The following appeared in a certain or uncertain newspaper Tuesday:

To the Editor of The Star. Sir: On behalf of the deer who cannot speak for themselves, and before this bow and arrow hunting gets away to a big start, I would like to point out to some of these would-be Nimrods that a 30-30 rifle is not any too good a weapon to use to hunt deer with. he told of hunting alk, and eventually Bow and Arrow Business | killing one with a .25 rifle. In the next issue were several letters commenting on this, one of them from one of the best known shots and hunters in the U.S.A., who said a man had no right to use anything but a rifle sufficiently heavy to bring the game down when hit. His guess was that this man had wounded a dozen before he got one. To my mind this bow and arrow business will result in a lot of wounded animals getting away to die of festering wounds later on.

Prosperity's Rays Stronger in West

Prospecting Not So Good in the East

(From Globe and Mail) Those who visit the Prairie Provinces this year and are able to compare conditions with those of previous years, are gladdened by the improvement that has taken place, largely, of course, due to better crop conditions, which have noticeably eased financial tension, in spite of low prices. Given a few years of normal yields, there is no reason to doubt that the immense area stretching from the Ontario line to the Rockies will once more take its place as one of the greatest stimulants to national diffused prosperity. In Alberta, crops were excellent in the southern section and fair in the northeast and northwest. Add to that the optimism created by remarkably successful development in Turner Valley, now the Empire's greatest potential crude field, and it is easy to visualize return of the days when that part of the Dominion was at its bests as a contributor to the well-being of the

The Aberhart regime has not been a severe deterrent to recovery, due, in greatest measure to disallowance of the more radical legislation introduced, but it is also fair to add that the administration has kept its word with regard to encouragement of the oil industry. While the 'enor of the attempted legislation has been such as to keep much general capital out of the Province, the successful development of Turner Valley has attracted a fair amount of slightest doubt that provision of economic freight rates to wider markets will increase the flow immeasurably.

In British Columbia matters leave Trinity United Church to much to be desired. With the exception of the new gold camp of Zeballos little new mining development has taken place in recent years and speculation, as expressed by trading on the This coming Sunday, Trinity United Vancouver Stock Exchange, has been Church, of Schumacher is celebrating at a particularly low ebb. #### Chances for Gold Near Present Mines

Old-Timer Proven Right by Present Activity.

In reply to the references in the following editorial from The North Bay Nugget of Monday, it is only fair to say that "Old-Timer" is right about the chances for gold in the area south of Timmins. It is not so many years since he was talking just as strongly about the probability of mines in Whitney, Deloro and other townships near Timmins. The Pamcur, the Hallnor, the Augite, the Broulan and other new mines are showing that "Old-Timer" knew what he was talking about. It is only logical to take his word about the country south of Timmins where he sees big possibilities. He has travelled over that territory and knows it well. At the same time it is hardly fair to say that mining engineers in Porcupine are "lacking in geological knowledge." The engineers have been doing their part all right, and the local mining companies are also to the front in risking their money to test out nearby ventures. For the full development of all the North two things are necessary-capital and reads. If the road to Sudbury from the Porcupine had been completed before this there is reason to believe that several new mines would be likely in operation in the area referred to by Old-Timer. Here is the editorial article from Monday's North Bay Nugget:-

Gold Overlooked

"Are there no more big gold mines to be found in this part (Porcupine district) of the North?" was a question contained in a communication sent The Porcupine Advance (Timmins) by a person who identified himself as

But "Old-Timer" didn't ask The Advance editor to ponder his query. He qualified it by describing the locality where, in his opinion, lies opportunity for the development of a gold mine of Hollinger, McIntyre and Dome pro-

Said "Old-Timer": "No better place to look for them han south of Porcupine. Down there, about 30 miles, there are four townships, Midlothian, Montrose, Halliday and Hutt. There is a road nearly all the way to them. Where these four townships touch each other, the geology is similar to the region in which I discovered the Dome. When I stepped out of my cance and headed for a group of small lakes, I came across a lot of loose quartz; then I encountered a big mound of iron; then a big 21-foot vein of quartz. Today it's the Dome Mine. "Well, down in those townships, of iron; a mountain of it. Asbestos will also be found there. "Now just go there and scale one of its high hills. Look northward you'll see Porcupine: look east and you'll spot Matachewan only a few miles distant, with its Young-Davidson; Kirkland will be spotted a little beyond the Matachewan field. Look south and Gowganda will be seen, with its O'Brien Mines. Looking to the southeast,
