Accepts Post With Mining Association

R. H. Cleland, Assistant Manager of Coniaurum Takes Over New Duties January 1st.

The announcement made at the meeting of the Porcupine Branch of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy on Tuesday night that R. H. Cleland, assistant manager of Coniaurum Mine, has accepted a position with the Ontario Mining Association, was received by the members with genuine regret. The announcement was made by Stanley A. Wockey, chairman of the branch, who paid glowing tribute to the contribution to mining that Mr. Cleland has made in the years that he has been associated with the Porcupine Camp. Prior to taking his position with Coniaurum, Mr. Cleland had served the district as Mines Inspector and in that capacity left a fine record for advances in mine safety precautions that will not soon be forgotten.

Mr. Cleland, in a few words to those attending the meeting, thanked the chairman for his remarks and assured the gathering that he would do his best in his new position to help mining in general and the Porcupine Camp in particular. He will assume his new duties at the first of the year.

Noranda to Spend Million to Make Producer at Hallnor

(From Rouyn-Noranda Press) A million dollars of Noranda Mines money goes to build a mill at Hallnor, it was decided at the meeting of Noranda directors at which the dividend payment for the last six months was set. Construction at the property near the Noranda-controlled Farnour mine in the Porcupine area will begin immediately, it was stated.

Initial production at a 250-ton rate at Hallnor is expected to begin in mid-summer. Gradually the milling will be worked up to 400 tons. The mine, in which development has been progressing quietly since the early days of Farnour, is looked upon as a highly profitable venture, since ore reported from there has been considerably higher in grade than Farnour's.

Investment of million dollars in Hallnor is given as one of the reasons why Noranda's dividend declaration for the latter part of the year was $1.50 rather than the amount of the previous two payments. The other reason is uncertainty of copper prices.

Valuable Prizes for Musical Composing

First Prize $750 Scholarship at Toronto Conservatory

Awards for original musical compositions in a competition open to residents of Canada have been announced by the Canadian Performing Right Society Limited. The first prize will be a $750 scholarship covering tuition and maintenance at the Toronto Conservatory of Music, for the musical student under 22 years of age whose compositions show the most talent and imagination. Three further prizes each of $50 cash will be awarded.

Candidates must submit two compositions, one of which must be a song of fairly advanced standard. The compositions must be in by March 1, 1938, and the decision of the adjudicators will be announced on April 15, 1938. The sponsors hope to stimulate a considerable amount of original work by Canadian composers through the competition.

Adjudicators selected for the competition are: Sir Ernest MacMillan, principal of the Toronto Conservatory of Music, and conductor of the Toronto Symphony orchestra; Capt. J. J. Gagnon, Mus. Doc., Montreal; Godfrey Hewitt, F.R.C.O., organist of Christ Church Cathedral, Ottawa; Leo Smith, Toronto Conservatory of Music; Hector Charlesworth, former chairman of the Canadian Radio Broadcasting Commission; and Henry T. Jamieson, president of the Canadian Performing Right Society Limited.

New Dean

The Right Reverend Paul Fulcher, bishop suffragan of Knarborough, archdeacon of Leeds and rector of Methley, is shown leaving Westminster Abbey after his appointment as the new dean of Westminster. He succeeded the late Dr. William Foxley Norris. The new dean, who is 58, will receive a salary of $15,000 per year.

Arrangements for this banquet were taken care of by Miss Phyllis Smith, Miss Nellie Whitehead, and Miss Eileen Harron, who demonstrated their ability good for such occasions.

After a fine banquet, dancing was the order of the evening, everyone enjoying themselves immensely.

Legion Hold Turkey Stag

The Turkey Stag held in the Rod and Gun Hut, on Wednesday evening and sponsored by the Canadian Legion, is reported as having gone over with a bang.

There were many lucky winners, each taking home one or more lovely turkeys. The door prize for the evening was a first grade hind of beef, this being won by Stan Andres.

Dance in Poole Memorial Hall

A very nice dance was held in the Poole Memorial hall last Wednesday evening, under the auspices of the Ansonville Branch Women's Auxiliary.

Good music and a lovely lunch added to the evening's enjoyment, and a good time is reported by all.

Bean Contest for School Children*

The Iroquois Falls Mercantile Store have on display in one of their windows, a rubber boot filled with beans. Over this boot, is a poster which says that school children may enter their guess as to how many beans are in this boot, and two prizes for boys and girls will be given, by the Mercantile, for either the correct guess, or the nearest to the correct answer.

By observation of the children who stop to calculate in their own method the number of beans therein, the contest will be a good one.

Interesting Dance

The Elvira Rebekah Lodge held an interesting and enjoyable dance in the Iroquois Falls town hall on Thursday evening, December 3rd.

A large crowd gathered together about ten thirty to dance to the music of Ted Morgan and his ten-piece orchestra. After several sets of dancing,

BEWILDERED REFUGEES JAM SETTLEMENT

Scenes of indescribable confusion followed the retreat of Chinese troops from Shanghai. The bottom picture shows the mass of Chinese from the native quarters crowding into the International settlement. Top, a merchant selling his wares under difficulties. It shows a clerk obligingly stretched over the barbed wire entanglement outside the French concession to sell cigarettes to the Chinese troops.

Excellent Addresses at Mining Institute

N. R. Clifton, of Consumers' Co-Operative and M. E. Williams, of Hollinger, Address Gathering.

With the two speakers of the evening addressing the gathering on widely diversified subjects, the meeting of the Porcupine Branch of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy held in the dining room of the Empire Hotel Tuesday evening, was one of the most interesting held in some time. Stanley A. Wockey, chairman of the local branch, presided and introduced the two speakers.

