The Hindenburg Goes Home Again

By SHAKES
Air force men and aviators of one kind and another used to be divided into two groups: the lighter-than-air craft pushers, and the heavier-than-air craft converts. Then a series of disasters sent the British R-101, the United States Shenandoah and Akron hurtling to earth and sea with precious loads of men. Those who favoured lighter-than-air craft in United States, Great Britain and France were few in number after those terrible accidents. But the Germans continued building dirigibles like the Graf Zeppelin, the great ship that shuttled back and forth across the South Atlantic ocean so successfully. Then came the Hindenburg—designed for regular service across the North Atlantic, the stormiest bit of ocean used as a regular trade and passenger route. The aeroplane men scoffed, but the Germans went right ahead and did an unheard of thing—announced a spring, summer and fall schedule for 20 transatlantic crossings this year. The first trip, west and east, was hailed as a great accomplishment; then the Hindenburg dropped from the front pages to a mere mention, like that of ships coming and going. The Hindenburg completed her 20 crossings, always arriving on the day set forth months before, and always leaving on the scheduled day. She carried 1,001 passengers this season and not one of those passengers became a case of air-sickness, so smooth were the journeys. This may be laid partly to the size of the ship; partly to the efficiency of the officers; but more to the system of navigation than any other single thing. The Hindenburg avoided storms. Keeping in close touch with weather bureaus on both sides of the Atlantic, and with ships at sea below her, the airship was routed far around

TEN YEARS AGO IN TIMMINS

From data in the Porcupine Advance Files.

A provincial audit made of the town's books in 1926 had cost the town $4520.64 up to the end of October of that year. The Advance reported. It had shown that there was nothing wrong with the manner in which the corporation's business had been conducted. Much of the report was given in the newspaper at that time and it occupied columns of space. One statement made by the auditors was that the tax collector owed the town nearly $500. The Advance interviewed this gentleman, who said he had been let out by the 1926 council early in the year and was not given a chance to straighten up the accounts between the town and himself. He knew he had collected some town money that had not been paid over, but was given no opportunity to find out how much. So he had left a blank cheque with the town clerk at that time. He also pointed out to The Advance that there was very little being done in the way of collecting unpaid taxes. Just before he had been let out, he had made arrangements to issue distress warrants against those who had not paid their income tax for the previous year. These were about to be executed when the council countermanded the order.

Twenty-three men were hard at it growing whiskers ten years ago this month in preparation for the big whiskering contest at the annual Charity Turkey Stag, sponsored then by the Knights of Columbus and the redoubtable "Lap" Laprairie. Latest aspirants were L. A. Cohen, M. Cowdery, G. S. Cox, G. Lucke, W. Lawrence, D. Lavigne, Tom Lainsbury, John W. Burns and Geo. Elms. Barbers who had entered the contest to see who could trim the neatest vandyske were A. G. Carson and J. E. Cooper. An added attraction of the stag was to be a moose-calling contest.

One of the most largely attended A.S.D. Club affairs was held ten years ago this week. Miss Nellie Studer had been in charge of arrangements. Mrs. S. L. Honey and N. Cheedie won the lucky number prize.

Charles McLean, 62 years of age, who had been in Timmins less than half a year, was killed here ten years ago this week. He had been employed by a local man digging a sewer trench from the street to his home. The piling around the trench had given way and Mr. McLean was buried in the sand. Frantic efforts were made to uncover him but it was too late. He had died of internal injuries. He was survived here by four sons and one daughter, Mrs. H. Hudson. Other members of the family lived in the family home in Nova Scotia and in the United States. Burial was at Nictaux, N.S.

Hugh Burrill, who played senior hockey in Timmins for three years, 1920, 21 and 22, died in Toronto ten years ago after having undergone an operation. He had worked here for the Mattagami Pulp and Paper Company, the Dominion Bank and Harris Abbott and had been transferred to Toronto. He had married Miss L. Maitlis here, and was just 32 years old when he died.

A dance given by the Hollinger Recreation Club ten years ago was a well-attended affair.

A reward for information leading to the arrest of the murderer of Inspector Constable at Cochrane ten years ago was raised from $1000 to $2000 by the Ontario Government. Since the Town of Cochrane had offered $1000 for this same information, there was $3000 in all to be had.

Frank McGuire, who made a real name in hockey teams of Northern Ontario and who played several times for Timmins, was signed ten years ago by the Pittsburgh Pirates. He was said to be getting one of the biggest salaries paid at that time. The previous year he had been with Minneapolis.

J. E. McCoshen returned to Timmins ten years ago with a number of rich samples from a property near O'Brien, Quebec, in which he was interested.

