Cochrane to Vote on Milk Pasteurization By-Law
Cochrane, Ont., Nov. 23rd.—Whether milk pasteurization will be compulsory in Cochrane will be decided by a pre-sibite of the voters on December 6, the town council has ruled.
Earlier in the year the by-law making it compulsory for all milk sold in the town limits to be pasteurized received its first two readings and at this week's regular meeting the council set December 6 as the date for the pre-sibite. The council now awaits the approval of the electorate before giving the by-law the third and final reading.
The department of agriculture will also be required to sanction the by-law before it can take effect.
It is hoped the presibite will settle an agitation of many years' standing, and that future councils will be governed by the will of the electors in studying the pasteurization question.

Found Guilty of Assault Timmins Man is Fined

Walter Calapaca is Convicted on Charge Laid by William Splawnyk. Similar Charge Against Mrs. Mary Demchuk and Pete Shalup Dismissed.

Walter Calapaca, Pete Shalup and Mrs. Demchuk, all of Timmins, faced charges of assault occasioning actual bodily harm in police court here Tuesday, the complainant being one William Splawnyk, also of town. The charges were the result of a fracas at the Radio Hotel on November 12, in which the complainant claimed to have been beaten up by the three defendants. After hearing the evidence Magistrate Atkinson dismissed the charges against Mrs. Demchuk and Shalup but fined Calapaca $50 and costs of $21.25. Ten dollars of the fine will be used to defray doctor's bills.

Mrs. Demchuk claimed that she and Splawnyk had been partners in the hotel business but some time ago they had dissolved the partnership, Splawnyk agreeing to stay away from the premises.

Apparently Splawnyk had again gained complete control of the hotel and was to have taken possession on November 13. Mrs. Demchuk told the complainant that she wished him to leave as he had no right to come into the building until the following day. In an altercation that ensued Mrs. Demchuk claimed that Splawnyk had struck her and that she had retaliated. Mrs. Demchuk was at the time removing furniture and other articles from the hotel to a new place of business and was absent when Splawnyk called. Two men were assisting her in moving, Pete Shalup and Walter Calapaca.

The latter admitted stepping in between Splawnyk and Mrs. Demchuk when the argument reached the face-slapping stage. He claimed, however, that as soon as he did he was hit over the eye with something by the complainant. Loth to describe the details in particular, Calapaca haltingly admitted that he had given Splawnyk a beating.

Shalup said that Splawnyk was "tight" when he came to the hotel and that he had used exceedingly abusive language in talking to Mrs. Demchuk. He denied that he had struck Splawnyk at any time.

Dr. Jos. Kelly testified that Splawnyk's head was a succession of bumps the size of quarters and half dollars. His face had been beaten to a pulp and both eyes were closed, he related. Magistrate Atkinson questioned Calapaca closely about having struck Splawnyk when he was down on top of a table and unable to rise. The accused admitted that he might have hit him as he attempted to get up again.

Finally the magistrate dismissed the charges against Mrs. Demchuk and Shalup but found Calapaca guilty of the charge as preferred.

Gets Benefit of Doubt

Local police paid a visit to the residence of Rene Balleste, at the rear of No. 7 Wilson avenue, recently and finding a bottle of gin nearly full and a bottle of rye in the same state of preservation, for which Balleste had individual liquor permits, everything seemed to be in order. A second bottle of gin however, containing about two inches of joy-water, led to Balleste's appearance in police court on Tuesday charged with having liquor in his possession not covered on a permit. The charge was laid by Constable Lepic, of the town police, who was accompanied by Constable Amlin.

Asked to explain the origin of the seemingly unauthorized portion of gin, Balleste claimed that he had purchased the bottle of rye and the bottle of gin for a party. Thinking that a little water would increase the quantity without destroying the quality, he claimed that he had removed a certain portion of the gin from the bottle he bought and added the same amount of water. The excess gin so obtained he placed in a second bottle of the same ilk and added a quantity of water in keeping with the good taste of his potential guests.

