

"Clipped Like Lion" Causes Laughter

 "Come and Fight" Is Challenge
 "$10 and costs," rapped the Magistrate when he heard the evidence of Mrs. Daly, who charged Mrs. Yvonne Chartrand with common assault.
 "She was at my kids," Mrs. Daly testified angrily, "she punched my little boy on the head." Mrs. Daly continued. When she took a hand in the battle Mrs. Chartrand challenged her to "come and fight." Adding insult to injury she told Mrs. Daly that she was no match because she did not have enough to eat to be able to fight.
 Guaranteeing Payment Does Not Mean Ownership
 Guaranteeing payment of merchandise does not necessarily mean ownership, Magistrate Atkinson ruled, when he dismissed a charge of theft against Edmund Lebrun.
 Omer Goulet told the court that Lebrun bought a suit and had a friend guarantee payment. When he could not pay, the friend had to make good the amount of $24. Lebrun then got possession of the suit by telling Mrs. Goulet, who had temporary possession, that her husband said it was all right for him to take it. He was said for any such thing, Goulet testified.

 When the friend guaranteed payment of the suit it technically became Lebrun's property, the Magistrate ruled, dismissing the charge.
 Because he was twice before convicted of the same offence Charles Edleston was sent to jail for three months on a drunk charge.
 Classic Brevity
 "He was staggering," said Constable Devine.
 "He was drunk," said Sergeant Olson.
 "Ten and costs," said the Magistrate, disposing of a drunk charge against one man charged with being drunk.
 Vito Yuola chose a bad time to go into a beer agent's place and came walking out with a case under his arm. The police car was parked right across the road. He pleaded guilty to a charge of illegal possession and paid a fine of $25 and costs.

For Another Court
 A charge of automobile theft against Arthur Coursal was dismissed by the Magistrate who advised the complainant to take his case to Division Court. Evidence given by Frank Bos, temporary custodian of the truck Coursal was alleged to have stolen, became very involved and difficult.
 Said Children Neglected
 A charge of desertion of her children against Mrs. Jean Charette was adjudged by the Magistrate.
 Constable O'Gorman told of investigating and finding Mrs. Charette's three small children, one, two and three years of age, respectively, on the street in the evening alone. It was raining.
 He realized, said the Constable, that Mrs. Charette's husband had been sent to jail for six months. He did not go to the house on the night complained of but knew there had been no one there with the children on previous nights.
 On the evening of July 10th when he went to the house, said Sergeant Des Roches, the children had not had supper. They were alone. He brought them back and sent them to the shelter to be fed and looked after. He knew, said the Sergeant, that the mother got about $18 a month relief but did not know that she was forced to go out and work and leave the children alone.
 He was, said His Worship, ready to adjourn the charge but somehow, somehow Mrs. Charette must manage to keep the children together and looked after.
 Contrary to the Bond
 Joe and Rose Noel were charged with breaking their bond to have no beer in their home. Sergeant Olson testified that several people were found drinking in the house. In one bedroom two bottles of beer were found.

 "The penalty for this is $500 or one year," said the Magistrate. "If you want to go to jail do this again. Remember, no beer. If you come before me again I'll send you both down."
 A charge of reckless driving against Kalbo Maki was dismissed because there was no corroborative evidence presented. Provincial Constable Hancock told of the marks on the road where Maki had an accident in Mountjoy Township, indicating that he had not followed the road.
 Fines of $25 and costs for the illegal possession of beer were levied against Joe Coursal, Sam Neveau, Mrs. Eva Rosebeck, Ruth Carey, May Neveau, Anid Kuluvalu, Yors Aito, George Lapala, Oscar Karpinnen, all of Timmins. Alfred Grenon was fined $25 and costs for having liquor in a place other than a residence.
 Other police court cases will be found in another article elsewhere in this issue.

