Notable Addresses at Kiwanis Banquet at South Porcupine

Miss B. M. C. Shaw Speaks on Teaching and Children. Miss D. M. Wilkins Gives Illuminating Address on the Girl Guide Movement. Father and Daughter Banquet at Kiwanis Club.

South Porcupine, June 10th. Special to The Advance.

The Kiwanis, to celebrate their Charter Anniversary, held a Father and Daughter banquet at the Masonic hall on Thursday night. Every Kiwanian brought his own or somebody else's daughter, and after it was over it was unanimously declared by all to have been one of the most interesting and outstanding evenings the Kiwanis Club has yet held.

The two guest speakers—Miss B. M. C. Shaw, and Miss D. M. Wilkins—in their respective roles as teachers of youth in our Community, gave such splendid addresses that we have been specially asked to reproduce them as fully as possible here.

Miss Shaw, Public School Principal, was introduced by Maxwell Smith, who in a short speech told his fellow Kiwanians what the parents of this community think of the lady who for the past twenty-three years has taught our children and earned the love and respect and unqualified admiration of all with whom she has come in contact. Kiwanians rose as a man and sang "Pof she's a jolly good fellow."

Miss Shaw said (after preliminaries) "You naturally expect I shall say something about teaching, and, since I have spent thirty-six years in the profession, 23 of them in this town, you naturally also expect that I shall have something profoundly learned to say about it. You are right on only one count. I shall say a little about teaching not so much in deference to your expectations as for the sake of the young ladies present, who, I fear, would not wish me to step out of character for even one night. But as for saying anything profoundly learned, I am sorry, I shall have to disappoint you. The things that are so simple many would want to believe complex. I'm so infinitely weary of those persistent exponents of the how and why of teaching—There are a few basic principles that make for success in anything granted this, then the rest is up to the individual and I do most sincerely believe that the individuality of the teacher far transcends the teaching system. It may surprise you to know that I never wished to be a teacher. But 36 years ago not many fields were open to the ambitious ones of the fair sex. It is a theory, and I suppose a very sound one, that if you do not love children and have no desire to teach, then you should find some other work to do. But there are exceptions to all rules. I have already said that I did not wish to be a teacher. Another confession follows—I did not like children until I began to teach. Perhaps being very unorthodox from the beginning saved the situation. I have learned to love children and understand them and through them have learned to appreciate more, year by year, the fineness of a profession which means so much to the life of the nation. Now, about children. It is a favorite moralizing attitude of the adult, (these young ladies will be adopting it, ten or fifteen years hence)—that of deploring the manners and morals between themselves as children and the present crop of youngsters. Do we honestly think there is any fundamental difference? Granting difference in the age in which we live children are really much the same from one generation to another. No wiser and no worse. We also frequently marvel at the opportunities that children have now-a-days. It is quite true that the world is full of a number of things; which condition perhaps is not so advantageous as it may seem, either for grown ups or children. Abundance of opportunity is not the best thing in the world, neither is a little lack the worst. What profits opportunity if the mind is not prepared to regard it as such. One of the finest things we can do for children to help them to fit themselves into the scheme of things is to allow them once in a while the blessed privilege of struggling to attain some of the things they really want, teaching them in the meantime to like what they do—not do what they like. We may think that the world we are living in is steadily growing worse and worse, though I beg leave to doubt it. But even so, we cannot turn back the hands of the clock. We may recognize the pace as hectic but if we are so minded we can build defences against the maddest world that ever regained. And that is our chief duty towards children—to help them build such defences. Everyone recognizes that the home is the great factor in the training of children. Churches, schools and social welfare societies cannot take the place of home influence, nor counteract it except in a limited degree. But the training does not stop with the home or any social institution. Every adult, and I do not mean parents, preachers and teachers alone, has an individual responsibility to the children of this generation. Example is ten thousand times more important than precept. Our examples should teach children to set such high value on all that is spiritually, morally, mentally and physically best that they may be able to build defences so sure that nothing can corrupt them. Before closing I should like to congratulate this Society on the work it is doing for the children of this community. Especially am I glad that under-privileged children will be benefited. For theirs is the great problem. I am sure the parents of this community must be deeply grateful for your efforts."

Dr. Harper introduced Miss Dorothy M. Wilkins as a member of the High School Staff, and Captain of the Girl Guide Troop of South Porcupine.

Miss Wilkins gave a splendid address taking the Guide movement as her subject. She has been as a Brownie and a Guide for twenty years connected with the movement. Captain Wilkins' decorations alone are worth more than a passing glance!