At the suggestion of Crown Attorney Caldwell Constable Lepic tasted the contents of the bottle in question and pronounced it as having all the attributes of gin. The magistrate in reviewing the evidence was inclined to accept Balleste's story and accordingly dismissed the charge.

Dismissed

Able to produce his operator's license in court, a charge in this regard was dismissed against Sanford Hayne, Timmins. A charge against A. Pelletier, of Timmins, was withdrawn. Lawrence McGregor, of Timmins, was given a week's remand on a reckless driving count, while a second charge of assault dating back to April, 1935, was dismissed owing to the fact that the complainant has moved from the district and his address is unknown.

Given 30 Days

John Storrer was given 30 days for begging while Fernand Constantineau was given a similar sentence for vagrancy. Alex Dubroy, also a vagrant, was given a chance when he promised to stay sober in future. He appeared in considerable pain as the result of two broken ribs, the circumstances surrounding which were not brought out. Edgar Desbrien, who drove with four in the front seat of his automobile, pleaded guilty to reckless driving and was fined the customary $10 and costs.

More Doctors Needed in Rural Sections of Canada

Comparatively speaking, there are not as many doctors in Canada as there were years ago. That is, physicians and surgeons. At the beginning of the century there was one doctor for every 969 of the population. The proportion gradually decreased until the latest statistics show one in every 1034. One reason vouchsafed is that the period of training has about doubled, making the course a long and expensive one.

Although medical science has advanced like everything else, yet the lack of medical service in rural sections is one of the greatest drawbacks in the country to-day. The population has become more urban and less rural in general character and it is obvious that, with greater territory to cover and more time consumed in travel, it takes more doctors to attend to the needs of the country than of the city. There is one doctor for every 700 or so people in the large cities, but only one for every 1300 in the country.

In England and Wales there is only one doctor in 1363 of the population and in France one in 1355. The situation is different in two other very advanced social service countries. In the United States there is one medical man in 708, whereas in Australia there is one in 1373.

About 10 per cent. of the Canadian doctors were born, though not necessarily educated, outside of Canada—five per cent. in the British Isles or other British countries and two-and-one-half per cent. in the United States, according to the Census Branch of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, Department of Trade and Commerce.

Engineers to Honour New Head of Hydro

Complimentary Banquet to Be Tendered Dr. T. H. Hogg, Newly-Appointed Chairman of Hydro

To honour Dr. T. H. Hogg, newly-appointed chairman of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario and to acknowledge publicly the tribute which has been paid to the engineering profession by the selection of one of its outstanding members for this important public service post, a commemorative dinner under the auspices of the profession in Ontario, has been arranged at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, on December 8th.

No less than nine different engineering bodies and associations are uniting to sponsor this tribute to Dr. Hogg—the Engineering Institute of Canada, the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, the Engineering Alumni of the University of Toronto, the Ontario section of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, the Engineers' Club, the Canadian Institute of Chemistry, the Association of Professional Engineers of the Province of Ontario. Arrangements for the event are being carried out by a special committee of which A. R. Robertson is chairman and A. H. Frampton, secretary-treasurer. Already an enthusiastic response has been received from members of the profession throughout the entire Province and it is expected that not only every branch of engineering but also every section of Ontario will be represented. In addition, it is anticipated that the importance of the event will be recognized by other official bodies and organizations which will be appointing delegates to attend.

Winnipeg Tribune.—If Alberta passed an act proscribing the right of Anglicans, for example, to establish churches or conduct services in that province, there is no question that it would be disallowed. That would be a glaring infringement upon the basic rights and it would not be permitted. The "act" for the dissemination of accurate news is a much more subtle effort, but its purpose is just as obvious. Unquestionably, if enforced, it would pull away one of the pillars upon which democracy in this country rests, and so it is just as much Ottawa's duty to see that it does not become effective. The province cannot be permitted to curtail the liberties the resident of the province possesses as a Canadian citizen.

