Sauces Play Big Part Make Dinners Palatable

Good Cooking Requires a Variety of Seasoning, Which Adds to the Natural Flavourings. "No Good Cookery Without Sauces" is a True and Well-known Saying.

Good cooking and fine cooking. Are they the same? Let us define the first. The preparation of foods so that the most is made of natural flavours and

These are, of course, general statements from which you may take many exceptions. In the first place in good cooking, we use a variety of seasonings, which adds to the natural flavours. In the second place sauces are not, of course, to be used with every dish, which can be justly described as finely cooked. We may say, however, that there can be no fine cookery without the proper use of sauces.

Escoffier stated that "a sauce should be smooth, light, without being liquid, glossy to the eye, decided to the taste. When these conditions are fulfilled, it is always easy to digest, even for a tired stomach." There are to be found in various cook books literally hundreds of sauces under various titles, which fulfill Escoffier's specifications. If, however, the recipes are analyzed it will be found that most hot sauces are variations of a few standard sauces, the white sauce or the veloute, the brown sauce or Espagnole and the Hollandaise. Most cold sauces are variations of mayonnaise, creamed butters or French dressings.

The usual American idea of a white sauce is quite different from the original French concept, which is made with white stock and from which milk is absent. As most of our households do not have on hand at all times rich stock, some of which has been evaporated ated to such a point that it is highly flavoured, milk is commonly used. It would be a good rule, however, if it were used as only part of the liquid unless cheese or some other highly-flavoured ingredient is added. A sauce made with what is known as a white roux, butter and flour blended together and milk generally deserve the scorn which epicures heap upon it. Vegetable or meat stock to which has been added a slice of carrot and onion, a sprig or two of parsley, a bay leaf and a clove or two before it is boiled down and strained will give character when it is used with milk.

The addition of cream to a white sauce will produce what is known as a Bechamel. If eggs and lemon juice are added in addition to the cream the sauce may be called Allemande. If grated cheese is added we may call the sauce Soubise. Other sauces take their names from the particular ingredient which gives them their characteristic flavour. There is mushroom, for instance, for which I like to cook the mushrooms themselves in the butter before the flour is added. The liquid may be stock, made by cooking the stems in water, and milk and cream. On the other hand for pimento sauce I add the minced seasoning when the sauce is ready to be served.

For brown sauce which is also known as Espagnole, the flour must be browned in the butter before the liquid is added. The liquid for this sauce is always a rich stock which may be combined with tomato puree, fruit juices or vegetable stock. This stock is always highly seasoned. If minced vegetables are added, it may be called Jardiniere. Italiane demands minced ham, vegetables and herbs. Bigarade demands orange rinds and juice. Fermiere calls for minced onion, bacon, tomatoes and capers.

Because the successful sauce depends upon the fine blending of a variety of flavours, you may be as original as you like in developing either a white or a brown sauce, remembering, however, that the first is subtle and delicate in flavour and that the latter is savory and piquant. Perhaps you may obtain future fame through the contribution of a new sauce to cookery.

White Sauce

- 2 tablespoons butter
 - 2 tablespoons flour
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - Pepper
 - 1 cup milk or 1/2 cup milk and 1/2 cup chicken, veal or vegetable stock.
- Melt butter, stir in flour and seasonings, and when well blended, add liquid gradually. Stir over a low fire until smooth and thick. Let boil one minute.

Mornay Sauce

Make white sauce, using one tablespoon flour. After sauce is made, stir in 1/2 cup grated hard cheese or one cup soft cheese, pressed through a strainer.

Soubise Sauce

Make white sauce and add 3/4 cup minced boiled onions and 1/4 cup cream.

Allemande Sauce

Make white sauce, using one tablespoon flour. When thick and smooth, stir in two beaten egg yolks, mixed with 1/4 cup cream. Reheat and add one teaspoon lemon juice and 1/4 teaspoon paprika.

Mushroom Sauce

Make white sauce, cooking 1/4 cup sliced mushrooms and one teaspoon minced onion in the butter five minutes before adding the flour and seasonings. Add 1/2 cup milk and 1/2 cup mushroom stock, made by cooking mushroom stems in water.

