

Caught 21-lb. Lake Trout at Watabeag at Week-end

Member of Iroquois Falls and District Rod and Gun Club Bagged Big Beauty. Had Notable Battle in Landing the Big Fellow. Many Others Now Fishing at Watabeag Lake

Iroquois Falls, Ont., May 18.—(Special to The Advance)—The fish are biting, folks, and no fooling! And here is proof of the fact. Last week-end, Mr. C. S. Jessup, member of the Iroquois Falls and District Rod and Gun Club, while enjoying the outdoor life at Watabeag Lake, some forty miles distant from here, caught one of the twenty-one-pound lake trout. The fisherman's bug had apparently got into many, for during the week-end several parties from around, were into the lake, and although they did not strike the luck to the extent of Mr. Jessup, yet most of them were able to boast of several caught during the holiday.

Fishing is something like golf. Words fail to explain the fun derived from the sport, and one has really to do it to find out what is in store for him. This large lake trout provided enjoyable meals for many, and was fresh and tasty beyond words.

Another Enjoyable Father-Son Event

Trail Rangers and Tuxis Hold Interesting Annual Event.

About two hundred and thirty fathers and sons gathered in the United Church on Monday evening in the basement for the annual "Father and Son" banquet of the Trail Rangers and Tuxis boys.

After the singing of "God Save the King," all sat down to enjoy a tasty dinner.

