Constance Greer at once handed in his resignation. The Advance observed that the enforcement of the "idleness law" and other special war-time legislation had resulted in all the "white man" gambling places being closed down, and it did look improper that with this the fact, aliens should be permitted to have a regular monopoly of gambling joints, practically under the protection of the law. Constable Greer said that he would not stay in uniform so long as he was prevented from enforcing the law, without fear or favour. He also made it plain that so long as women kept coming to him with complaints that their husbands were spending all their money in these gambling joints, and neglecting their families, he would certainly hound the life out of the tin-horn gamblers so long as he was on the force. If he was interfered with in the discharge of what was very obviously his sworn duty he had no option but to resign. In complimenting Constable Greer, on his stand, and expressing the general appreciation felt by all decent people for his excellent work as a member of the police force, The Advance made it plain that no chief of police would be permitted in this country to directly or indirectly extend protection to law-breakers for any length of time. Events later—and not much later—proved this to be the case.

Twenty years ago an involuntary petition of bankruptcy was filed in the U.S. District Court in New York City against Robt. E. Kemmer, Percy E. Matthes and D. C. Kemmer, as partners in the firm of Kemmer, Matthes & Co. brokers, Toronto. The condition of the stock market was quoted as the cause of the failure. The liabilities were said to be over $200,000. The defunct brokerage firm had been prominent in the promotion of the Krist-Thompson and the Kenabic mines.

Twenty years ago The Advance answered the pessimists, as it does to-day, to effect that most of the depressing talk is done first by those with improper purposes to serve, and that everything is well after all with this good old Porcupine camp. This is what The Advance said twenty years ago and it is worth reading and heeding at this time:—"The report that the Sandy Falls power plant is now closed down is not true, as both the Wawatlin and Sandy Falls plants are running at present. During July the Sandy Falls plant was not running steadily, as the Wawatlin plant was able to fully handle all the power requirements of the Porcupine at that time. Recently, however, repairs and extensions being made to the Wawatlin plant required the pressing into service of the plant at Sandy Falls again, and this plant has consequently been a factor in supplying the Porcupine with power. Indeed, it is rather misrepresenting to suggest, as one daily newspaper did, that "the Porcupine had only one power plant—the one at Wawatlin." The Porcupine has, and will continue to have, two well-equipped power plants, one at Sandy Falls and the other at Wawatlin."

During the past years, the light and power has very, very seldom failed here in Timmings. The light and power companies, indeed, have really made a record in this respect and deserve more credit than they received for always keeping the light and power on. One of the occasional times when the light here failed is thus referred to by The Advance of Aug. 21st, 1918:—"Timmings has recently been receiving all sorts of fame for being a 'stumpless' town. Last week it had the ill-fortune to be also a 'street lightless' town. Luckily, however, the lights did not go out on the streets until the lights had been knocked out of most of the stumps in the daytime. The lights were out Monday and Tuesday evenings but were on again on Wednesday evening as usual but the stumps are gone forever. The cause of the street lights being out, so far as The Advance can gather, was that the thingamajig on the whaty-maycaill got out of kilter."

The blueberry crop is a specially good one in this year of grace of 1935. It was not so in 1918. The Advance twenty years ago said:—"The blueberry crop in this immediate district is nothing to write home about. The recent frosts finished most of the blueberry patches within convenient reach of Timmings but further away from here there are reports of bumper crops of blueberries. In the Halleybury district, for instance, there are reported to be a record crop of blueberries in some sections. The Porcupine this year, however, will have to be content with an unusually good yield of raspberries. During the past few weeks the number of those picking raspberries in this district has been large, and all classes of people have taken part in the work, some going barefoot to the patches, while others have utilized their motor cars to get close to where the berries are. The blackflies made the berry-picking work harder than it would otherwise have been, but even at that it may be some comfort to know that the flies this year are not as bad as they were last year. It is particularly pleasing to know that the amount of berry-picking done this year will allow more of the southern fruit to be used for the jam supplied to the soldiers and sailors on active service."

