursts of applause.

Harry Beach, of Iroquois Falls, candidate for the C.C.F. here in the last federal election, was the most forceful speaker of the evening. He said that the papermakers' union he represented was vitally interested in the formation of the gold camps of strong unions that would demand shorter shifts and higher wages. The reason he gave was that the higher price of gold is gradually raising other prices and that if the balance is not adjusted the wages to those in the paper mills would be cut. He spoke highly of the paper industry, saying that although the price of their product—newsprint—had fallen from more than $100 a ton to less than $50 a ton, the minimum wages had been raised. The industry had made heroic efforts in the face of bankruptcy to look after as many employees as possible, he said, by instituting the six-hour shift.

He drew a comparison between the paper industry and gold mining by saying that the price of gold had risen 72 per cent, while paper had fallen 50 per cent, yet the average rate of wages in gold mining had remained about the same level while the average rate of wages in the paper industry had risen.

W. H. Wright and the Toronto Globe came in for a good deal of criticism. Mr. Beach claimed that Mr. Wright's intentions were to go to the Channel Islands to escape Canadian income taxation and then try to exert influence on the Canadian people through the Globe. The speaker had little criticism to offer of the mine staffs or mine managers who, he said, were merely acting under the orders of the mine owners.

"The International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers" is a new one to Canada, according to the report for the year 1935 of the Department of Labour in a volume called "Labour Organization in Canada." It is there listed as having "no local unions in Canada," and was at that time affiliated with the American Federation of Labour. Organizers have been active within the past few months in Sudbury and Kirkland Lake, as well as Timmins. It is not to be confused with the "Mine Workers of America," a straight labour organization along craft lines. The International Worker, of Toronto, claims the union trying now to organize at Kirkland Lake, Sudbury and Timmins is allied with communism.

McKenzie Red Lake Shows Fine Progress

Has Produced Over a Million in Gold Since March of 1935.

Although McKenzie Red Lake gold mine went into production only in March, 1935, it has already produced $1,100,000 in gold. Most of the ore for this recovery has been taken from the upper two levels of the property. Development and exploration is now going on at more depth and is proving up large ore bodies, according to recent reports from the mine. On the 650-foot level a high grade shoot extending for more than 150 feet has been encountered in the past few weeks.

The mill has been treating just over 150 tons per day this summer, but plans now announced include the raising of the tonnage to 250. Even at the 150-ton rate, September's production was $75,000, with a profit of $45,000. Average grade of ore was $17 a ton; costs were about $7.00 per ton. A second dividend is predicted for this year.

Of the company's 3,000,000 shares capital, 2,900,000 have been issued.

Study Regulations If Going on the Hunt

Hunting Season Opened Last Week. Many in Timmins and District Have Hunting Fever

The first fall of snow, the crisp tang of real fall air, the yellow carpet of leaves on the ground, the displays of rifles, compasses, sleeping bags, bright red jackets; these are the things that awaken in the breast of every hunter each year a desire to "get away from it all," to find a new zest for life in the bush.

It comes around once a year, this deer and moose hunting season; and each year those who vowed they had been out for the last time are unable to resist. Expeditions are hurriedly organized and away go groups of professional men, business men, skilled workers and others.

Hunters in Northern Ontario have a slight advantage over those in more southerly parts of the province, for the season here opened on Thursday of last week and will continue until November 25th.

There is not much to be had in the immediate vicinity of Timmins, most hunters agree, so those who want deer usually go south a little and those who want moose go short distances north.

Those who are going to the bush will find it advisable to look up the regulations concerning the hunting of deer or moose with dogs—numbers, licensing, breed and many other restrictions are laid on the use of them. Only one deer or moose can be taken from camp on any one license. Animals must not be molested while swimming.

Says Skunk Underground Coloured the Cyanide

(From "Grab Samples" in Northern Miner)

"I notice that you are quite a naturalist and your notes from week to week are quite interesting. You may comment on the phlegm of the porcupine, the insouciance and impudence of the cat and the implacability of the turtle but for poise and self-possession give me the skunk every time. No doubt in your bush work you have met the animal? Then you will not have failed to observe its superiority complex when in the presence of either animal or man," writes a subscriber.

"Not long ago two skunks held a rendezvous on our camp verandah on an evening when half a dozen of us were sitting around. They strolled about their personal affairs and then wandered about while the audience froze to immobility. One of them spotted us, stopped and looked us over with a calm and dignified glance. It turned unobtrusively and rejoined its playmate, to which it evidently conveyed some message, because they turned and walked daintily down the steps leaving a breathless crowd behind them."

Certainly the skunk has little or nothing to fear and down the years it has learned to feel contempt for less efficiently equipped denizens of the wild and for man. It is a disciple of the military principle that the most effective defense is an offense—and how! The worst fault with the skunk is that it has a nervous disposition. It continually goes around with a worried air, with a chip on its shoulder. With the most pacific intentions in the world a man may try to give it a wide berth but the striped cat will nevertheless let its temperament get the best of it. It is the prima donna of the woods and flies off the handle for little or no reason. Apparently it is just homing for a chance to spread the news that it is in the neighbourhood and wants elbow room.

A skunk was found on the fourth level of the Hollinger mine (not long ago) (highgrading?). It probably thought it had discovered a wonderful burrow for the winter but the miners were not in agreement. The skunk had the best of the argument for quite a while, disseminating propaganda with great abandon, but the miners won out at the cost of olfactory outrage. It is unreliably reported that when the ore from this drift was milled the cyanide solutions turned pink and that when the gold brick was shipped to Ottawa it created a panic in the mint.

Timmins Policeman Loses Bout to Pavich

Albert Lepic Wins One Out of Three Falls in Wrestling Match on Thursday Night.

With a good percentage of the police force sitting in the ragside seats, last Thursday evening, Albert Lepic, local constable, went down to defeat at the hands of George Pavich in a wrestling card that had them booked for the feature bout. A large crowd turned out due to the fact that complimentary tickets were freely distributed.

The blond policeman was the heavy favourite but he weakened before the roughhouse attack of the Rouyn Croatian. Lepic was clearly outclassed and showed a lack of training. Although heavier than Pavich he wasn't in nearly as good shape.

Pavich secured the first fall after almost ten minutes. The second fall went to Lepic in thirty-three minutes when Pavich was biting. Referee Caesar awarded the bout to Lepic but Albert preferred to continue. The third fall went to Pavich after thirty-two minutes of wrestling.

Pavich insists on fouling.

Pavich drew the crowd's resentment from the start with his roughhouse antics. Lepic was cheered every time he secured a hold but he was easily worn out by Pavich's repeated fouling. Several times Pavich attempted to do battle with the referee as well.

Rod Labree of Montreal had no trouble with Tony Ciccone of Detroit in the semi-final. The Big Frenchman looked more like a real wrestler than any other on the card. He had real class and after slamming Ciccone around for fourteen minutes he pinned him. The bout was a one fall, forty-five minute affair.

Joe Thomas of South Porcupine and Toronto packed Peter McMullen of Toronto away in eleven minutes of smooth wrestling in the opener. This bout was a very tame one, both seeming to refuse to open up.

GEOPHYSICAL SURVEY IN THE PORCUPINE DISTRICT

Combined Geophysical Methods Incorporated, of New York, has been active in the Porcupine district during the past summer, having carried out an electric and magnetic survey on the property of Broulan Porcupine Mines, Ltd., says The Northern Miner, in Whitney township, for the purpose of tracing geological structure beneath the heavy overburden. An extensive survey of the same nature was also made on properties owned by McIntyre Porcupine Mines in the Porcupine camp.
