Similar Idea Applies To Timmins in Regard to Work

The idea in connection with the following editorial in Tuesday's issue of The Northern News of Kirkland Lake applies with even greater force to Timmins. Anyone coming here looking for work is taking big chances, there being over 1200 out of work here already. For every job open there appears to be scores of applicants. It is only luck if a stranger secures a position and in that case it means the loss of a possible job for some man here previously and still waiting for work. The Northern News says:—

"Dan Wilson and Ben Audley are back in Oshawa, convinced that it is hopeless to attempt to find a job in the mines of Kirkland Lake in two weeks.

"They were 'shipped' up here, according to The Clarion, by Oshawa authorities, who should have known better after all that has been said and written about employment conditions in this and other mining towns and camps.

"They describe their two weeks as the toughest they ever put in. And, we think, they were right. According to the publication in question Oshawa authorities admitted that the men, leaders of the single unemployed organization, did their best.

"They were armed with good credentials, but that didn't help. It's a tragedy, as far as these two men are concerned, but their report will prevent at least Oshawa from sending more men up here.

"Perhaps it will prevent other towns, too, from shipping or herding men up into the gold country, with the vague idea that one starts as a miner by swindling a pick on the ground and picking up the nuggets, or panning the dust, or something.

"There are, it appears, fewer pilgrims around here than is usual at this time of the year. Perhaps the facts are beginning to be known. Which is some encouragement for some four or five years' work in these columns, and the efforts, in other ways, of many other agencies.

"It might be as well to repeat, very briefly, that there were 110 applications for mine jobs here in April, mostly from experienced men, and that

Three Interesting Plays Presented at Consumers Hall

The theatre group of the Consumers Co-operative Society presented three interesting and entertaining plays at the Consumers hall, corner of Birch St. and Fourth Ave., on Monday and Tuesday evenings, to large audiences. The characters in the three plays are members of the theatre group, and each one carried out his or her part in excellent manner, showing the progress they have made in dramatic work, under the able leadership of Miss Ethel Beam, who directed each play.

"Suppressed Desires," a light sophisticated comedy, centred on the home life of a family in which the lady of the home had become highly interested in psycho-analysis. The play was in two scenes, and was made very humorous by a special feature of a "play on words."

"Suppressed Desires," is written by Susan Glaspell, and the cast is as follows:

Stephen Brewster—Patrick Quinn.
Henrietta Brewster—Ann Semchison.
Mabel—Pat Appleton.

"Joint Owners in Spain," the second play, was a one-act comedy, ably performed by three members of the group. In an entertaining manner it told the story of two opposite characters who forgot their differences in mutual pleasure. Ann Semchison, as Miss Dyer, admirably characterized a dour old woman, who had learned to expect no happiness from life, while her opposite, Mrs. Blair, was exceptionally well-performed by Birgit Jensen. The latter old woman was a lively person, who expected to dominate her own domain no matter where she was. Mrs. Mitchell (Bernice Bruton) was the matron of the old ladies' home who brought together two of the residents of the home. "Joint Owners in Spain" was written by Alice Brown.

The third play, familiar to Timmins residents, was "The Man in the Bowler Hat," by A. A. Milne, the story of a play practice which saves its surprise until the very end, when the audience realizes that the rather "mixed-up" episodes of the scene they have been witnessing are only a stage rehearsal. The characters are as follows:

John—James G. Howlett.
Mary—Dorothy Kelly.
Hero—Edward Roy.
Heroine—Peggy Bellamy.
Chief Villain—Tom McMullen.
His Assistant—Fred O'Rourke.
The Man in the Bowler Hat—Norman Green.

Miss Evelyn Durkin was stage manager; the stage was designed by David Wemyss; electricians were Toivo Franski and Ronald Mansfield; music was given by Herman Walters; the stage mechanic was Percy Blakemore, and Business Manager was Robert Leppan.

Miss Ethel Beam, who was the director, is to be complimented on the excellent manner in which she carried out her work, the portrayals given by each performer being fitting result of her tuition.

All proceeds from the plays will go to the community hall fund, under the auspices of which the plays were presented.

Prize Poem on the Union Jack Written Many Years Ago

Old-Timer of North Writes it from Memory Stirred by Recent Loyal Displays.