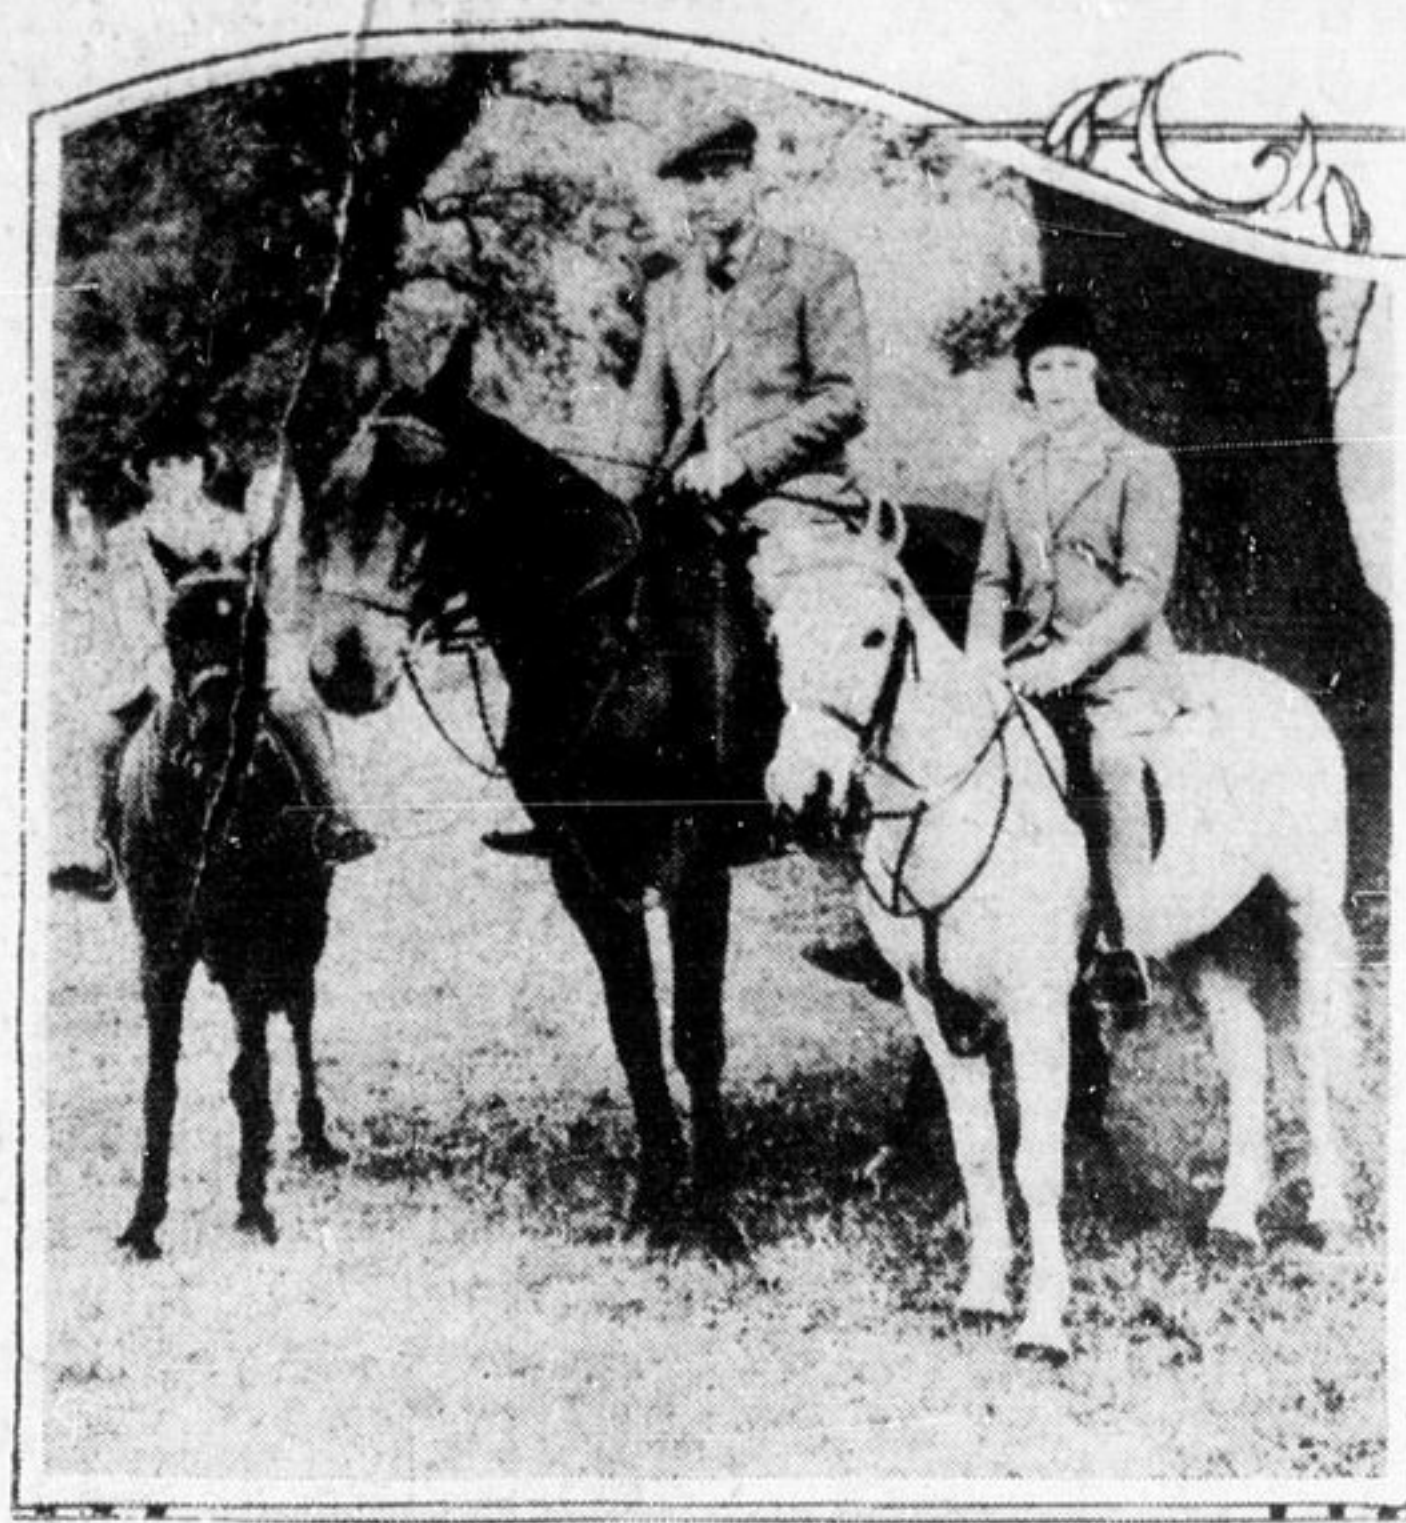

Community singing led by Merivor P. T. Molesley, started off the entertainment.

Tuxis Don Morrison acted as toastmaster and thanked Miss Smith and her C.G.I.T. girls for the splendid service given in looking after the boys and dads. Miss Smith replied for the girls.

Mr. Trennair gave a vocal solo, "Good Night, Daddy," playing his own accompaniment.