N. Roy Clifton, of Consumers' Co-Operative, Timmins, gave a most informative talk entitled "The Co-operative Movement as an Improved Method in Social Mechanics," tracing the development of the plan from its inception to the present time.

The co-operative idea, Mr. Clifton related, commenced in a small town in England in 1844, gathered by a group of twenty-eight practical men who had taken various means to better wages and conditions for employees in the milling industry. Previously they had resorted to strikes in an attempt to accomplish their ideas, to no avail. The Chartist movement which it was hoped would bear fruit to the benefit of the workers came to a dismal end as did the efforts of politicians. All this time this group of twenty-eight workers had been contributing two pence a week to a strike fund.

Finally the idea was born of starting a store whereby the members of the group could buy necessities that had not been adulterated at least. In those days it was not uncommon to encounter plaster of paris in flour and many other impurities in much of the food offered for sale by unscrupulous merchants.

Finally the group started their store which was to be the forerunner of the co-operative world over. With the 28 pounds in money in the treasury a store was rented and a small stock of butter, oatmeal, sugar, and flour was offered for sale.

From this modest beginning, which was jeered at at the outset, sixty stores of similar character had been opened in the north of England by the year 1863. To-day the idea has grown to world-wide proportions, with the organization of Timmins constituting a striking example.

"Membership in a co-operative movement of any kind, changes the nature of the men who are in it," said Mr. Clifton. "They study and develop self reliance and the ability to provide for themselves," he concluded.

At the close of his address Mr. Clifton answered a number of questions pertinent to his previous remarks which completed a most informative discourse.

The second speaker of the evening, Maurice E. Williams, of the Hollinger staff, gave an interesting talk on "Pulp Flow Through Grinding Mills," which brought out a wealth of information of improved methods of ore grinding.

Both speakers were accorded a hearty vote of thanks at the conclusion of the meeting, which was followed by the serving of refreshments.

Concert by Finnish in English Language

Event to Be Held in the Finnish United Church Auditorium.

The English language schools for Finnish-speaking adults of the Finnish United Church at Timmins and South Porcupine will gather for united Christmas Concert and Fellowship Evening Monday, Dec. 20th, at 8 p.m., in Timmins Finnish United Church. The programs of the evening will be delivered in the English language only. Present and past pupils of these schools and only friends invited by them may attend. The Junior Girls' Choir of the Timmins Finnish United Church will be the English language schools at their concert by contributing Christmas Carols in the English language.

Schumacher P.S. Pupils Present Happy Operetta

"The Saucy Hollandaise" Given on Tuesday and Wednesday Nights Delighted Large Audiences. Specially Creditable to Pupils and Teachers. Event One of the Best School Events in North.

Among the most outstanding performances ever given by public school pupils in this North Land was the operetta, "The Saucy Hollandaise," by the Schumacher Public School pupils in the Creation hall at Schumacher on Tuesday and Wednesday nights. Each student showed that he or she had talent, and that they were willing to work in order to perfect what they were given to do. From the tiniest mite to the oldest of the students, all co-operated in making the event a success. A full hall both evenings showed the interest the parents and friends take in the accomplishments of their children, and the smiles that played on the faces of all as they left the hall, were sufficient proof of their enjoyment of the programme. Then, of course, the applause that was generously sprinkled throughout the entire evening was not an idle pastime for the students of the Schumacher public school certainly are talented and pleasing performers.

A great deal of credit is due to the staff who assisted in making this annual Christmas concert a success, to the mothers who worked so hard to make all the charming costumes, and particularly to Miss I. Lang, who directed the singing, and Miss G. Bristow, who accompanied the children at the piano.

During the intermission between the two acts of the play George Defelice Freddie Monk, Tommy Popovich, Joe Dobertino, Esko Jarvi, Mirra Narduzzi, Gido Pelizzari, Wilfred Wolfe, Pat Phillipian, Buddy Mangotich, Carl Mangotich, Trevor Johnson, Steve Gettler, Bryan Robinson, Paul Mangotich, and Dino Narduzzi gave an exhibition of physical culture, and built several very interesting pyramids, which met with rousing applause from the appreciative audience.

The "Saucy Hollandaise" was the story of a Princess of the Royal House of Snyder Saw who possessed a State secret. The Queen, knowing the Princess' propensity for gossip and talking in public, appointed Hans, the tinker, a green country boy, custodian to watch her and see that she did not talk too much.

About this time a foreign prince and his retinue arrived in Holland, ostensibly on a mission of good will, but really to learn, if possible, the secret.

When the prince learned that the secret was shared by the Princess he decided to gain her confidence by his wiles and fascination, but owing to a bad case of rose fever and Hans' vigilance, he had a difficult time.

To complicate matters still more, his men, finding Holland alluring and much to their liking, decided to stay, and to do so, mutinied under the leadership of Joe, a tough old sailor. In order to break up the mutiny, the prince had an operation of trephining performed on Joe. Learning that the operation is to take place, the Queen ordered the King to be operated upon at the same time, hoping for the good of the country, to cure him of a sleeping sickness contracted while in the Orient. The result was that the contents of the two heads became mixed. Joe woke up docile as a lamb, and the King his old autocratic self.

In the meantime, the Princess, desiring to keep the Prince and his men in Holland, promised to divulge the great secret if they would stay, assuring them that it would be impossible to leave after learning it. The Prince, who had by this time learned to really care for the Princess, knew that his father, the King, would give him a cold reception should he return home with his mission a failure, and so decided to stay, much to the joy of his men. Then the secret, which had to do with Hans Brinker and the Holland Dykes, was told and all ended happily.