"The recent displays of loyalty and the profession of flags flying in honour of the visit to Canada of Their Majesties the King and Queen recall to my mind a poem that won a prize many years ago, when Lord Dufferin was Governor-General of Canada," said Mr. Robert Holmes, who recently celebrated his 82nd birthday, and who is well known all through the North as one of the pioneer citizens of Cobalt.

From memory Mr. Holmes gave the poem, as follows:—

Prize Poem on Union Jack

Yonder waves old England's Banner Still recalling bygone years
As it waved on famous Crecy
And the battle of Poitiers.
Since the days of Royal Alfred
It has humbled haughty foes,
Faced a thousand threatened dangers,
Dealt a thousand mortal blows,
Still the ship that has it hoisted
Can through storm and tempest tack.
Give a shout for British freedom
Raise aloft the Union Jack.

Raise aloft the Royal standard,
Till it greets the passing breeze,
Till it braves the ocean billow,
Floats secure on stormy seas.
As it waved above a Nelson,
Eritons gallant matchless tar,
At the Nile's terrific battle and immortal Trafalgar.

To the mast he nailed his colours
Signalled them for close attack,
Mid a peal of British thunder,
He displayed the Union Jack.

Wolf erected British colours
On the Plains of Abraham
Mid the wars impassioned conflict
He confronted brave Montcalm.
Ere the din of battle ended, both those gallant heroes fell
Far above the cannon's thunder rose
The Highland soldier's yell.
By a charge of British bayonets
The foe was driven back
And the fortress struck its colours
To the ancient Union Jack.

Gallant Brock his folds expanded
On the base of Queenston's Heights,
While that hero, did his duty
Putting Britain's foes to flight.
Ere he reached the frowning summit
Did that fearless chieftain fall
And his bright career was ended
By a marksman's rifle ball.
But his comrades roused to vengeance swept the track
And that day was one of glory
To the ancient Union Jack.

Yet its bearing in Hindustan
Is a nobler theme to sing.
To the name of dauntless Havelock
Every loyal heart must cling.
When the Sepoys stained with slaughter
Mad like tigers at Cawnpore
Noble Havelock nailed his colours
As brave Nelson did before.

Ventures Interested In Porcupine Peninsular

The Globe and Mail last night says: "We are able to confirm the report that Ventures Limited is interested, with two other corporate partners, as yet not identified, in an option upon the Gold Island group of six claims in proximity to the holdings of Porcupine Peninsular Gold Mines near the north end of Night Hawk Lake, in the northeast section of Porcupine district. The property is now being examined by Ventures engineers, and if it elects to go ahead, $5,000 must be spent on diamond-drilling or other work before Aug. 21 and another like sum by Nov. 30. This expenditure is, however, entirely at the option of Ventures. The deal, if carried through to the end, will involve a total sum of $250,000, for Ventures and associates will receive a big control. There is no firm commitment for any specified sum until next year. From other, but unofficial sources, we learn that Anglo Huronian is one of the partners in the deal, and that, if it is completed, a new company with 3,000,000 capital will be organized."

Tommy Church to be Labor Candidate Next Election

Tommy Church, town councillor at Kirkland Lake, and zone representative for the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers' Union, has announced his intention of being a candidate in the next Dominion election for the riding of Temiskaming. He will run as a Labour candidate. The seat is now held by Walter Little, Liberal M.P. As noted in the last issue of The Advance the Conservative candidate for Temiskaming is almost sure to be Gerald D. O'Meara, of Kirkland Lake. It is possible that the C.C.F. will also have a candidate in the field. In case only the three parties are represented, and there is no change in the present situation, all three candidates will be Kirkland Lake men. For the information of those who do not know, or have forgotten, Kirkland Lake is in Temiskaming riding for the Dominion House and in South Cochrane riding for the Legislature.

Word from Toronto to-day is to the effect that Mr. Ralph Elston continues very ill.

Baumert Cheese
THE QUINTS LIKE IT—ME TOO!
If it's Borden's it's GOT to be Good!

And the traitors fell by thousands As the rifles deadly crack
'Twas old Britain's native valour That sustained the Union Jack.

Mark its track upon the ocean Trace its course from land to land
Ever guided in its mission by a providential hand
Over stormy oceans wafted,
Where high icebergs rend and roll,
Where the briny waves in fury dash round each dreary pole,
While away in tropic climates,
See the hero's bivouac,
While above them floats sublimely England's brave old Union Jack.

