Taxes on Mines May Be Reduced in 1937

In any Event There Will Be No Increase in Mines Taxation, Says Hon. T. A. Crerar

Speaking at a meeting of the Canadian Club at Montreal this week, Hon. T. A. Crerar, Minister of Mines for the Dominion, made it clear that the intention of the present government is to use the mining industry as fairly as possible, encouraging the industry in every way especially in the matters of taxation. Hon. Mr. Crerar was quoted as saying that the government hopes to be able to reduce taxation on the mining industry next year, and that in any event it may be taken as a definite fact that there will be no increase in mine taxes, so far as the Dominion is concerned. Apparently, the government has come to the conclusion, suggested in these columns on several occasions, that even in the matter of gathering taxes it would be better to encourage mining and take the benefit of the increase in general taxation resulting from new business and revived industry, rather than to stifle or handicap the industry by burdensome taxation.

Hon. Mr. Crerar told the Montreal Canadian Club that the development of Canada's natural resources, particularly in mines, is most important in the improvement of Canadian business, and the government intends to encourage the primary industries in every way. Outlining the means of assisting the industry which included development of transportation facilities, he declared: "It should be our public policy definitely to encourage mining."
Canada's gold output this year will reach the $133,000,000 mark and metal mines will pay dividends totalling about $75,000,000 Mr. Crerar believed.

He added primary industry development increased revenue, enabled cutting down of public debt burdens and was a better method of helping the return of better times than direct scaling down of the debts themselves.

Those in the North where so much of the mining industry of Canada is centred were much cheered by the report of Hon. Mr. Crerar's address.

Christmas War Cry This Year Specially Attractive

Anything the Salvation Army undertakes is well done. This principle applies with double force to the Christmas number of the War Cry, the official publication of the Army in Canada. Other Christmas numbers have been specially good—the 1936 issue is an extra special. Paper, printing, illustrations, contents—all are particularly good this year, and the Christmas War Cry is on sale a little earlier than usual. Major Hillier having already received his quota here. The issue is attractive enough to appeal to many as a particularly pleasing little gift for Christmas. Printed in colours on good quality paper and attractively arranged and with a profusion of illustrations, most of them in colours, and numerous interesting stories and articles, all with the true Christmas favour, the 1936 Christmas War Cry will please most people. The frontispiece shows a Christmas dinner scene, where a little while is the guest at a family table, while in the background appears the real Guest of Christmas Day. The back cover gives artistic representation of the "Star of Bethlehem." On the inside front cover are shown striking winter scenes in Canada, while the inside back cover pictures Salvation Army Christmas Tree, with Santa Claus, and some of the many happy little guests; Commissioner and Mrs. McMillan enjoying a delightful Christmas party in the Toronto children's home; a hostel Christmas dinner party; baskets and bags for Christmas cheer.

The stories and articles will be found of equal interest the beautiful illustrations adding to their effectiveness. Listed among the contents will be noted—"The Kingdom That Began in the Little Village of Bethlehem," by the Founder; "Ring Ye Christmas Bells," by Commissioner John McMillan; "Social Flotsam and Jetsam"; "Bob McCarthy's Christmas Dream," by Brigadier H. C. Carter; "The Cowboy's Christmas Eve," a poem; "Melody at Midnight," by Col. John Bond; "Fifty Years of African Missionary Romance," by Africander; "A Century and a Half Without Christmas," by N. P. Elder; "The Old Contemptible's First Sober Christmas," by a Toronto Salvationist; "The Unspeakable Gift," by General Evangeline Booth; "The Case of James McKinley," as related by Brigadier Buntin; "A Happy Christmas," by Adjutant Hubert Wood; "In the Days of Is' YOUTH," by Colonel William R. Dalziel; "Christmas Before Christ"; "If Jesus Had Not Come," a poem by Major H. C. Tuttle; "Receiving Home Reformation," as described by Major Mrs. Squarebriggs; "Christmas in the Land of Morning Calm," a chat with Lieut.-Commissioner Barr; and "Christmas Comments."

Those who have liked The War Cry's Christmas numbers in past years, as so many have done, will be delighted with the 1936 issue.

