Canada's Gold Output per Capita 15 Times U. S. A.

(From Globe and Mail)

Many a time we said that no nation in history has ever been as dependent for prospertity upon the development of metallic resources as Canada and we believe that opinion is general throughout this Dominion.

The statistics for 1938 gives us another opportunity to prove our contention by actual figures.

Turning to the various provinces of this Dominion and using the preliminary estimates of gold production as a calculating basis, we find that Ontario appointed resident member of the local with her three and a half million people and production of about $100 million profited by $28.57 a head, an High School Act Mr. R. These are facts which cannot be gainsaid and show that the interest of every Canadian in the prosperity of the gold-mining industry is no less than thirteen times that of each chizen of the United States, so far as monetary distribution is concerned.