Rev. W. M. Mustard was asked to say a few words. He said he was glad to meet the boys and their dads. Speaking of the boys, he said when boys were young they were thinking and aiming to do something big when they grew up, as, for instance, to become firemen, airmen or drive motor cars, but the hardest work was Christian living. There was only one way to achieve a good job, and that was teamwork, and not by each individual doing it his own way, he said. In explanation, he spoke of a football team which had a Turk, Armenian, Greek and other races on the team, and it was only by each of them combining they were able to score a goal and win. He told a story of the determination of a young 10-year-old boy to make good, and he did. He started out one day to do some bird nesting and when he nearly reached the nest he fell to the ground. Three times he tried, with the same results, but he was determined to get the nest, and one day he succeeded, and by this same determination he grew up to be a famous missionary. In closing, Rev. Mr. Mustard urged the boys to pull together.

Mr. Thomas Nixon put on a fine show with his two bags of tricks, and the youngsters as well as the dads wished he had stayed another half hour.

Mentors P. T. Molesley, A. Jackson, Mesley, A. Gilles, Livermore spoke on the work of the Tuxis and the Trail Rangers, both indoor season and camp life in the summer.

Proficiency badges for camp work were presented to the boys by Mr. Arch Gilles.

Lost in Bush a Week, Woman Feels Well

long as they say but I am glad to get back safely," said Mrs. Watson as she rested under warm blankets and snow white sheets.

As soon as the woman was found, she was rushed back to her son's home and a call was sent to Dr. J. H. A. MacDonald at South Porcupine. The physician ordered the woman to bed with instructions that she be given only warm drinks or soup. "As soon as she got into the house she asked for a cup of tea," said her son.

Dr. MacDonald came in by water and after examining the aged lady decided to bring her out to South Porcupine hospital for observation, fearing that she might have contracted pneumonia as the result of her long exposure. Wrapped in warm clothing and accompanied by the doctor and several forest rangers, who had taken part in the search, Mrs. Watson was taken by boat to Connaught, a distance of thirty-four miles. From this point she was moved to hospital by train.

Yesterday, according to Miss Morgan, superintendent at the hospital, Mrs. Watson showed no indication of any ill effects from her experience and it is expected that she will be walking around in a day or two and able to return home.

The first two days she was in the bush the weather was cold and dreary, accompanied by a light fall of snow. Mrs. Watson couldn't remember any particular discomfort from the weather but excused herself for not being able to recall the incidents of her experience more clearly. She explained that her memory is very bad.

"It was fortunate that she had no matches with her to start a fire," was the opinion of her son. "If she had, with the bush dry as tinder, a forest fire would have undoubtedly started."

Mrs. Watson had been in the habit of walking as far as the river, half a mile from her home, once or twice a day, her son told The Advance. On these occasions she was accompanied by at least one of her three granddaughters, who always kept her in sight. On the day of her disappearance, she had wandered along a densely overgrown bush road leading in another direction and finally lost her way completely without being noticed by any of her relatives.

Doctors and persons accustomed to the bush are astounded that the woman was able to survive without food and the fact that she shows no apparent ill effects is regarded as little short of miraculous for a person with absolutely no bush experience.

Legion Sponsoring Magna Carta Week

Birth of British Liberty to be Celebrated Here Week of June 12th.

The Timmins branch of the Canadian Legion with its usual patriotism is sponsoring the observance of "Magna Carta week in Timmins and district. What "Magna Carta" week means and why it is celebrated is given in the following letter from the Canadian Legion:

Why "Magna Carta Week"?
"It was on June 15, 1215, that King John met the rebellious barons of England in a meadow named Runnymede, near Windsor Castle, and was forced to sign what came to be known as the "Great Charter."

"That, of course, was a very long time ago; and it may seem far-fetched to celebrate today a victory won by the English barons over the English king at such a remote date.

"Actually, however, the celebration of "Magna Carta week" is not so far-fetched as it may seem; for Magna Carta has become a sort of symbol of the principles underlying the British system of government—and, indeed, of the English speaking peoples the world over. It is something in which the people of Great Britain and the British Dominions may take pride equally with the people of the United States of America.

"The object of "Magna Carta week" is to remind us of the advantages of the system of government we enjoy: "(1) It is democratic. No doubt, democratic government has often grave defects; and other kinds of government, such as dictatorships, may seem sometimes more efficient. But democracy has at least this to be said for it that it enables the majority of the people of a country to change by their ballots conditions they do not like. Under a dictatorship, this can only be done by bullets. How would you like to have bullets substituted for ballots?"

