Ready to Purchase Peace at High Price

Thomas Richard Henry Outlines His Personal Views.

(By Thomas Richard Henry in The Toronto Telegram)

To the people of the British Empire, the blessings of a continued peace seem to be somewhat diluted because of a certain loss of prestige in acquiring it.

The horrors of war seem to be somewhat forgotten in the sacrifices to avoid it.

For our part we are always willing to pay a high price for peace, even if we did expect Mr. Chamberlain to drive a better bargain than seems to be indicated at the moment. However, we don't know what may be in the Chamberlain mind—And Europe is not yet marching.

There are several sidelights in this business that we find very interesting. For instance, we are interested in discovering how unhappy the United States is about the whole thing.

Editorials all over the country bitterly denounce Great Britain and France for not taking a firm attitude and defending "poor little" Czechoslovakia by force of arms if necessary.

We get the impression that the editors of the United States would be willing to sacrifice every English soldier and every French soldier, every English pound and every French franc, in defending a country created by Woodrow Wilson and an act of parliament.

We are not criticizing the U.S. policy however, in declaring it will not engage in under any circumstances other than national peril.

As a matter of fact, we are in sympathy with the idea.

We only think that if the Americans do not choose to fight, they should not try to elect somebody to fight for them. We are a little tired of John Bull being expected to look like Don Quixote.

It seems that Great Britain fell down badly and lost a lot of prestige when she didn't defend Ethiopia against Mussolini, when she didn't defend China against Japan, when she didn't defend somebody against somebody in Spain—and now Czechoslovakia. As we say, we are in sympathy with the U.S. ideas on aloofness. We have no desire to see Great Britain police the world.

We would like to see her fight when—and only when—the Empire is in peril.

But that is the rub—when and where is the time and place to meet the Empire's peril.

If Britain's decision of a time and place not to fight makes the U.S. editors feel too indignant, they can form a foreign legion and attach themselves to their ex-President's almost ex-country.

Meantime we don't know just how we feel about Mr. Chamberlain's Alphonse and Gaston act with Hitler. We don't know all the factors that he weighed.

We only hope that all his critics, who would rather see a war than give in to Hitler, will rush to the recruiting station if there is a war.

Good Taste

Counterfeit certificates of the Texas Gulf Sulphur Company are described by the local Better Business Bureau: "The counterfeiter uses as a vignette, an eagle, whereas the vignette of the genuine Texas Gulf certificate consists of two female figures in the foreground with a derrick, a sulphur plant, a sulphur vat and a railroad track in the background."

For our part we think the counterfeiter shows better taste in vignettes than the company.

Considering all that the company has managed to stir into a vignette, we don't see how they missed Niagara Falls, a rampant G.O.P. elephant and Democrat mule, and President Roosevelt practising a New Deal.

Public Opinion

We came across a quotation from James Russell Lowell the other day which rather interested us. It was "public opinion is like the pressure of atmosphere; you can't see it but all the same it is 16 pounds to the square inch."

That might apply to our benighted democracies but we think the atmosphere of the totalitarian states is considerably more rarified.

Cigarette Papers

Considering the number of cigarettes that go up in smoke every day in the U.S.A., it is interesting to note that practically all the paper used in U.S.-made cigarettes is imported from France.

Next spring a $2,000,000 plant will be completed to manufacture cigarette papers in North Carolina.

MANY DON'T CONTRIBUTE

Port Arthur News-Chronicle: Statistics show that revenues collected by the governments of Canada, federal and provincial, from the liquor business in 1937 was $52,500,000, over and above the profit collections of the makers and dealers. Teetotalers who think these amounts rather high don't have to figure out their own proportion.

Toronto Telegram:—Germany is trying to increase the sale of gas masks, says a cable. One way would be to make them less hideous in appearance. North Bay Nugget:—Herr Hitler is evidently afraid to move forward lest France makes a backdoor entrance.

With the New 1939 Westinghouse

PRESTO-MATIC PUSH-BUTTON CONTROL

The Ultimate in Radio Operation

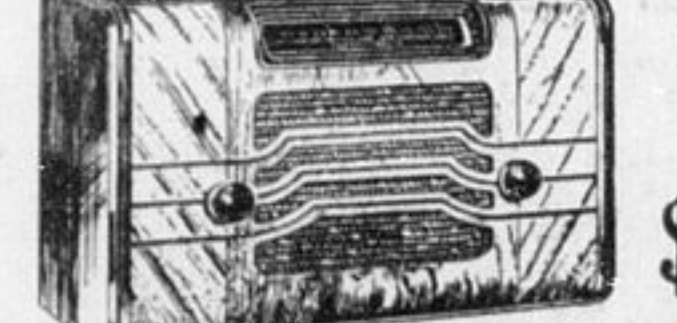

Only when an electrical device provides the desired results at the touch of a button can it be credited with having reached the zenith of convenience, simplicity and accuracy. Applying this principle of control to radio, Westinghouse now offers complete pushbutton operation for every function to which pushbuttons can be applied. Having selected the wave band button, merely press the desired station button and, Presto! the program comes in.

Nothing could be more simple or convenient. No "On" buttons is necessary. Pressing a single button switches the set on, and simultaneously selects the station or the wave band you desire.

You will want this sensational development in your radio

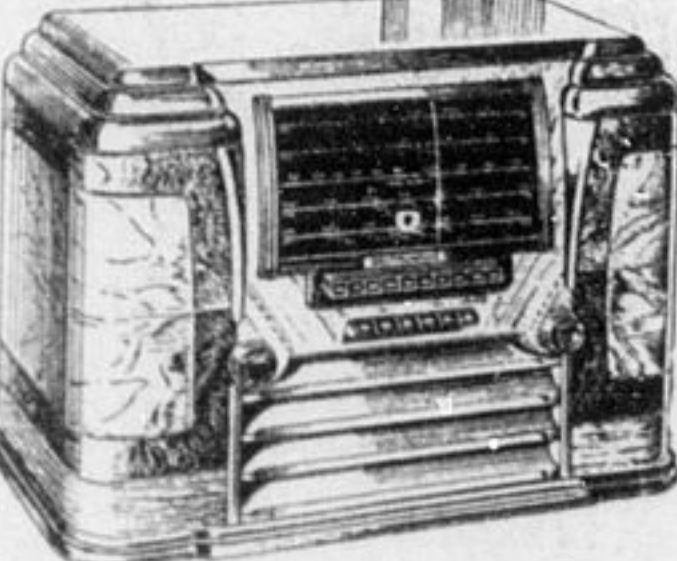

Presto-matic control is not to be confused with the various types of so-called "automatic" tuning, which pertain only to the selection of the station. It does away entirely with former switching arrangements, thus providing the first completely automatic radio to be manufactured in Canada.

Switches the set "on" Selects the wave band Selects "manual" or "automatic" tuning. Tunes the station "in" Selects "remote" control Switches the set "off"
