Rev. Francis Joy Comes From the West

Iroquois Falls, Ontario, January 11th, 1938. Special to The Advance.

Rev. Francis Joy and family of Salt Coats, Saskatchewan, arrived in Iroquois Falls on Friday, January 7th, where Mr. Joy has been selected to take over the duties as Minister of the St. Mark's Anglican Church.

Mr. Joy is a very interesting man to converse with, and having come from the drought-stricken area of Saskatchewan, can relate many sorrowful stories on the hardships as experienced by the residents of the section which he just left.

Mr. Joy trained for his vocation as minister in England. While still a young man, he enlisted in the Great War, and was a member of the 6th Dragoon Guards, also in the Sportsman Battalion of the Royal Fusiliers.

After the war, Mr. Joy came to Canada, and going out West, served many communities. He was minister in White Bear Mission, which is north of Swift Current, Saskatchewan, later going to Radville. Six years were spent in Radville, serving three parishes, this being part of the drought-stricken area. For eight years Mr. Joy reports no crops or gardens have been harvested in this section, due to the lack of rain. The first son, born to Mr. and Mrs. Joy, was four years old before he saw the first rain storm and when seeing this, the boy started to cry. This was during the year 1932. The nearest tree to Radville, is 136 miles distant, being located at Carlisle Lake, a noted summer resort.

Councillor Wren claimed that at the first meeting of the committee it was decided to leave the entire arrangements with regard to Cuihane in the hands of the chief of police and that no further meetings of the police committee were arranged for the Monday mentioned by the mayor. He claimed that in this opinion he was backed by both Councillor Cousins and Councillor DesRoches, who were members of the committee last year. "This resolution is a definite contradiction of the chief's power to discipline the police force," Councillor Wren stated.

Councillor McDermott—"Why wasn't this taken up at a meeting of council?" Councillor Wren—"This was a case of discipline within the police force."

Councillor Brunette—"Why did the chief send Inspector Olson down to Cuihane's home to get his clothes if he was only suspended?"

Councillor Piche—"What power has the chief got to decide what pay a constable shall receive and has he any power to make deductions from his pay?"

Councillor Wren—"The chief was instructed to make arrangements with Cuihane, who agreed to accept a deduction of $30 from his pay for the time he had been off duty."

Councillor McDermott—"The Police Commission have no power to order any pay cuts without the consent of council."

Mayor Bartleman—"The chief took it up with me and complained about Cuihane. When I heard the case he asked me if it was all right to fire him and I agreed if the facts were correct. When I heard Cuihane's story I decided that a meeting of the police committee should be held to consider the matter, with both the chief and Constable Cuihane present. After reaching no agreement the matter was left in the chief's hands and a further meeting was to be held on Monday to consider the arrangements made by the chief. I phoned Monday afternoon to see if the rest of the committee were present and was informed by a constable who answered the phone that there were no members of the committee there. The next thing I heard that two members of the committee, Councillors Wren and Cousins, had been present at the time and that Constable Cuihane had been restored on a three-month probationary period, subject to a forfeit of $30 in pay for the time he had been off duty. I wasn't consulted about the matter and I objected. At least the matter should have been decided by a full meeting of the committee and not two members," said the mayor.

"I wasn't satisfied with the way the man had been handled by the chief of police and the police committee," said Mr. Bartleman. "He was reinstated just before the municipal election, which didn't look too good. In my opinion the man should be paid for the time he was suspended and be judged by his performance of his duty in the future," Mr. Bartleman claimed.

Councillor Eyre—"If the man was paid every two weeks he was at least entitled to two weeks' notice."

Councillor Wren—"My opinion was that the man should have been fired for infractions of the rules and one other member of the committee agreed with me."

Councillor Eyre—"If he was definitely discharged he should have received two weeks' pay in lieu of notice."

Councillor Wren—"It's not that. It's a case of the discipline of the whole force."

Mayor Bartleman—"I told the chief to fire him but when I heard Cuihane's side of the story I changed my mind."

Councillor Eyre—"If a man is fired he should stay fired."

Mayor Bartleman—"The chief of police has no right to make any deductions from a man's pay."

Finally the resolution was put to a vote and Councillor Wren was the only member of the board who voted against restoring the $30 deducted from Constable Cuihane's pay. After the vote had been taken Councillor Wren warned the other members of council that he would make definite representations to the new police commission in regard to the matter. "This has proven to me the value of a Board of Police Commissioners," he added.

Taxi Complaint
H. Herman and W. T. Montgomery wrote council in reference to taxes being parked continually on Cedar street. "We are being crowded off the street," the complainants contended. The matter was referred to the police pending the passing of a new traffic by-law.

Holiday Hours
Homer Gauthier, president of the retail clerk's association, asked what action the council planned with regard to the by-law covering closing of stores

Northern Ont. Scout Leaders' Conference

At Timmins January 15th, 16th and 17th.

This week-end will see the Northern Ontario Scout Leaders' Conference held in Timmins. A. Paddon, Field Secretary of the Ontario Boy Scout Association, will be in charge of the conference. The conference is for Scout Leaders, Cubmasters and their assistants and committee-men—all adults who are helping to carry along the good work of the Boy Scout movement and who are conferring here with the idea of exchanging information and keeping up to the minute in the work.

Representatives will be here from Cobalt, New Liskard, Englehart, Kirkland Lake, Iroquois Falls, South Porcupine and Timmins. It is certain that these centres will be represented but it is also likely that there will be delegates from other places in the North where the Boy Scouts are established.

Field Secretary Paddon, of Toronto, is here to-day and will visit the groups in Timmins and South Porcupine.

On Friday (to-morrow) the delegates are expected to arrive for the conference on Saturday and Sunday. Some also may come in on Saturday morning's early train.

The conference will open on Saturday at 9.30 a.m. in the Hollinger Recreation hall and will continue all day. Saturday evening, at 6.30, the Conference Dinner will be held in the basement of the Church of the Nativity. Those who were formerly Scout Leaders are also invited to this event. The guest speaker at the dinner will be Mr. J. P. Johnson, of North Bay, member of the Provincial Council for Ontario.

Sunday morning at 10 o'clock there will be a "Scouts Own" service held in the Hollinger hall. Mr. E. L. Longmore, General Surface and Mill Superintendent of the Hollinger will be the guest speaker for this event. In addition to the conference delegates, Patrol Leaders and cubs of fourteen years of age are invited to attend the "Scouts Own" uniforms being worn.

Edmonton Journal:—The High River Times threw light in its last issue on the character of the material being sent out by the Social Credit Board of Public Relations. It published one article received from that body but stated that it had to refuse space to others in "the preliminary grist" because terms were used which "are not tolerated in a civilized society."
