Canadian Ford Head Expects Good Year

Big Programme of Expansion Planned by Ford Company.

(By Wallace R. Campbell, President, Ford Motor Company of Canada, Ltd.) Closing a year in which substantial progress was accomplished, Canada is preparing to set out upon a new year which promises even greater achievement in the forward march of the Dominion.

Reliable barometers indicate that 1937 should be a good year. Our internal economy shows continued improvement. Our dealings with nations abroad continue to expand in volume.

Most indications point to better times ahead. Our progress during the year to come should be as great, perhaps greater, than during 1936. Of one thing we are sure; the opportunities will be there. It devolves upon us to take advantage of them and to extract from them every possible benefit.

So far as Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, is concerned, we look toward the future with great confidence. We are confident that our markets, both here in Canada and in our Empire territories overseas will increase substantially during the next few years. So confident are we of this that we are now preparing to invest more than $5,500,000 in expansion and modernization of our productive plant in order to allow us to take advantage of the greater business we see ahead.

The programme will involve expansion of our present manufacturing plant in Windsor, at a cost of building and equipment of $1,700,000; construction of an entirely new body building and final assembly plant costing, for building and equipment, $3,300,000; construction of a new assembly branch at Vancouver, B.C., at a cost of $400,000, and erection of a new $50,000 warehouse adjoining our present branch at Regina, Sask.

The programme is the most ambitious undertaken by our company since the construction of the present manufacturing plant, erection of the power house and purchase of the greater part of the present site, completed in 1924. The entire programme will be under way early in the new year and should be completed before the year is out.

The building programme is a corollary of the project which got under way in 1935, with expansion and modernization of the power house, and the construction and equipment of a new electric furnace building. The cost of these two items ran to $2,800,000.

The entire programme when completed will enable us to increase our production capacity by some 25 per cent, as well as to consolidate all manufacturing operations in the two large plants.

During the past three years our business both here and abroad has staged a most satisfactory comeback. We are confident that the progress will continue for the next few years. The new manufacturing facilities will enable us to take advantage of this situation.

Weather Last Year in Haileybury Area

Two Weather Records Broken in Dying Hours of the Year.

Haileybury, Jan. 7th—Special to The Advance—More than eight feet of snow fell in this section during the twelve months of 1936, the official thermometer had a range of nearly 129 degrees between zenith and nadir, and two weather records were broken in the period (one of them in the dying hours of the year), according to a summary of the year's records prepared by James Reavell, representative in the district for the Meteorological Service of Canada.

Mr. Reavell's figures disclose that, on July 13, when the temperature soared to an all-time high since records were first kept in 1894, the record breaking point of 101.4 degrees was reached. The other record went smash on December 31, when in 24 hours a total wind mileage of 523 was recorded, the average velocity being 22 miles per hour. There were only 12 calm hours during the month and 287 throughout the year. Rainfall during 1936 was 22.12 inches, and snowfall was 96.9 inches. The average temperature was 35.8 degrees and the minimum touched during the year was only 27.2 below. To this total precipitation of 31.8 inches (in terms of rain), December itself contributed 1.02 inches of rain and 11.6 inches of snow, the total of 2.18 being .05 below average. Mean temperature for the month was 16.4 degrees, against an average for the 42 years of 13.1 degrees. The maximum of 48 degrees compares with a record for the month of 50.8, the minimum of 14 below being away under the record in this respect, which is 38 below.

The month was much windier than usual, the instrument recording 6116 wind miles, with an average velocity of 8.2 miles and a maximum velocity from the southwest of 29 miles an hour. Prevailing winds came from the southeast, with 237 hours and 1748 miles, 510 of these continuous blowing.

Former Residents as Witnesses at Enquiry

Interesting Evidence at Fire Marshal's Investigation at Sudbury This Week.

Despatches from Sudbury tell of a man who said his business was put up for auction for rent arrears and he did not know about it until the next day; also that he did not have time to become acquainted with the books for the business which was conducted by his wife and son; and further there was reference to the man's wife who was credited by the Deputy Fire Marshal in charge of the enquiry with having three fires in Timmins before she left this town. One despatch from Sudbury gives the following interesting details:

Elais Aboud, proprietor of the Virginia Dress Shop, scene of two mysterious fires last October, professed widespread ignorance of his business affairs when he testified at Sudbury on Tuesday at an inquiry being conducted by Deputy Fire Marshal W. H. Springer. When his business, run by his wife and son, went up for auction for rent in arrears, he didn't know it till the next day, he told Crown Attorney Wilkins, who is assisting in the investigation.

N. S. Dabous, also in the ladies' wear business, testified that he bought the stock at auction for $170. "It was worth easily $400," he said. "That same day I sold the goods back to Mr. Aboud's son for $200. Mr. Aboud's son then went back into business."

"If you had no money to pay the rent where did your son get the $200?" Mr. Wilkins asked Aboud. "I don't know," was the reply. "Did the Virginia Dress Shop keep books?" he was asked. "I must have," said Aboud. "Every business has to keep them. But he saw them only once, he said, adding: 'I had no time to look.'"

Mr. Wilkins told the fire marshal that Aboud's wife, who had been in business in Timmins before coming to Sudbury, had had three fires there. "How much insurance did she get?" he queried Mr. Aboud. "I never asked her and she never told me," was the answer. "You keep your secrets yet," admired the marshal. "The last fire was in 1920."

Mr. Aboud pressed ignorance of the fact that his son had increased the insurance on the dress shop just before the fire. He did not know there had been a fire.

A detective-bred fireman and a school boy with a nose for the unusual brought about the inquiry, it was revealed. Lieut. D. Lefebvre, of the Sudbury Fire Department, who attended a fire at the Virginia Shop on Oct. 13, was the first witness. He found a small fire in the shed adjoining the rear of the premises, he stated. The blaze was in a bushel basket which had been shoved under a hole punched in the partition between the shed and the shop. "I could see no reason for the fire's cause," he said. "A hole was chopped by firemen in the partition to gain admittance to the shop. There a second basket was found containing torn pieces of cardboard, a straw hat and a candle."

The second basket was left there, Lieut. Lefebvre related, and that same night he slipped into the shop and hid there for two hours. No one came. On his departure he took away a torn cardboard box which he found in the shop, and which matched torn cardboard in the basket.

The following night Armand Beauchamp, 14, saw a light through the window of the same shed. Although neighbours told him it was only the stove, he grew suspicious and went in through a broken window. There he found that the candle in the basket was alight. The neighbours were brought to the scene and the police called.

The candle in the basket was directed under the hole in the partition that had been made by firemen the night before, police stated. "Somebody certainly was trying to burn the place down," Constables J. Beaudoin and Alex McLaren stated. Their investigations had been unsuccessful.

Expect John Wah to be Hanged on Friday

Not Thought That Any Clemency Will be Shown by Ottawa.

John Wah, Timmins Chinese who was convicted at Cochrane of the murder at Timmins of Woon Hong, will hang at Haileybury to-morrow, unless something extraordinary intervenes.

Representations have been made recently to the department of justice at Ottawa to have Wah's sentence commuted but so far these have been unavailing. Wah's only claim is that the whole story did not come out at the preliminary hearing here or at the trial in Cochrane.

It was proven to the satisfaction of the jury at Cochrane that Wah had stabbed Hong with a butcher knife at a Pine street south Chinese grocery store and boarding house in November of 1935.