The Advance of Aug. 21st, 1918 had the following paragraph:—"The foreign fortune tellers who opened a stand on Third avenue left town a few days ago after a prosperous session in Timmings. Although they carried on business in a way that appeared to be in direct opposition to the criminal code they were allowed to do business here and raked in all sorts of money from the credulous. So little afraid were they of the chief of police that they touted for business, on the street, regardless of whether the police were in sight or not. One of those approached to "have his palm read" was one of the town councillors. He didn't like the approach and instead of accepting the invitation the town councillor invited the chief of police to get busy. This is getting to be a funny town."

The D.Y.B. Club shipped 184 pairs of socks and 12 shirts to Toronto to be sent overseas to the soldiers, according to The Advance twenty years ago. The report for the month of July, 1918, published in the same issue showed that the Red Cross Society was also doing its part. The report, signed by Mrs. Grimston, secretary, showed that 300 towels, 120 pairs machine-knit socks, 234 pairs hand-knit socks, 120 suits of pyjamas had been shipped to headquarters in the month the total value being $561.00. The financial statement given by Mrs. Dodge, treasurer, indicated the excellent financial condition of the Timmings Red Cross.

Liquor cases played a big part in the police court cases here twenty years ago. The provincial police had three detectives in the district for some weeks and two Austrians and one Italian each paid $300.00 and costs on charges of selling liquor. Constable Greer made a raid on a Birch street residence and Officer R. Allen found a complete still in a trunk in an upstairs room. The owner of the still, who turned out to be a boarder in the house, and not the proprietor, was fined $300.00 and costs and given a term of 30 days as well.

Death of the Wife of Kapuskasing Editor

Mrs. Edward J. Stephenson Passes to Rest.

Friends in Timmings and all through the North will extend the sincerest sympathy to Mr. Ed Stephenson, editor of The Kapuskasing Northern Tribune, and to his family, in their sad bereavement through the death of the wife and mother, Mrs. Ed. Stephenson.

In its issue of last Friday, The Kapuskasing Northern Tribune had the following reference to the death:

Mrs. E. Stephenson Passes to Death

"Surviving through two days of coma to cross the threshold of her husband's birthday, Mrs. Edward J. Stephenson passed into peace at 12:45 a.m. on Thursday, August 25th, in her fifty-fourth year. The end was tranquil.

"Deceased (nee Margaret Patten) was born at Sunderland, England, on June 8th, 1885, and came to Canada in her earliest teens. She and her surviving husband, editor of The Northern Tribune, were married at Toronto on Sept. 20th, 1911. Other surviving relatives are four daughters—Mrs. Sydney Foster of Kapuskasing, Mrs. Charles Maw, of Whitby, Ont., Mary Adeline and Dorothy Hudson at home; one son Albert William Stephenson of Little Current, Ont.; five grandchildren—Margaret Foster, of Kapuskasing, and William, Irene, Dorothy and Charles Maw, of Whitby; and her father, Charles Patten, also of Whitby. Four other children died in their infancy.

"The body is resting at her late home, 23 Dallyn Avenue. The funeral will be held on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock with services at her late residence and at Kapuskasing public cemetery, being conducted by Rev. J. H. Atkinson, with whom other local clergy have kindly associated themselves in honor. It is the express wish of her immediate family that the obsequies shall not dim any community function being held this week-end.

"The late Mrs. Stephenson enjoyed the happy friendship of a wide circle of friends, a number of whom rendered loving ministrations in her last illness. She was taken with bronchitis last January, which lingered upon her until she entered Sensenbrenner hospital in July and obtained relief. Her unflagging spirit over-taxed her recuperative powers which had sustained her through other illnesses and trials, and heart attacks followed. Medical care carried her though until a final stroke on Saturday midnight, August 13th, after which she steadily weakened.

"Her son Albert, hurrying to her last bedside was unable to reach home before she breathed her last. He is editor of the Manitoulin Expositor, having learned the printing trade with his father's.

"Mrs. Stephenson was an assiduous and talented needlewoman, and loved growing flowers the year round, in house and garden. Whatever cause interested her, whether church work or other activity, she zealously did her part. Foremost she loved her home and family.