Thomas Torrance was named returning officer for the provincial elections of the fall of 1926 in Cochrane South.

Despite unpleasant Halloween weather, the dance sponsored ten years ago by the Ramblers Club was a fine success.

Charlie Pennie provided the surprise at the Schumacher Cribbage club ten years ago this week, when he defeated J. G. Reynolds, undefeated until that time.

Sir Henry Thornton and Lady Thornton were visitors to Timmins ten years ago. The chairman of the board and president of the Canadian National Railways was much impressed with what he saw of Timmins and promised even closer co-operation with the T. and N. O. Railway in serving Northern Ontario. The railway officials' train was a special one that arrived here at 3:30 one afternoon. The mayor and council, mine managers, board of trade officials and others met them at the station. From Timmins the party went to Iroquois Falls.

Smallpox that had threatened to sweep through Timmins, was under control ten years ago this week. The Advance reported at that time. "All that is required now is continued co-operation between the public and the authorities," said The Advance.

Several people in Cochrane seemed to have seen the murderer of Inspector Constable there ten years ago. They gave evidence at the inquest to the effect that they had seen a man running through yards just about the time of the murder. Descriptions of the man did not tally. The coroner's jury found the expected verdict "murder by person or persons unknown," but they added a rider: "and that in view of the numerous unsolved murders in the District of Cochrane a member of the criminal investigation department should be stationed permanently at Cochrane."

Toronto Kiwanians were guests of the Timmins club ten years ago this week. A banquet was tendered them at the Empire hotel.

One of the most popular features of a hand concert held at the Goldfields theatre on Sunday evening ten years ago this week was the playing of a violin quartette in which Miss Vieno Pirtisalo, Jack Nielson, Jack Craig and Burton Holland took part. Miss Dorothy Porter was the accompanist.

One hundred and twenty-five Cornish people turned up for the first meeting of the Cornish Social Club ten years ago this week. It was held in the Hollinger hall and there was a fine programme for this initial evening. The success of the club was almost assured from the beginning.

Locals in The Advance of ten years ago included:—"Mrs. H. P. Shantz, of Weston, Ont., is visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Boyd." "Mrs. J. Gurnell left on Tuesday for an extended visit at her former home at Elora, Ont." "Dr. J. A. McInnis is on a visit to Toronto where he is attending a conference in connection with the Provincial Liberal party." "Mrs. Wm. J. Tierney, of Allumette Island, accompanied by Master Ebby, is at present visiting friends in Timmins." "Miss McDermott returned on Thursday last from a three months' holiday trip to Southern sections of this province and to parts of the United States." "Mrs. T. A. Barnett announces the marriage of her daughter, Florence, to Mr. George William Springham, on Monday, October 18th, 1926, at the Church of St. Andrew and St. Paul, Montreal." "Mrs. J. W. Fogg left this week for Battle Creek, Michigan, for special medical treatment. Mr. Fogg accompanied her. Her many friends will sincerely wish Mrs. Fogg a speedy and complete recovery. She has been troubled for some time past with sciatica and rheumatism." "Two motor cars collided at the corner of Fourth and Pine on Monday afternoon, both cars suffering quite a bit of damage from the collision. The accident was apparently just one of those unlooked-for accidents that will occur to the most careful drivers on occasion, and with no one in particular to be blamed for the matter." "Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Seguin, of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., were guests during the past few days of Mr. and Mrs. A. Seguin of Schumacher. The young couple from Sault Ste. Marie were on their honeymoon, the tour including a visit to the groom's brother at Schumacher and a visit to this famous gold mining camp. The bride and groom have both been for several years on the staff of the Sault Ste. Marie Star, Mr. Seguin being foreman of the job department, and Mrs. Seguin a skilled linotype operator. They paid a fraternal visit to The Advance office while in the camp. They returned this week to take up residence in Sault Ste. Marie." "Miss Nell V. Lannan, of Port Colborne, Ont., is visiting her sister, Mrs. A. R. Harkness." "Senator Gerald White, of Pembroke was a visitor to Timmins last week." "Born—in Timmins, Ont., on Wednesday, October 29th, 1926, to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Richey—a daughter (Doreen Vera)." "Mr. and Mrs. U. Aubry and Mr. and Mrs. J. Aubry returned on Sunday from a two weeks' vacation spent in Ottawa." "Born—in Timmins, on October 25th, 1926, to Mr. and Mrs. A. Ayotte—a daughter (Lauretta Antonia)." "The death of Ernie Tate, former Timmins baseball player and a man who was popular throughout the district, brought a message of sympathy from people in Iroquois Falls. The baseball club there sent a wreath to the funeral in Timmins and the Broke Hustler, Iroquois Falls' newspaper paid high tribute to him as a sportsman." "A real pioneer of the North—a man who had lived well within the confines of Northern Ontario for 85 years, died at Bear Island, Temagami lake, in the fall of 1926. He was John Turner, former factor of the Hudson's Bay company post at Temagami and the man who had established it there. He had also been stationed at the company's post at Temiskaming, Que., for some years. He had been born a good deal farther north than either of those two places—at Moose Factory, the company's ancient post on an island near the mouth of the Moose river. His parents were English and Indian. In 1877 he had built and opened the Temagami post and lived there until the company installed a new factor. Then he had his wife opened Temagami's first stopping place, the Lakeview House on Bear Island. One son, George, and one daughter, Mrs. Charles Moore were living there in 1926. There were also a number of grandchildren, two of whom had entered the service of the company. Mr. Turner's funeral service was conducted by a Roman Catholic priest who came up from North Bay. He was buried in a spot near the company's post that he had marked with two birch poles a short time before his grave." "Elections in 1926 were deferred until January 1st by a special by-law of the council. Other by-laws passed included one closing the grocery stores on Wednesday afternoons throughout the year, except during December." "Word was received in Timmins just ten years ago this week that S. A. Caldwell had been appointed crown attorney for the district of Cochrane, succeeding J. M. Greer, of Cochrane, who had just previously resigned from the post." "This was the text of a note received ten years ago by Chief of Police Parsons of Cochrane, just after the murderer of Provincial Inspector T. H. Constable: "Take warning. One spotter has been bumped off. There are two more to follow. A word to the wise should be sufficient. O.T.A." The note was printed on plain white paper and was regarded as a valuable clue in the mystery surrounding the murder of the inspector. It was felt at the time that the inspector had been killed because he was discharging his duty too well for the comfort of certain "bootleg kings" in the district town." "A young man who was sentenced to two years less one day in reformatory for having passed a worthless cheque in Toronto, had a criminal record that dated from 1913 and took in towns all over the Dominion. T. F. King, of Timmins, had one of the man's cheques that he had accepted in South Porcupine in 1913 for ten dollars. It had been returned marked "no funds." "Dogs taxes and babies were all in evidence," said the correspondent of The Advance in a report from South Porcupine, telling of a council meeting there. The idea of bringing the whole family along was to prove that Mr. So-and-so was a married man and should not be taxed as a single man. They were all requested to appear at court in Timmins during the week and the Tisdale council agreed not to contest these cases they felt had been proven." "Schumacher's new $200,000 public school was nearly completely in the fall of 1926. The Advance correspondent there reported. Twelve classrooms, with all conveniences, and modern basement playrooms were provided. The school was said to be one of the finest in the province."

