Police Court

Seven drunks paid $10 and costs into the treasury on Tuesday at Magistrate Atkinson's order.

A case of assault was withdrawn by consent of all parties, each paying $4 costs.

For speeding another paid $10 and costs, and a case involving a Chinese was remanded for two weeks pending the return of Sergt. Douglas who is on holiday.

Another case of disorderly conduct was brought, but as it was wrongly labelled it was withdrawn, and may appear under another appellation at a future court.

The most lengthy case concerned an assault outside a hotel in South Porcupine. Complainant declared he had been hit in the face by accused after an altercation concerning beer. His face was scratched and bled, he said.

Accused, under oath, recounted a conversation which led to the trouble. It was after a name had been hurled at accused that he said "To whom you call that name?" "To me!—and up with my hand and hit him in face."

He also said there was some talk of "spitting" and that he had been good to complainant when he was broke.

However, the Magistrate called it common assault and fined him $20 and costs or 30 days.

Counsel Gardner appeared for defendant in a case involving a dog.

The story was that a dog owned by complainant—a sleigh dog and a pet—had come home with a bullet wound in the right shoulder. Investigation led to the assumption that accused had shot the dog and was digging a hole to bury it! Witnesses heard the shot (in early morning), saw the dog wounded in the yard of accused, but did not see who fired the shot. One witness saw accused digging in the garden but only surmised it was for burying the dog.

The fact that other men occupied the house beside accused and that no one had seen the actual shot led to the magistrate dismissing the case for lack of evidence.

A provincial constable was chief witness in a case of reckless driving preferred against a driver who it was stated passed three cars on a "blind" hill at the Paymaster Mine. No accident resulted, but the constable was in one of the passed cars, got the number and reported the crime.

"You are the kind of man who causes all the damage," said his worship to the driver. "A man like you should be taken off the road."

Counsel Langdon interposed, saying that "on Rouge Hill, Toronto, you see cars passing other cars." But his worship interposed by saying "I don't. I don't know Rouge Hill."

"There was no collision," said counsel. "There was only luck," said Magistrate Atkinson. "Under the new code there doesn't have to be collision for conviction."

$10 and costs or 10 days. For having liquor without a permit, a man paid $200 and costs.

Death of Jas. Huddleston at S. Porcupine Tuesday

Well-Known and Popular Old-Timer of the Camp Passes on. Death Follows Operation for Appendicitis. Late Mr. Huddleston Served Overseas. Funeral Under Legion Auspices

South Porcupine, Aug. 17.—(Special to The Advance)—The death occurred on Tuesday morning in the Porcupine General hospital of James Huddleston, aged 63, old-timer of the Porcupine camp.

Mr. Huddleston was taken to hospital about two weeks ago for appendix operation and although the operation was successful the patient, who had a heart condition, did not rally from the operation, but gradually became weaker and finally passed away on Monday afternoon.

He leaves a wife and young daughter (Mary, aged 9), to mourn his loss but no other relatives in this country. A step-son survives in England. He was a kindly man and many, especially the old-timers of the camp, will sincerely regret his passing.

Born 63 years ago in Liverpool, England, he came to Canada and in the early days of Cobalt became a restaurant keeper in that town. He came with the rush to Porcupine where he managed the old Maple Leaf hotel on Golden avenue. He also prospected and held some claims in Shaw township. He joined up with the 227th South Porcupine Regiment in the early years of the war, went overseas and returned with the boys after the war. He had married while overseas, Mrs. Eliza Roach, and Mr. and Mrs. Huddleston then took over the Porcupine hotel on Golden avenue. His first wife died in South Porcupine in 1932. Since then he married his present widow, and one daughter was born three years ago.

On Thursday morning he will be buried from Hunkin's funeral parlors, where after requiem service in St. Joachim's Church by Father Gelinas he will be taken to Timmins and interred beside his first wife. The Legion will conduct the ceremonies for an honored veteran, the "Last Post" being sounded at the graveside by Bugle: Pat Cherry.

Palbearers are: Veterans Alf Hawes, W. Haddon, Ed Richardson, R. C. Mitchell, A. Ewing and George Rodgers.

Actor-Composer Gone but Songs Live

Some Stories of James Thornton, Actor and Character.

(From Toronto Telegram)

At one time or another most every man has joined in singing, or has heard sung, such old-time favorites as "When You Were Sweet Sixteen," "My Sweetheart's the Man in the Moon," and "She May Have Seen Better Days"; and so, should have a passing melancholy interest in the death, in New York, of their composer James Thornton, vaudeville actor of the good old days of the variety stage.

Born in Liverpool, Thornton was 20 years old and a furnace man in Boston, when he composed his first song, "Remember Poor Mother at Home." In 1884 he became a singing waiter in New York's East Side, and partnered with Chas. Lawlor, composer of the "Sidewalks of New York," in commencing on the Bowery, a theatrical career.