Sensational Suggestions in the Small Will Case

Some years ago the Ambrose J. Small case was the sensation not only of Toronto, where he lived, but also of a much wider field. Small, who was a wealthy theatre magnate, mysteriously disappeared. There were the usual yarns suggesting foul play, and also stories that he had been seen here or there or elsewhere. A couple of years ago, for instance, there was a story to the effect that he had been located at a small town near Detroit. From the first many favoured the belief that Small had met with foul play. After it had been discovered that a large amount of bonds had been lost from the estate, John Doughty, Small's secretary, was placed on trial for the taking of these bonds and was given a term in penitentiary. Later, Small was declared officially dead, but there was no one tried for his death, though repeated suggestions were made along this line by some of his relatives in the city.

There was certainly enough sensation about the Small case in past years, and now there is more. This week Toronto newspapers have had sensational reports of a case where the courts have been appealed to for the upsetting of the will of the late Mrs. Small, widow of the late Ambrose J. Small. The Mail and Empire's report is milder than some others. The Mail and Empire's account is as follows:—

"The long-drawn-out attempt to upset the wills of Mrs. Theresa Small and her husband, Ambrose J. Small, finally came to trial Monday before Mr. Justice Jeffrey in non-jury assizes.

"Attempting to set aside the letters probate of the two wills, Miss Florence Small, the plaintiff, a sister of Ambrose J. Small, is basing her move on a claim of 'perjury, forgery, and other acts contrary to the law which included that of murder.'

"She is relying in the main on an alleged confession, bearing the signature 'T. Small,' which purports to place the major responsibility for the death of Ambrose Small on his widow. The document states that Small was murdered and that part of his body was burned in the furnace of his Grand Opera House and parts were buried in Rosedale ravine.

"Small disappeared in December, 1919. Mrs. Small, who was chief beneficiary of his estate, died in 1935, leaving most of her $2,000,000 estate to the Catholic church.

"Roy C. Greenaway, newspaper reporter, the first witness called by Paul Hinds, plaintiff's counsel, related an interview he had had with Mrs. Small about five years before her death.

"Her expressed theory as to her husband's death at that time, Greenaway said, was that he had been accidentally killed in a scuffle over money with John Doughty. That his body had been taken out of the office by an unused stairway.

"Frederick Osborne, 72, former caretaker of the opera house, testified Doughty had offered him $20,000 to help him get rid of Small.

"Frederick Shields, who said he had been having a few drinks in the theatre cellar with James Cowan that day, swore he overheard 'terrible' language and a threat to throw Small into the furnace.

"John Spencer, theatre caretaker at the time of Small's disappearance, described the wreckage of the office furniture which he had to clean up next day."

To Have Baby Clinic at South Porcupine

Decision Reached Last Night at Meeting of Schumacher Lions Club.

South Porcupine is to have a baby clinic, it was definitely decided at last night's meeting of the Schumacher Lions Club. Dr. Harper has been left in charge of buying equipment and is to select a place in which to hold the clinic.

T. R. Langdon reported to the club that at a joint meeting of the Porcupine district service clubs, the Kiwanis had definitely decided not to organize a club in South Porcupine. Service club work will be carried on there by the Schumacher Lions, whose name will probably be changed in the near future to Tisdale Lions, until such time as South Porcupine is able to have a club to serve that community alone.

Next week's meeting of the club is to be at South Porcupine. Maxwell Smith, W. S. Blake, and T. R. Langdon are in charge.

Work has been begun in getting the Schumacher rink ready for the season and first floods will be put on this week, it is expected.

Students Learn How Mail is Dealt With

Illustrated Addresses to the High & Vocational School by Postmaster E. H. King

Hundreds of students at the Timmins High and Vocational school learned yesterday and this morning how the Canadian Post office department handles mail of every type. They saw pictures of the methods of handling mail, by dog teams and ships, by trains and tractors, by motorcycle and truck, by foot and automobile. His Majesty's mail service that covers the whole of Canada was explained in detail; the trials and troubles and delays that are caused by people who address mail carelessly or incorrectly were clearly shown; the many other kinds of services performed by the post office in addition to the delivery of mail were set forth.

At the invitation of W. W. Tanner, principal of the school, E. H. King, Timmins postmaster, presented a talk to students yesterday afternoon and again this morning to a different group.

Slides Show Methods
Students were able to follow a letter from the time it is written until it is delivered. Slides supplied by the government showed clearly every detail of the service; pick-up from the letter boxes, sorting at the post office and in the train, delivery from the train to the local post office, sorting, and placing in boxes or in the home.

Registration of letters, insuring of parcels, sending money through the mails by money order and postal note—all these extra services of the department were detailed.

The impression that will probably linger longest with the students is that mail should be placed in the hands of the post office just as soon as possible in order to avoid delay—particularly during the Christmas season when the volume rises so far above the average that many offices are swamped with mail.