HANDSOME QUILTED WALL HANGINGS AND CUSHION COVERS IN CLEMATIS DESIGN.

This wall hanging of Italian red satin with Clematis Vine quilted border is a handsome and colourful setting for the quaint mirror.

Quilting continues its popularity for a wide variety of articles besides quilts. Sofa cushion covers with the indented stitchery are smart, whether in pale shades for bedroom chaise lounges, and chairs, or in richer tones for living rooms. Quilted hangings to go behind mirrors or framed pictures are novel and effective. Occasionally furniture is upholstered in quilted textiles. Bags are quilted; trimmings for evening wraps are sometimes quilted, or the garment itself. Haadkerchief cases, covers and all sorts of accessories have the ornamentation of quilting.

Method
The work is so simple and so remarkably effective, that it appeals to the home decorator. The design can be traced onto white muslin, the muslin be covered with wadding on the other side, and another textile, plain and handsome, such as silk or satin, back the wadding. Baste all three layers together with precision. Then with silk to match the outside surface material follow the traced design using a rather fine running stitch. Do not use a coarse silk thread as its ornamental function is to indent the design. So a fine thread should be used, of good strong silk. When tracing a pattern on cloth it is advisable to have the muslin starched so that it will not rumple, and distort the lines. The stitchery is done on the muslin backing. All stitches must go through the three layers, thus, besides indenting the design, they bind the layers of material together.

Old-Time Religious Life and Modern Science at Oka
Mediaeval religious life is fused with modern scientific agricultural methods in the monastery at Oka on the Lake of Two Mountains, near Montreal, according to a writer in the October issue of "The C-I-L Oval." The monastery was founded fifty-five years ago by a small band of Trappist monks who came out from France. The order was originally established in 1098. At Oka the monks rise at two in the morning for service in the chapel, they work in the fields or on their model farm all day, they eat frugally, foregoing all meat, they retire early and sleep fully clothed on hard straw mattresses. The priests wear a white habit with black scapular, the brothers a brown robe.
