Police Court
A very small docket confronted Magistrate Atkinson here on Tuesday.

A case of assault, held over from last week was heard. Two local youths had come to blows after names had been hurled on a street corner in South Porcupine. Defendant said he had only pushed the smaller lad and told him to go home.

Complainant said he had pushed him in the face, and he had had a swollen jaw for two days afterwards.

However, even though two witnesses appeared for the defendant, the magistrate decided to dismiss the case.

Only one drunk was fined $10 and costs this week.

A case of obstructing the police in the execution of their duty was heard. Constable testified he was called to 112 Golden Ave., on Sunday night, and had a warrant to search the premises, owing to suspicions being by noise in the building. He charged that after repeated knockings he was not admitted and the door after being opened was shut upon him.

The proprietor's assistant, on the stand testified that he did not know it was the police at the door. After breaking open the door, nothing of an incriminating nature was found—a bottle of liquor with proper permit was all that was found by police.

The case was dismissed.

A fine of $5 and costs or 10 days was imposed on a truck driver who left his vehicle unattended and without lights on a curve on the highway. He explained that his truck had broken down there and that he had left it to get help when the police came.

Jury System One of the Bulwarks of Democracy

(Windsor Daily Star)

In these days when democracy is under fire from totalitarian countries and when the world may be in the verge of a great conflict to determine the future of human liberty, Mr. Justice McFarlane opening the fall sittings in Windsor, comments on the value of the jury system.

"There have been attacks on the jury system," His Lordship says, "that it is expensive and useless. In my opinion, the jury system, as it exists and operates in the British Empire, is the very bulwark of freedom and democracy."

One must be in thorough agreement with this statement. The jury system costs something, but it is far from useless. It is one of the great safeguards of liberty, one of the chief protectors of human rights, one of the guarantees of democratic justice. Trial by jury is a vital part of the British judicial system.

Need Accommodation for Insane at Haileybury Jail

On a number of occasions in the years past The Advance has called attention to the fact that the Haileybury jail has no accommodation for insane persons—not even a padded cell—though it has been the practice to commit insane people there while waiting for their care to be taken to institutions for their care. The coroner's jury inquiring into the death of Nichol Milgus who died in the district jail on Sept. 11th, found that death was due to asphyxiation, but that the jail staff was in no way to blame. The recommendation was made, however, that proper accommodation for insane patients should be provided at the jail. Milgus had been violently insane and had also gone on a hunger strike. Death came while effort was made to feed him by artificial methods.

On Sunday morning at 10:30 a church parade will be held at which the Porcupine District Pipe Band will be in attendance.

Parade will leave Central Hotel at 10:30 a.m. and proceed to St. Joachim's Church, then to St. Paul's Anglican Church and on to the United Church.

At 6:00 p.m. both lodges and chapters will be entertained to a banquet at which Reeve Vic Evans will welcome the visitors to Porcupine. Following the banquet the talking picture "Fraternity Marches On" will be shown. This is a very interesting picture and a real "talkie" requiring 55 minutes to run.

The South Porcupine members are to be congratulated on having built a strong progressive organization, which is proving its usefulness to the community in many ways.

Sault Woman Told She Must Pay or Die

House Being Guarded After Demands Made in Notes.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Sept. 21.—A police guard is still watching over the home of Mrs. A. Portnoy, who received a letter demanding $500 with the threat "pay or die."

Mrs. Portnoy received two letters. The first opened by demanding $5,000 in cash, but $500 was the sum asked in its closing paragraph. The second letter told Mrs. Portnoy to pay the money to a taxi driver who would call at her home.

Police were reticent on the matter. They admitted they were investigating, but said they were hoping to clear the case up before it became publicly known.

"Pay or die," said the first letter, according to Mrs. Portnoy. It was received Sept. 7.

"The letter was posted in the Sault," Mrs. Portnoy said. "The English was poor, but the spelling was good. The second letter came a week ago yesterday. It stated that a taxi would call and that I was to give a parcel, containing the money asked, to the driver. I was not to say anything to him or I would be killed. The letter said: 'Give the money to the taxidriver and then I will leave the city. You will be happy. I will be happy.' The second letter demanded $500.

"I was afraid at first," said Mrs. Portnoy. "I called the police and I had a policeman stay here at the house. I am still being guarded. The house is kept locked at nights and we have a gun, in case any one tries anything. I never thought anything like this could happen in the Sault. It may be a joke but if it is it is a strange one. I did not think I had an enemy in the Sault. For 33 years I have lived here. I have tried to help where I could. In 1929, every one knows, when things were bad in this city and there were many poor people in need of food, I opened a soup kitchen and every day I fed many. I have given to the poor whenever I could. And yet I am not a rich woman. All I have today is a small monthly income from investments. I could not get even a smaller sum than $500 without difficulty.

Northern News:—One thing about railways. The death rate for passengers is low. In 1937 one passenger in 3,500,000 carried was killed. Highway deaths registered one per thousand registered motor vehicles in Canada.
