Has Pulled Five From The River

Lifeguard Says Current Treacherous and Children Often Get Beyond Their Depth.

Five persons, all of them children, have been pulled out of the river in the last two weeks by William Coppins, lifeguard. The last near-fatality was on Saturday when a little girl got beyond her depth and was struggling in the treacherous current when Coppins arrived in his skiff and pulled the exhausted child over the side.

The current in the river is particularly dangerous in some spots this year, said the lifeguard today. He said that children often try to swim across the river to the pier on the other side. They get carried downstream by the current and then become exhausted trying to fight their way back.

From his vantage point at the side of the Mattagami the guard is able to get to any point in the area where the most swimming is done within a few minutes.

Coppins is on guard from eight o'clock in the morning until eight at night. He said that the swimming season began about the first of the month and that many children now come down daily for a dip in the not-too-warm waters of the Mattagami.

Second Open-Air Band Concert Sunday Night

The second of the series of open air band concerts by the Timmins Citizens' Band will be given on Sunday evening after the church services at the bandstand on Spruce Street.

The development of number 25 vein, which was found last year, proved it to be the most profitable ore body in the McIntyre Porcupine Mine, J. P. Bickell, President, told shareholders at the annual meeting yesterday.

Mr. Bickell announced that an extra dividend of $1 would be declared in addition to regular dividends when directors meet at the regular dividend meeting next October.

During the past year, said Mr. Bickell, number 25 vein was proved from the 3,500 foot level vertically to the 4,125 level. On the 3,875 level the vein was developed horizontally for 709 feet at a width of 12 feet. The rich ore from that body would bolster the treatment of average or lower grades of ore, which if mined separately, would lower the general average.

Future earnings of the company will be stabilized by the ore from the new body. Its discovery led to the thought that the company could distribute a greater portion of its earnings and to the decision to declare the extra dividend.

Although the outlook at the present time was as bright as it ever has been, said Mr. Bickell, there was a marked contrast in tons developed below the 3,000 foot level as compared to development above that horizon.

A note of warning was sounded by the McIntyre President. He pointed out that directors, realizing the "varying nature" of the business which made it impossible to foresee with any accuracy beyond a few years, intended to review the situation at the end of each calendar year. The review would be made with the intention of deciding upon the advisability of making extra distribution. Should conditions change the directors would have no hesitation in recalling the extra dividend.

General Manager, R. J. Ennis, said that the highlight of the past year was the discovery of number 25 vein. The vein was opened on five levels showing a total length of 2,800 feet over a width of 12 feet. It graded one ounce of gold to the ton.

The company was driving on three levels to look for similar ore bodies underneath porphyry, said Mr. Ennis. He predicted that the driving would reach its objective within 90 to 120 days.
