Kirkland Lake was represented in the near tragedy which occurred when the liner Ascania grounded on rocks near Bic Island in the lower St. Lawrence early Saturday morning.

William A. Faure, who recently left The Northern News to take an extended trip to England, was aboard the liner, and was among those transferred to the Montclare to complete the voyage.

While it was thought at first that the liner would break up, latest reports indicate that she is being salvaged, and will be brought into Quebec in about a week's time.

Saturday This Week Tag Day for Blind Worthy Cause Meriting Hearty Support of All.

As noted elsewhere in this issue, the campaign this week for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind is making very encouraging progress.

The various committees in charge in the district have perfected their organization, and Mr. D. B. Lawley, field secretary, who is here for the occasion, says that everything is going along smoothly and well.

A list of names has been used to get in touch with as many people as possible to impress upon them the necessity for generous donations to the cause for the blind.

There have been a number of responses to the printed appeal sent out. Still further donations of the larger kind will be necessary to reach the objective aimed at.

Saturday of this week, July 9th, will be the tag day for the blind. This is the day when everybody has a chance to help, no matter how small the contributions. It is hoped to have a full complement of taggers and so to make the tagging as complete and thorough as possible.

Two Fined for Fighting at Larder Lake Last Week (From Northern News)

Entering a plea of not guilty, in spite of a confession to police, Regis Lebrun, Timmins, and Rene Balleste, Montreal, were sentenced to 30 days in jail in police court Thursday for stealing nine gallons of gas. Their complete outfit of hose, jug and funnels, which had been taken from their car in Water Lane, June 27, by Sergeant B. Cairns, was exhibited in court.

Balleste said he had confessed to police because "they asked too many questions," and he wanted to get rid of them. He claimed he had bought the gas at a garage.

Special Prosecutor to Conduct the Fur Case W. B. Common, of the Attorney-General's department, is in Sudbury this week to conduct the prosecuting of J. I. Glick on charges of illegally being in possession of beaver skins. The trial is to take place at Elsas to-morrow.

There are six or seven charges against Glick while the suggestion is thrown out that an illegal fur-trading ring may be uncovered. A charge against Glick in Rouyn last week was remanded as he failed to appear, and a warrant was issued for his arrest on this charge. In the meantime, however, Glick appeared before the authorities at Sudbury and was released on bail.

Big Moose Pays Visit to North Bay on Monday A big moose visited North Bay on Monday morning at an early hour and had all the natives of the city excited.

Indeed, the visit of the moose to North Bay created as much alarm as the free roaming of a colony of bees in Timmins last week. When the big moose began to run around North Bay streets calls were sent in to the police and Constable Green took up the trail in his car. The moose apparently entered the city by way of the railway track and appeared to think that was a trail that he would use with safety.

When he got on the paved streets, however, he felt that something was wrong. Just as the police car was close enough to get a good look at the animal, the moose suddenly took fright in earnest and when down the paved street at a slip estimated by the police as thirty m.p.h. per hour, which is good going for a moose on pavement. The animal left the city by the west end, taking to the bush.