Illegal Sale Bring Three Month Term

 Selling Charge Dismissed
 A charge of selling against Simon Dugay, of Mountjoy Township, was dismissed by the Magistrate. There was not enough evidence to justify a conviction, he said.
 Provincial Constable Hancock told of one raid on the residence when 20 bottles of beer were found in a case and five bottles on ice in a refrigerator. Following a "well marked path", Provincial Police came to two caches each containing a case of beer. Dugay denied ownership of the beer found within 150 yards of his residence.
 The day following the raid, Provincial Constable Johnston said, the accused came to him and offered to plead guilty to a charge of illegal possession. No evidence was given by police of people drinking in the house.
 Dugay said that he knew nothing of the beer found near his house. He frankly admitted that he had gone to the Constable. He would sooner pay a small fine than spend another week in the local jail awaiting trial.
 Ed. Charbonneau and Arthur Bonhomme each pleaded guilty to having beer in a place other than a residence. Provincials found four cases of beer in a woodshed apart from the house in which the two men were living. In court they admitted ownership of two cases of beer each, $25 and costs was the fine imposed on each man.
 Many Visitors
 Wilfred Beauchamp was charged with keeping for sale. No concrete evidence that he sold liquor could be given so the charge was dismissed. When Beauchamp saw them coming, Constable Johnston said a companion who was living there locked the door. Four people were found in the house. One said that he was out "seeing the sights and the joints." Four empty beer bottles were found one full. While they were there a taxi load of five drunks tried to get in the back door. Then three men and a drunken woman came to the door.
 On Sunday, June 10, two strange men were found in the house. On July 14 there were five people there who had been drinking. On July 26 two men and a woman were in the house.
 Pays Fine of $100
 Fred Lapointe pleaded guilty to having liquor illegally and was assessed $100 or three months in jail.
 A lost connection was responsible for the dismissal of an illegal possession charge against Fred McCall, of 5 Kirby Avenue. Sergeant Olson told of the raid. He and Constables Guolla and Devine went to the house and rang an electric bell at the foot of the stairs to the upstairs apartment where McCall lives.
 Looking through the glass window in the door to the upstairs they saw McCall, attired in dressing gown, throw a bottle out of the window. A broken bottle, containing a small quantity of gin was displayed in court as the bottle McCall threw. He sent Constable Guolla to get the bottle immediately he saw it thrown, Sergeant Olson said.
 When police went in McCall denied knowing anything about the bottle. Constables Devine and Guolla both testified that they saw the accused throw something out of the window.
 Upon the completion of the Crown's case Magistrate Atkinson dismissed the charge. "There is a lost connection here. You saw the bottle thrown and you show this one in court but there is nothing to show that this is the bottle. No one watched it land. I will give you the benefit of the doubt, McCall. Besides it will save you getting on the stand and lying."
 His wife's plea got one local man his freedom. He was charged with being drunk. Carrying a small child his wife asked the Magistrate to let him go home as he had a steady job awaiting him.
 The charge, said Constable Archambault, was the result of a call from the Elite Cafe, where the man was refusing to pay for a meal that the Chinese proprietor said he had eaten. He was under the influence of liquor but he wasn't extremely drunk, the Constable said.
 Faces Stiffer Charge
 A charge of illegal consumption faced Matti Belanski in court. The charge was reduced from one of illegal possession because police wanted to give

McIntyre Mines Capital Behind Mace Gold Mines

(From Globe and Mail)
 Mace Gold Mines, with capital of 5000,000 shares of $1 par value, has been organized to acquire and operate an area in the Porcupine camp which embraces the Vipond and Inspiration properties, aggregating approximately 600 acres.
 McIntyre Porcupine Mines and Anglo-Huronian have joined in the venture, and will finance a deep level development campaign, which, if encouraging, will carry workings below the Crown and Krist porphyries.
 McIntyre has purchased 500,000 shares of Mace Gold Mines for $250,000 cash and has taken options on 500,000 shares at 50 cents per share and a further 850,000 shares at $1 per share, the final option terminating on or before April 1, 1940.
 Anglo Huronian has also taken an option on 150,000 shares at $1 per share, terminating on or before April 1, 1940. Anglo Huronian will also receive 1,412,500 shares for its Vipond property, a producing mine in active operation which is completely equipped with a 300-ton mill, buildings, plant and mining equipment.
 Inspiration's property consists of three patented mining claims, upon which no underground work has ever been carried out. In the last eighteen to twenty-four months, new data and study of the geology have indicated new possibilities in this section, particularly in the Vipond claims, which have induced the McIntyre company to enter into the arrangements outlined above.

 Inspiration Gold Mines will receive 287,500 shares of the new company for its three claims.
 Planning and general supervision of the work to be done has been entrusted to the McIntyre staff, and W. R. Adams, resident mine manager for Anglo-Huronian, will retain a similar position with the new company.

Drivers' Permits Are Not Properly Safeguarded

(Toronto Telegram)
 It is a fact that the securing of a driver's permit in Ontario at the present time is pretty much of a formality. It is almost as easy to get a driving permit as it is to get a liquor permit. There is no close checkup of the applicant. The hazards of the highway are increased by this loose system.
 There are persons whose temperamental make-up is such that they will take chances which should not be taken. And there are others whose physical incompetence can only be disclosed by medical examination.
 Not so long ago a motorist suffered a heart attack while driving along the Welland canal highway and as a consequence his wife and children, in the car at the time, were drowned. The man's heart weakness was not unknown to himself and would have become known to the permit authorities had a physical examination been compulsory.

 In court last week a housemaid stated that she had fallen from her boy friends pillow-seat three times in a single evening. It was one of her off nights, apparently.
 A daily paper mentions the case of a baby girl who is expected to have a full set of teeth when seven months old. Few girls show such early promise of a musical-comedy career.