Brown Sauce

2 tablespoons butter or drippings
2 tablespoons flour
Salt, pepper
1 cup meat stock
Melt butter or drippings, stir in flour and seasonings and when well blended and brown, stir in stock gradually. Stir over a low fire until smooth and thick. Let boil one minute.

Jardiniere Sauce

Make brown sauce, cooking two tablespoons each of minced carrots and celery and one tablespoon minced onion in the butter or drippings before adding the flour. When thick and smooth, add one tablespoon minced pimento and then boil one minute.

Bigarade Sauce

Make brown sauce, replacing half the stock with orange juice and adding two tablespoons grated orange rind.

Piquante Sauce

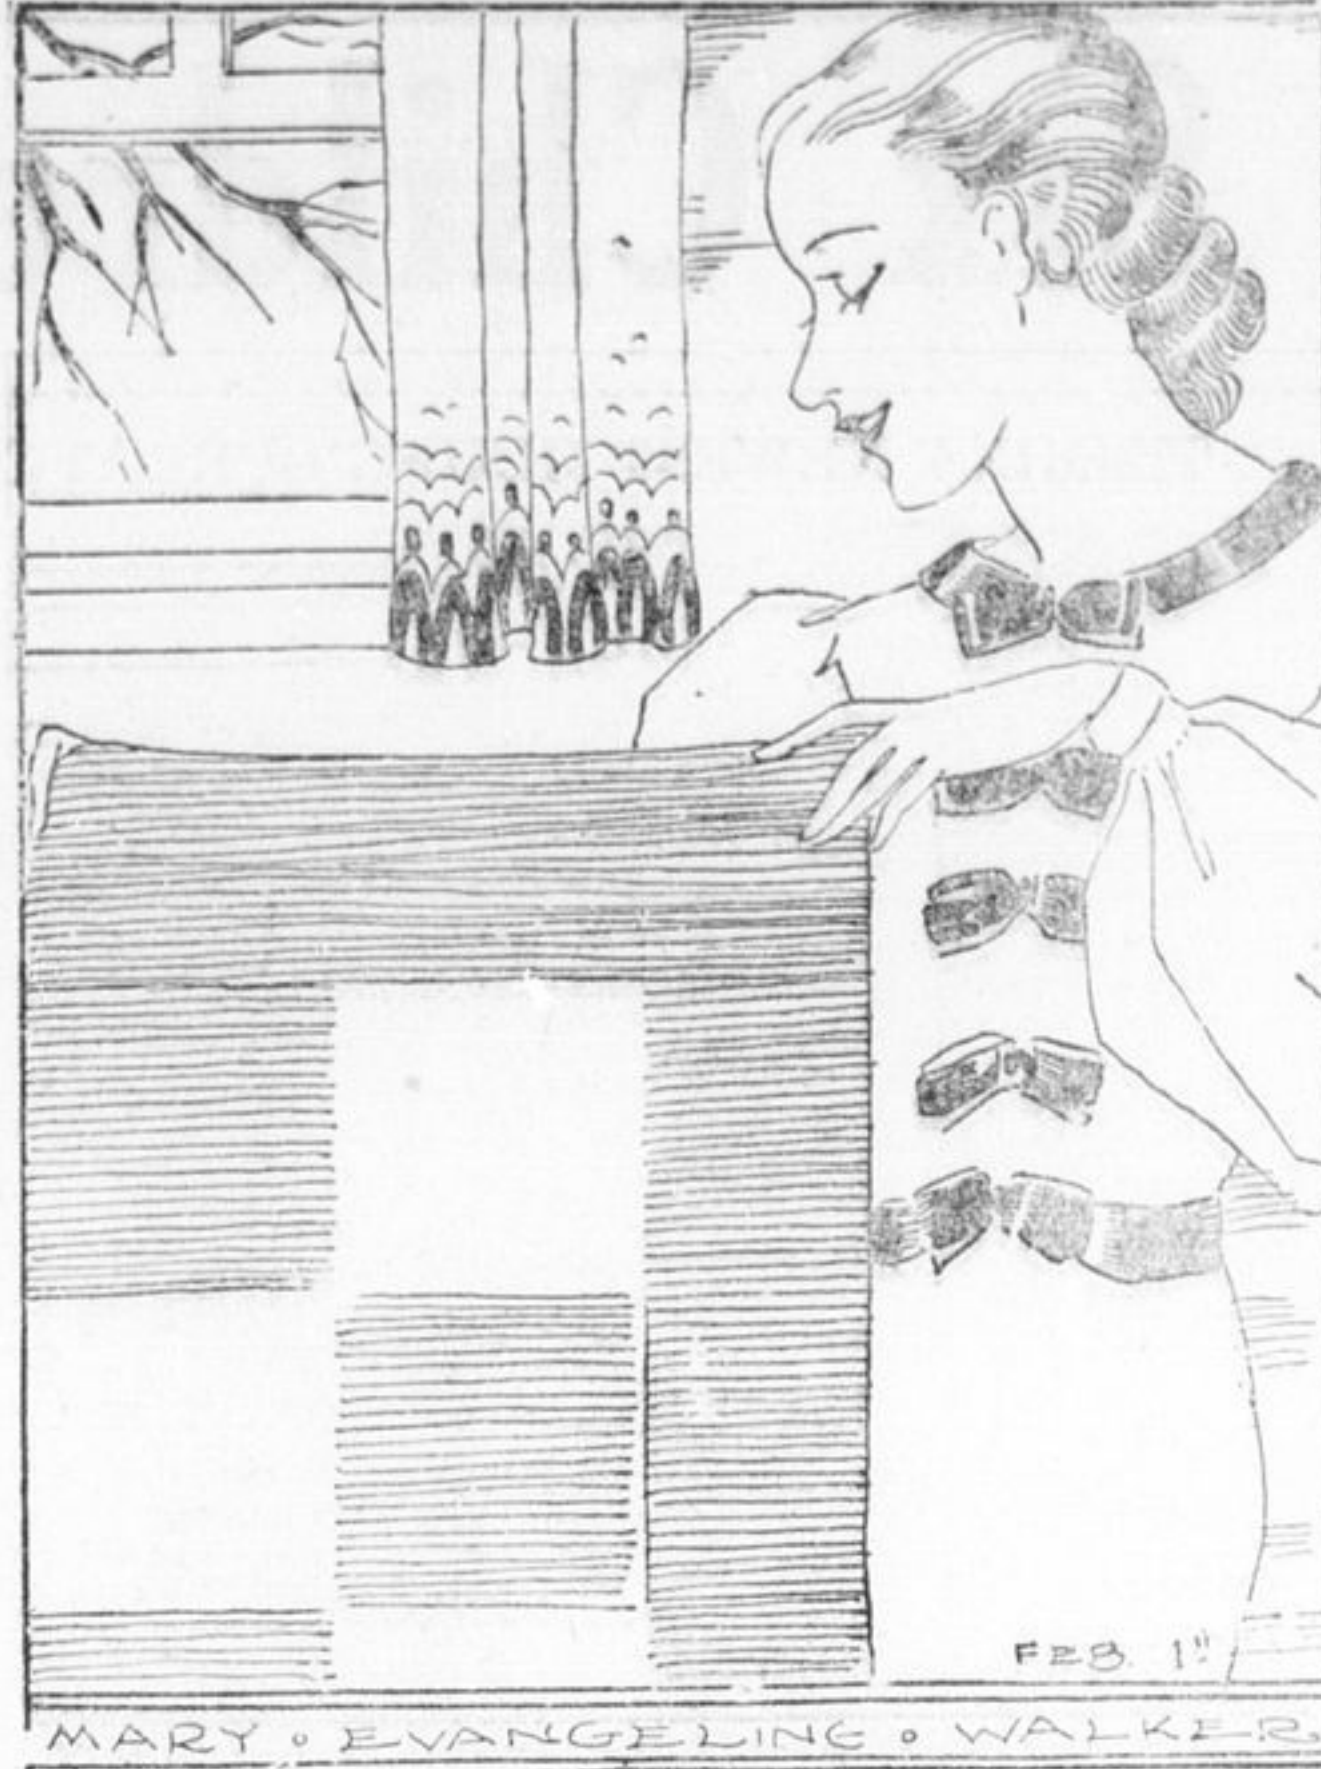

Make brown sauce and add one tablespoon vinegar, one tablespoon minced onion, one tablespoon capers, one tablespoon minced pickles and one tablespoon minced olives after the sauce is thick and smooth.

