Another job, which most people detest, is getting storm windows out of the odd corners in which they have been stored all summer; but these windows if got out now and cleaned all ready to put in place later, will probably save a lot of sore tempers later on. South Porcupine, Saturday, Oct. 1st-(Special to The Advance)—The names of Misses E. Rapsey and Nanette Christie were inadvertently omitted from our report of the "taggers" who helped the cause of the blind last Saturday.

Dr. George Caldbick, of Haileybury, is taking charge of Dr. Harper's patients for a few days. Dr. and Mrs. Harper left on Wednesday for a busifor cold snaps. Garden hose should be ness trip to Toronto and other points. Mr. Pat Gallagher, of North Bay, i

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brown, of Cochwater, burst pipes are almost sure to going on to Duparquet where they will in future reside. Mary, their daughter, will remain in South Porcupine this winter and attend High School here.

An inquest was held in the council chambers on Thursday, to enquire into the death of Yago Tammanen, who was killed on July 20th on the T. & N. O. railway tracks near Hoyle station. This inquest was partially heard at a previous hearing but was delayed owing to the absence of the principal witness. John Howitt. On Thursday, Howitt was present and told the jury of finding the body on the tracks at 8.15 a.m. badly mutilated, and of dragging it off the tracks before reporting the finding. Jury, with W. G. Skinner as foreman brought in the following verdict:-"We, your jury, summoned to enquire into the death of Yago Tammanen, find that | the home of her daughter, Mrs. Salter, deceased died July 20th, 1938, between on Thursday afternoon and is still in the hours of 7 and 8 a.m. at the village | precarious condition. started on Saturday morning. Bishop Rheaume will attend South Porcupine on his parochial visit on October 16th.

We learn that the Men's Clubs of the different churches intend to make a request to Mr. M. Lang, chairman of the T. & N. O. Commission, for one of the railway buses to run a Sunday service from the Hallnor to Pamour Mines to South End in order to accommodate those who wish to attend the church services in town. The ordinary bus service accommodates the men going on shift at the mines and it would seem that a special church bus might be a desirable thing. The first meeting of the "Ladies o

Les. Hornick Suffers from Burglars at Store and Home

Les Hornick, well-known druggist of Kirkland Lake, suffered doubly last week from robbers of mean type. Not only was his store robbed, but his house was also entered. In the one case two arrests were made, but in regard to the robbery at the house the identity of the thief or thieves is still untraced. The burglary at the house in some ways was the worst, because a man's pair of pants was stolen in the robbery. The trousers belonged to a friend of Mr. Hornick's who was staying at the house for the night, and the unfortunate man had to borrow a pair of pants until such time as the very necessary article of clothing could be sent him from his own stock at home. It is figured that the two robberies were separate as to the times and perpetrators. In police court on Thursday last at Kirkland Lake. Dick Clairmont, transient was sentenced to 30 days in jail for the theft of a guitar from Hornick's drug store. The accused pleaded guilty, while a man charged with being an accomplice, was allowed to go, the magistrate giving him the benefit of the doubt. Mr. Hornick said that the two men entered his store and one of them asked to kindly look up a telephone number for him. When Mr. Hornick said he could not find the required number. the stranger asked for another phone number. In the meantime Clairmont had disappeared and later it was found that he seemed to be accompanied by a guitar, valued at $40 After the men left the store they were trailed, and eventually the police took them in charge along with the missing guitar. So much for the store robbery!

The house robbery was even worse The thief or thieves entered Mr. Hornick's home on Wednesday night and took a pair of dark grey trousers owned by a friend staying for the night. In the pocket of the pants were the keys to his car, a watch and about $25 in cash. The thief caused very serious inconvenience to the friend who is a commercial traveller. He had to have new keys made for his automobile before he could use it, and also had to borrow a pair of pants until new clothing of this kind could be secured from his home in the South.

The child was attempting to cross the road in front of his home, when the car, coming from the west caught the little lad by the front fender and threw him, from the car, out into the road. Some indecision on the part of the child caused the driver to conclude he had seen him, so he did not stop although he was not travelling at any speed.