He wrote songs in hotel bars on beer soaked paper, not penning them for the posterity to which they may after all, have been destined. Poor stuff, as literature, but when combined with an ear-catching melody, just the thing for the boys to chorus. Take the pathetic ballad of the street crowd on a night that was bitterly cold, laughing aloud at a woman lying in a doorway, in tears from the throng's angry jeers, leading somebody to say (with the permission of Harms Inc.):

She may have seen better days
When she was in her prime,
She may have seen better days
Once upon a time.
Though by the wayside she fell
She may yet mend her ways;
Some poor old mother is waiting
For her
Who had seen better days.

The narrator, loath to depart, spoke to her. "She told me her life. She was once a good wife, respected and honoured by all; her husband had died ere they were long wed," and so, back to the chorus (everybody sing):

Here's First of the Moon Song
Thornton was credited with having led the way in the lunar love lyric field with:
My sweetheart's the man in the moon.
I'm going to marry him soon.
'Twould fill me with bliss
Just to give him one kiss,
But I know that a dozen
I never would miss.
I'll go up in a great big balloon
And see my sweetheart in the moon.
Then behind some dark cloud
Where no one is allowed,
I'll make love to the man in the moon.

But the song liked best, by old-timers and younger generation alike, remains (through the courtesy of Shapiro, Bernstein, Inc., copyright owners):
I love you as I never loved before,
Since first I met you on the village green.
Come to me, or my dream of love is o'er.
I love you as I loved you when you were sweet, sweet sixteen.

Another of Thornton's songs that can't be overlooked was composed after he had seen Little Egypt perform her then-sensational dance at the Chicago Columbian Exposition of 1893:

She never saw the streets of Cairo,
On the Midway she has never strayed,
She never danced the hoochee-koochee,
My little country maid,
Got No Ticker from Chinese Magician

Thornton made theatrical history when the celebrated Chinese magician, Ching Ling Foo, appropriated the star's dressing room where Thornton was top headliner. The actor stood it for three days and then, unable to bear it any longer, he walked onto the stage during a performance while the magician was pulling gold fish bowls out of his sleeves. Before the startled audience Thornton took off his shirt and threw it at the startled Ching Ling Foo and shouted "Have it back by Friday" Then he stalked off the stage.

A favorite trick of the old actor's

Compares Ontario and Ulster Schools

Teacher Returns to Cobalt After Eventful Year in Europe.

Thornloe, Aug. 18.—(Special to The Advance)—Expressing the opinion that conditions from the teacher's standpoint were better in Northern Ontario than in the Ulster school in which she had taught while on exchange overseas, Miss Grace Irving, member of the staff of Cobalt public school, returned to her home in this district on Tuesday afternoon after spending the past year in Europe. She resumes her duties in the silver town when school re-opens on September 6, replacing Miss Betty Maccauley, of Portadown, Northern Ireland with whom she exchanged for a term.

Miss Irving climaxed her visit across the Atlantic with a trip to the Empire Exhibition at Glasgow and with an eleven-day voyage homeward bound on a freighter, which carried nine other passengers. During her absence from Temiskaming, Miss Irving found time to visit different parts of Ireland, including Dublin and the Killarney Lakes, and also parts of England and Scotland, Holland, France and Italy. She said on her return she never experienced a moment's sea-sickness, either on the Atlantic or on the various cross-channel voyages she undertook.

Miss Irving told The Advance correspondent that she had found conditions for the teacher more difficult in Portadown than in Cobalt. She said she had supervision of a class of 50 pupils in a comparatively small room, a considerably larger number of pupils than ordinarily included in one grade here, and that the term had lasted longer than on this side. She had taught 211 days in Portadown, whereas in Ontario seldom pass the 200 mark. The school to which she had been assigned had not been a modern building, Miss Irving said.

The teacher from Cobalt experienced trouble with Irish weather, especially last fall, when she had found the atmosphere raw and cold. The school room was heated by a small fireplace only, steam heat being unknown. On her trip east, Miss Irving was met at

Delightful Event at the Ankerite Park

Thirty Members of A. Y. P. A. Enjoy Happy Evening.

The park, which is for employees of the Buffalo-Ankerite only, was secured for the occasion by special permission from R. P. Kinkeel, of the Buffalo-Ankerite. Jack Birkett, president of the A.Y.P.A., had made all arrangements for the event, and members of the A.Y.P.A. are eager to express their appreciation of his efforts and to compliment him on the success of his plans. Before the winaer and marshmallow roast, for which a large bonfire was built in one of the fireplaces at the park, the young people got a great deal of enjoyment from swimming in the waters of Lake Macdonald, and later in the evening, all joined in singing happy campfire and other songs.