Charged with Parking Baby in Locked Motor Car

(Huntingdon Gleaner)
In a car parked near a movie theatre in Louisville, Ky., a policeman found a small boy crying lustily. The officer tried to quiet the little fellow but he cried all the more. Passersby, curious to know what the excitement was about. Soon the sidewalk and street around the car was blocked with hundreds of persons. After a while, the boy's parents Mr. and Mrs. William Urban, came out of the theatre to find their small son, Billy, aged 14 months, the centre of what seemed to be a near riot. They explained to the officer they had been in to see the movie, leaving the boy parked in the car as they had often done before without complaint from him. In police court, there was difficulty in determining the charge that should be placed against the parents. It was finally ruled that while they had indirectly been the cause of the disorder, they would not hold them for it and dismissed the case, with some pointed advice about leaving small children alone in packed cars.

The Household by Lydia Le Baron Walker

SMART RUGS IN SEVERAL CRAFTS AND DESCRIPTIONS OF PATTERNS THAT CAN BE PROCURED.

MARY EVANGELINE WALKER. Showing a section of the easy-to-make tesselated rug that has been made in crochet, but can be developed also in plain knitting.

Rug making is a fascinating occupation for a homemaker, as this form of needlecraft provides both recreation and practical returns for the house.

Hooked and Embroidered Rugs

For those who contemplate doing the practical and money-saving occupation of fashioning rugs with their own hands, the craft will repay them a hundred fold. In rugcraft are included divers needlecrafts, and the worker can suit her preferences. Hooked rugs are still having a decided vogue, but handsome rugs are by no means always hooked. Embroidered rugs are choice, excelled only by hand-knotted rugs.

Rugs in Two-Colour Crochet

Crocheted rugs can be beautiful, if a color, not in use, is crocheted over. As many as three colours can be used in this type of crochet, but two are easiest to manage in the size of strands best suited to rugcraft.

Tapstry Crochet

Genuine tapstry crochet is a further development of color work in crochet, and this is handsome as found in crocheted rugs. However, for these exquisite floor coverings, directions are somewhat different and space does not permit of describing the work in such a short article as this. Any reader interested to have directions, can be told where to secure them by writing and sending a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope to me. Address care of this newspaper.

Braided Rugs

Braided rugs have a precision of weave that is satisfying. The 4-strand braided rugs are exceptionally interesting. There is a prescribed method of handling the various strands, that is as easy as it is fascinating. Braided rugs of all kinds are durable, when braids are heavy and tightly braided. For reversible braided rugs the needle is slipped under strands, when sewing the long strip in coils for round or oval rugs.

How To Get Patterns

Patterns for the following rugs, of which I am appending a slight description, can be obtained by sending one or more dimes according to number of patterns wanted with a self-addressed stamped (3-cent) envelope with a request directed to Lydia Le Baron Walker, care of The Advance.

Tandem Couch—A smart design of a couch drawn by a tandem. A coachman sits on the box handling the reins, while through the window is seen a silhouette of a woman in quaint costume. The men are discovered riding outside, which arrangement is according to old-time custom. This pattern can be worked in cross stitch or in the two-colour crochet. It is a dime.

Tesselated Rug for crochet or knitting. An easy-to-work design that is for plain crochet or knitting and can be worked in squares or strips. Full working directions in either craft. Price a dime.

Braided Rug—developed in 4-strand braid. Directions for starting and interweaving strands, and also directions for using the braid for rugs and purposes other than rugcraft. Price a dime.

Silver Dollars to Feature George VI.

No Special Issue by the Dominion for the Coronation, However.

Canadian silver coins bearing the image of King George VI, may be in circulation at the time of the coronation. Finance Minister Dunning told the House of Commons at Ottawa last week, but no special issue was contemplated.

Martha Louise Black, Conservative member for the Yukon, wife of the former Speaker of the House, urged the government to strike silver dollars, of which 1,000,000 would be minted, as a typical Canadian token of the coronation year. It would be of assistance and encouragement to the silver mining industry.

Mrs. Black said she realized the government could not force people to use silver dollars but she was convinced the coins would be rapidly taken up as souvenirs. For every 60 cents worth of silver minted into the coins the government received $1.15, and she believed the suggestion was a practical one.

Thomas Reid (Liberal, New Westminster), supported the suggestion but said that if the idea was to popularize silver dollars "it might be as well to place on one side the image of the Duke of Windsor and on the other that of Mrs. Simpson."