Noble Dufferin who wields the power For his sovereign wisely here
May he get the inspiration from above The ship to steer.
With the ancient flag above him
And a staunch and loyal crew
May he guide the vessel safely
And with flying colours, too,
When fresh lustre dons his coronet
Or his sovereign calls him back,
He'll declare how well Canadians All adore the Union Jack.

Where upon the earth at present Can we find a flag so free
As old England's native colours
Bulwarks still of liberty,
Not debased nor yet dishonoured,
Cease at once your boasted crack
Give us yet for freedom's honour
England's brave old Union Jack.

Is there then one British subject Who'd refuse his life, his all,
In defence of British freedom?
Who'd rejoice at England's fall?
If there be, than curse the traitor,
Pass him by in deep disdain,
Let him bear while life is in him,
On his brow the mark of Cain.
Let him die a hated coward,
Bury him by midnight black,
He deserves no home or country
Who'd desert the Union Jack.

vessel's supply of oxygen. They are menaced by carbon dioxide, generated in their own bodies and exhaled from their lungs, poisonous when its concentration in the air passes a certain point.

Seawater can turn the electricity-generating chemicals of the storage batteries that power the electric motors for underwater operation into generators of deadly chlorine gas, first of the Great War's poison fumes.

Collision is more of a menace to submersible craft than to surface ships, as the record shows, because a submarine has practically no reserve buoyancy, unlike ordinary vessels. If it had, it would not dive when its ballast tanks were filled. So if collision breaks open more than one of its compartments, its staying afloat would be something of a miracle. Many specially designed surface ships can stay right side up and on top of the water with several compartments flooded.

Ever present also is the danger of a failure in the pumping system for forcing water out of the ballast tanks. The tanks are filled to dive. Akin to this menace is the never impossible failure of a valve or a hatch to stay closed when the ship is below the surface; or of a submarine going down with one or more of its inlets open. This latter has happened particularly when the ship sank quickly after being rammed.

Oxygen tanks are carried on submarines to provide enough of the life-giving gas to last between 72 and 100 hours. When trapped on the bottom, crew members stay as still as possible in order to conserve the precious supply. Oxygen consumption increases with one's physical activity. The tanks are generally set to release the gas when its concentration goes below 21 per cent.

Soda lime is carried on all submarines to absorb the carbon dioxide the men breathe out. It is put in the mechanical ventilating system, and if that fails it is scattered about the ship. Half a pound per man per hour is needed. Gas masks are carried to protect the sailors against the chlorine danger. Seawater reaches the batteries as a result of collision or, possibly, as a result of failure to close a valve or a hatch. Chlorine is blamed for the loss of 60 men aboard the British submarine M-2 on Jan. 26, 1932.

Carbon monoxide from gasoline engines used for driving the ships while they were on the surface used to be a serious hazard but it is no longer because Diesel engines are now used in place of gasoline motors.

You Are The Hub Of The World

You are the person for whom the wheels go round, you are the person for whom the ships steam forth from the mouths of harbors, you are the person whose dollar spent in your store is the switch that sets all the world's factories active, you are the consumer.

Yet has anyone ever asked you what ingredients you wish in your foods, (to increase the sugar in a chocolate bar, for example, reduces the cost of it); what salary the higher executives of these factories ought to get; how much of the money you pay for the article should be spent in persuading you to buy it.

Members of a Consumer Co-operative Society believe that these are questions which the consumer has a right to determine, and they have joined together for the purpose of making sure that in future their will shall decide.

CONSUMERS' CO-OP WEEKLY SPECIALS

WATER SHIPPED TO ENGLAND.
Did you ever hear of just plain ordinary WATER being shipped to England? It sounds ridiculous, but that's what the Consumers' Co-operative Society did. Two gallons of plain ordinary water one gallon from South Porcupine and one gallon from Timmins, was sent to the largest Tea Blenders in the world—THE SCOT-TISH AND ENGLISH JOINT CO-OPERATIVE WHOLESALE SOCIETY. The purpose was to get a perfect blend of tea to suit this district. THAT IS WHY CONSOL TEA IS THE PREFERRED DRINK. OVER 2,000 POUNDS HAVE BEEN SOLD IN A FEW WEEKS' TIME. ONLY CONSUMERS' CO-OPERATIVE CAN SUPPLY YOU WITH