Members of the Porcupine Canadian Concert Association gratefully slaked their musical thirst on Monday night at the New Empire theatre with the first presentation of artists in the series of three concerts to be held this winter by the group.

Artists who appeared on Monday night were Jean Chown, contralto; Adolph Koldofsky, violinist, and Gwendolyn Williams, accompanist. The large audience which well filled the auditorium called the musicians back again and again for encores. Miss Chown and Mr. Koldofsky were very well received and they reciprocated the audience's appreciation by several encores aside from the already extensive and lengthy programme.

Preliminary perusal of the programme disclosed a block of four Brahms to be sung by Miss Chown. The fears that the solid block of songs by the most melodious of the three great B's—Beethoven, Bach and Brahms—would grow a bit dull before concluding were allayed. Miss Chown's selection of songs was astute. She chose light, melodious songs that captivated her audience and brought out the best qualities of her rounded contralto voice.

Best liked perhaps of the Koldofsky interpretations was his programme group of three of the moderns' works. Before playing "Improvisation" by Bloch, he explained that he believed that this work of the most famous of German moderns indicated a struggle—he believed the struggle of a man with a philosophical idea. The power and tempestuousness of the music coupled with his strength of interpretation led many of his audience to the conclusion that it represented the struggle of a man with something more material than an idea.

"Piece En Forme De Habanera" by Ravel, brought a different idea of Ravel, who is so often associated with the loud and climax-reaching "Bolero." It was a soft wistful melody with just the suggestion of a Spanish dance to it. The third selection from the moderns was "La Gitana" by Kreisler.

The programme opened with a group of three songs by Miss Chown. She chose "Se Tu M'Ami," by Pergolesi, a gentle song of a gentle shepherd; "Lasciatemi Moriri," by Monteverde, a lament, which was very well done by Miss Chown, and "Troppo Soavi I Gusti," Cavalli.

Two movements of Handel's Sonata in F Major were played by Mr. Koldofsky as his first offering. He then did "Praeludium und Allegro," explaining that prior to last year it was believed to be the work of Pugnani, adapted and arranged by Fritz Kreisler. Great confusion was caused in the world of music last year, said Mr. Koldofsky, when Kreisler explained that this number and thirty or forty more compositions which he was supposed to have adapted from the old masters, were his own original works. Especially confounded were the music critics, who often said that Kreisler's arrangements deviated from the spirit of the "original master" as they then thought. Pugnani to be.

The first half of "Praeludium und Allegro" was tuneful and full of music. The second half as good medium for a display of Koldofsky's mastery of violin technique. He was recalled by an enthusiastic audience and played a softly sweet and ancient melody by Korrell as an encore.

Miss Chown's group of Brahms' followed and then the trio of moderns by Mr. Koldofsky. As an encore to her group of songs Miss Chown sang "O Softly Speaks My Heart," from the opera "Samson and Delilah." Mr. Koldofsky played a Grieg lullaby when he was recalled.

Miss Chown's final group included two songs by Vaughan Williams, "Silent Noon," and "The Water Mill." She also sang "The Last Rose of Summer" and delighted the hearts of the many Scots in her audience with her interpretation of the old favourite, "Annie Laurie."

Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Chanson Arabe" was one of Mr. Koldofsky's last group and the rhythm of the Spanish dance was contained in De Falla's "Suite Populaire Espagnole." His plucking of the strings and rapid and accurate bowing in this number almost had his audience's feet tapping. "Ruralia Hungarica," by Ernest von Dohnanyi, was supposed to conclude the programme but the audience brought the violinist back for another encore. He played what he described as a popular American adaptation of a Slav work called "Poem." It was more American than Slav and perhaps a little too ordinary and "tum de dum dum" on which to end such a successful classical programme.

The work of the accompanist, Gwendolyn Williams, was, as is the work of any good accompanist, excellent in its sublimation to that of the two soloists. The storm of applause which greeted her when she was individually introduced to the audience testified to its excellence.