Silver Certificates

Mr. Reid would go farther and have the minister of finance take over all silver and issue silver certificates. It would mean added employment, he declared, and would not disturb the country's credit. "That could be done in Canada if we had the intestinal fortitude," Mr. Reid declared.

At the time of the abdication, Mr. Dunning said, steps had been taken to mint coins with the image of former King Edward VIII. It then became necessary to start all over again and recently approval had been given to the image prepared of the present King. There was some doubt of the dies being received in time to mint George VI coins before the coronation but every effort was being made to get them.

The dollars minted for the silver jubilee of King George V had been issued to the number of 743,000 and were available at all bank branches. They had been popular, more particularly in the silver mining districts.

Conservative Leader Bennett observed that the fact large silver coins were not minted in greater quantity was due more to the unwillingness of the people to circulate them than to the unwillingness of governments to issue them.

Suspension of Hamill to be Lifted on Feb. 20th

According to word from North Bay last week, W. A. Thompson, secretary of the N.O.H.A., has announced that the suspension against "Red" Hamill, of the Copper Cliff Juniors, for an alleged assault on Victor Vergil, Scollard Hall player, after a game at North Bay on Feb. 2nd, will likely be lifted on February 20th.

This leaves the Copper Cliff player inactive for the concluding southern junior group at Sault Ste. Marie on Feb. 15th, but will free him for the association group playoff.

Another announcement credited to Secretary Thompson is to the effect that Temiskaming, holding a bye in the N.O.H.A. Junior series, has withdrawn. This will leave Copper Cliff an unobstructed route to the association playoffs, which will bring central and northern group winners into conflict for the right to represent the N.O.H.A. in the provincial playoffs.

93rd Birthday of New Liskeard Lady

(From New Liskeard Speaker)
Mrs. David Littlejohn, New Liskeard's oldest lady, celebrated her 93rd birthday at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Wm. Jelly, Rebecca street, on Tuesday, February 3rd, when a large number of friends and neighbours called to visit and have tea and a piece of the lovely birthday cake with the 93 candles, a gift of her granddaughter, Mrs. Lorne Jenkins, Timmins. It was a joyous day for this grand old lady, who was born in the early years of Queen Victoria's reign.

Born in Devonshire, England, on February 3rd, 1844, Mrs. Littlejohn's maiden name was Priscilla Kent, eldest daughter of the late John and Mary Kent, who came to Canada in the year 1857, settling in Pickering township. Later she married David Littlejohn, moving to Minesing near Barrie, Ont., where they reared a family of nine children, eight of whom are still living. In 1905 they again started pioneering in this district where they were deeply interested in the future development and activities of the North, making good headway, a comfortable home, and many friends.

Mr. Littlejohn, prominent in Casey township council and school boards, died on December 13th, 1920, shortly after the family took up residence in New Liskeard.

There are five generations living, four of whom were represented at this anniversary. Five daughters, three sons, 28 grandchildren, 45 great-grandchildren and five great-great-grandchildren are her delight in her advanced years.

Many beautiful gifts and loving messages were received from all over Canada and the United States.

About Rotary Contest for Haileybury Songs

In recent issues The Advance has had references to the contest sponsored by the Haileybury Rotary Club. This contest is for the best song that will do for Haileybury what the "Cobalt Song," and the "Porcupine Song" did for Cobalt and Timmins. Last week The Advance had several requests for particulars in regard to the Haileybury contest. In each case The Advance suggested writing direct to the Rotary Club at Haileybury. However, here is a paragraph from The Haileyburian in regard to the matter:—

"Haileybury may in time have an anthem that will rival the famous "Cobalt Song" if efforts being made by the local Rotary Club bring the hoped-for results. The club announced some weeks ago that a prize of five dollars would be given for the words of a suitable song that could be set to music and in time made popular at all local gatherings and the results so far were presented at the regular meeting on Monday, in the form of three attempts to win the prize. Two of the contributions were sent in from New Liskeard, while the other was a Haileybury writer.

"While all three of the songs submitted showed that their authors had taken considerable pains, it was decided not to close the contest for the time, as it was hoped that other writers would be coming forward with entries. Selections should not be of too great length and should be such that they can either be sung to some popular air or readily set to music."