"(2) It is based on the rule of law. Not even the king of Great Britain or the president of the United States, or the governor-general of Canada is above the law; and in Canada every officer of government, from the prime minister down to the humblest civil servant or police constable, is liable in the courts if he breaks the law. But a dictator is always above the law. His will is law. How would you like to be subject to the whims of a lawless ruler?"

"(3) It is based on individual liberty. This does not mean liberty to say or do what one likes, but liberty to say or do only what one likes within the law. It means, however, what are known as "freedom of speech," "freedom of assembly," and "freedom of the press." It means that the state exists for the individual, and not that the individual exists for the state. How would you like to be a slave of the state?"

"(4) It is characterized by freedom from arbitrary arrest and from imprisonment without trial. This has long been a feature of the British system of justice, with its Habeas Corpus Acts. It has never been a feature of dictatorships. How would you like to be arrested without any charge being made against you, and kept in jail indefinitely, without any recourse to justice?"

"(5) It is based on religious toleration. In all the English-speaking countries there is the fullest religious freedom. That is not always true in countries under a dictatorship; nor is it likely to be true. How would you like to be persecuted for your religious beliefs?"

"It is because we have inherited from the Mother Country not only the English language and literature, but also the British way of doing things, that we should celebrate "Magna Carta" week.

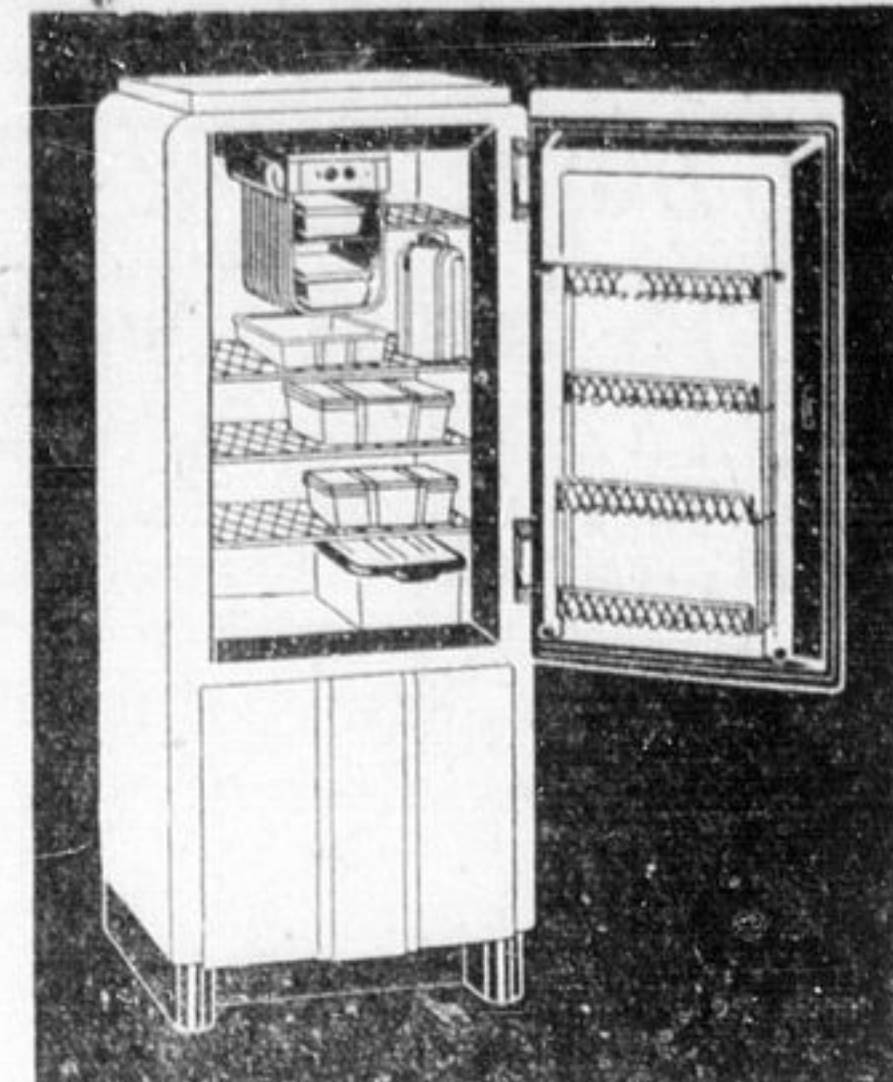

"Eternal Vigilance is the Price of Liberty."

Ottawa Journal: Unquestionably sentiment is growing for a lessening of the tax burden on real estate. To translate this sentiment into legislation is another matter.