"What is Guiding or the Guide Movement?" In the words of Sir Baden Powell it is a "Game played largely in the open air by Guides and Guiders working together." And what is a game?—It is the exercise of faculties needed in adult life—a mixture of fun and a facing of difficulties. Why choose Guiding—instead of other games? (1) For its extreme simplicity, based upon the Guide promise and Guide Law which is based upon the ten laws of chivalry—"Trusty, loyal, helpful, sisterly, courteous, kind, obedient, smiling, thrifty, and pure in thought, word and deed." What better foundation could any girl have for motherhood or work? (2) Other games depend on beating an opponent, but Guiding depends upon a study of nature, and acquisition of skill and doing of good turns. To be happy being good with fellows, not in competition with them. (3) It is not a military organization. We hope we move smartly and in disciplined fashion, but our leaders are our Sisters and the patrol leader has learned to lead and not to drive. Ours is a voluntary self-discipline where self-control, helpfulness and sisterhood are bound together, by laughter. Our uniform encourages pride in personal appearance, tidiness, fellowship in a world organization. It is a democratic organization governed by a Court of honour which is composed of Guide leaders and meets after meetings. The Committee are the public sponsors of the Guide movement and assist the Guides in any way, by advice, by assisting in finding officers and financing of companies. "Looking back over 20 years of Guiding," said Miss Wilkins, "the training of girls in honour, sportsmanship, self-reliance, efficiency and tolerance, must make a better generation of women, and therefore the Guides must be doing their best to help make the world a better place to live in; and international and interdenominational as the movement is, surely it is contributing to world peace?"

Honour to Mr. John Knox Earned by Excellent Work

(Editorial in Northern Miner)
On numerous occasions in the past The Northern Miner has enjoyed the privilege of noting the high calibre of much of the material which Canada has imported from United States for administrative jobs in our big mines. The occasion has presented itself again this week with the announcement that on Friday night the Michigan School of Mines will confer the honorary degree of Doctor of Mining Engineering on John Knox, of Timmins, Ontario, general manager of the Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines, Limited, for outstanding service in the mining industry. Canadian friends of John Knox are delighted but are scarcely surprised at the news. For many years his splendid record as a mine administrator, and in particular his relationships with employees and the public generally have been a byword throughout the industry. He possesses a rare combination of geniality and efficiency that has helped the Hollinger organization to set an enviable mark for itself in all phases of its activities. Highest congratulations are in order.

Kirkland Lake's Tax Rate Reduced by Eight Mills

The Township of Teck (including Kirkland Lake and Swastika) has been reduced approximately eight mills this year compared to 1938. The notable reductions in the rates at Kirkland Lake were made possible by the larger share of the gold tax allowed Northern mining municipalities and also by the half-mill subsidy from the Ontario government. The increase in the share of the gold tax means an extra $12,000 for Kirkland Lake, Reeve Carter says, who added that it was a long, hard fight to secure the reduction in rate, possible only through an increase in the share of gold tax. Kirkland Lake's tax rates last year were as follows:—58.8 mills for Kirkland Lake public school supporters; 67.43 mills for Swastika public school supporters; and 68.24 mills for separate school supporters in the township.

This year the rates are:—50 mill for Kirkland Lake public school supporters; 60.21 mills for Swastika public school supporters; and 54.76 mills for separate school supporters in the township.

Recommends Deportation of Prisoner at Rouyn

Rouyn, June 10.—Stanley Bane, of Polish nationality, was given six months with hard labour, when he appeared before Justices of the Peace J. H. Forget and Maurice Caouette this week, on a serious charge. As the man had been in this country eleven years, without having taken out naturalization papers, and is believed to have a wife and children in his home-land, it was recommended that, upon his release from jail, he be deported.

Body Floats to Surface After Week's Dragging

Body of Simon Commando, Who Was Drowned in Frederickhouse River at Connaught, Found on Friday Morning Floating Against Log Boom Across River. Drowned When Fell off Barge Being Towed to Camp.

The body of Simon Commando, who was drowned in the Frederickhouse River at Connaught, was found early on Friday morning. It was floating against a log boom which had been thrown across the river to prevent it from floating on down the stream when it came to the surface.

The body had been in the water for a week. When Commando was drowned on Friday, June 2, dragging operations were begun immediately by provincial police. They continued for several days before it was decided to wait and ascertain if the body came to the surface.

Commando was drowned when he fell off a barge which was being towed up the river to one of the lumber camps. How he drowned is unknown. He was believed to be a strong swimmer.

Dragging operations which were begun immediately after the fatality was discovered, were impeded by logs and debris on the bottom of the river in which the grapples caught and stuck. The body was removed from the river on Friday. Police said that it was in good condition and had not decomposed at any extent.

Excavation Work Started on New Kapuskasing P.O.

Kapuskasing would appear to have good chances for the possession of a brand new post office for the town. Credit for this must go, in part, to Mr. Jos. A. Bradette, for it was his ability and persistency that weighed with the government in promising a new post office building for Kapuskasing. Recently, the estimates tabled in the House of Commons at Ottawa showed that it was the intention that Kapuskasing should have a new post office. Last week work on the excavation necessary for the building was commenced.

CONFEDERATION LIFE FOR STRENGTH, SERVICE AND SECURITY

YOUNG MEN RARELY BELIEVE IT. BUT OLD MEN KNOW IT TO BE ONLY TOO TRUE

We understand young men who pooh-pooh the idea that they won't be well off at 60. That's the right spirit. Unfortunately statistics show that only about five men in a hundred are comfortably well off at 60.

You can "play safe" by placing part of your earnings in a Confederation Life Monthly Income policy with Total Disability and Double Indemnity Accident Benefits. A guaranteed income of $100 a month, at age 60, for the rest of your life will look pretty good.

So—if you want to "play safe", consult us now about a guaranteed Monthly Income.