Famous Opera and Concert Star Passes at Age of 75

Madame Ernestine Schumann-Heink, famous and beloved operatic and concert singer, died on Tuesday at her home at Hollywood, California. At the time of death she was 75 years old, her birthday being in June. She had been in fair health until recently. Last Saturday she suffered a renewed attack of an ailment which caused hemorrhages of the throat and lungs. Several transfusions of blood were given in the hope of saving her life, and on Monday night she appeared to have rallied slightly but the end came the next day. Born in Austria, the late operatic star made a great name for herself at an early age through the wonderful voice she possessed and her friendly personality. She lacked beauty of person but made up for this by her charm and attractive disposition. She made what might be termed four successful careers—first as an operatic star, then as a noted concert singer, and next after "retiring" at the age of 60, she became famous in her vaudeville appearances in America. Her fourth triumph was in the role of radio artist. She also was signed on by Metro-Goldwyn-Meyer for leading roles in motion pictures where her beautiful voice was an asset.

During the war Mrs. Schumann-Heink became one of the most loved figures in the world. She sang constantly to American soldiers in camps, with her children tragically divided in both armies. Those born in Austria had enlisted with the Austro-German forces, and those born in the United States enlisted in the American army. She was known to the American army as "Mother of all the Dough-boys." During the war she made her home in San Diego, Calif., where she lived until 1919 when she returned to Europe for a "farewell tour."

Married three times—to Ernest Heink in 1882, for whom she bore four children—to Paul Schumann, who died shortly before she made America her home in 1904, and to William Rapp a year later—Mrs. Schumann-Heink has lived to see great-grandchildren at her side.

Death at Cobourg of Mrs. Mary Lavallee

Former Resident of Timmins Passed Away Last Wednesday.

Word was received this week of the death at Cobourg hospital of Mrs. Mary Lavallee, who passed away on Wednesday, Nov. 11th. The late Mrs. Lavallee was the wife of William Lavallee formerly of Mattagami Heights, but now said to be living in the Sandy Falls district. Mrs. Lavallee will be remembered by many here, as she lived for some years with Mrs. M. Moffatt at the Cairns hospital here, later going to Kirkland Lake when Mrs. Moffatt moved there. When Mrs. Moffatt moved to Rouyn in 1926, Mrs. Lavallee went to a Toronto hospital.

The late Mrs. Lavallee, whose maiden name was Mary Wheatley, was born in England, some forty years ago. Her mother still lives in the Old Land. Mrs. Lavallee came with her husband to Timmins in 1916, Mr. Lavallee, marrying while overseas on active service in the Canadian forces.

Lunches Must Not be Served in Ontario Beverage Rooms

E. G. Odette, Ontario liquor commissioner, said at Toronto on Tuesday in announcing suspension of the beverage room license of the American hotel, Kitchener, he would not tolerate the serving of lunches, free or purchased, in Ontario beverage rooms.

No representations have been made to him by hotelmen to permit such service, Mr. Odette said.

"Beverage rooms are to be used for the serving of beer only," he said. "Every hotel which wishes to serve food along with beer will have to have an authority permitting the serving of beer and wine in its dining room. And then it must confine such service to the dining room and not extend it to the beverage room.

"Sandwiches and free lunches in beverage rooms are strictly against regulations and will not be tolerated."

Mr. Odette said dishes of pretzels and crackers on beverage room tables constitute a technical violation of regulations.

"But we are not checking up that closely," he said.

The commissioner said the Kitchener license would be restored in two or three days.

"It is pretty severe punishment," he remarked.

Magistrate is Appointed for Rouyn and District

Rouyn becomes a judicial district with the appointment of Jean Fautoux as district magistrate at Rouyn. Mr. Fautoux, who comes from Montreal will take up residence in Rouyn in the near future to fry both civil and criminal cases with his jurisdiction in the North embracing as centres, Ville Marie, Amos and Val d'Or. The appointment was arranged, according to advice at the Rouyn Town Hall, when Mayor Gagne was in Quebec City two weeks ago.

For some time it has been urged that the town of Rouyn have its own resident magistrate and the desirability of making this a judicial centre was pointed out by Paul Cudihy, Rouyn barrister, when acting as chairman at the banquet reception of the Ottawa Board of Trade members at Rouyn a few weeks ago, at which Senator Lucien Moreau was present and who Mr. Cudihy asked on that occasion to use his influence in bringing about the establishment of a district magistrate at Rouyn.
