World Appears to be Much Out of Joint

Columnist Chronicles a Number of Odd Things.

Writing in The Toronto Telegram this week Thomas Richard Henry attacks a number of different subjects, all with his unusual sense of humour. Here is the way the world of the moment appears to Thomas Richard Henry:—

About Tientsin Speaking of Tientsin (pronounced with the emphasis on the last syllable) the morning paper says: "Canadian commercial interests here are limited to three insurance agencies."

Having your commercial interests in China limited to the business of insuring lives sounds like the height of something or other.

In fact, it sounds like the results of a Mackenzie King trade treaty could sound.

Out of Joint Pea canners and pea growers of Wisconsin are reported to be jubilant "because the pea pack there this year will be the lowest in 17 years."

The world is out of joint, because instead of rejoicing in abundance all the rejoicing is reserved for poor crops and high prices.

All efforts are directed toward cutting down production and raising prices of everything.

The 20th century is funny that way. Gliding the Lily The Textile Colour Card Association of New York has announced nine new shades, "holiday, sunlit, sunsan, facile, roseltie, wineglo, tropic earth, exciting and Hawaii."

We wonder how they missed "exotic" and "allure"—or maybe they used them before.

These may be colours, but try to find them in any rainbow—or try to get your next automobile painted "facile," or "exciting," or even "tropic earth."

Evangeline All the divorcees of Hollywood have not destroyed Judge Lewis Eastmead's faith in marital constancy.

Down in Jersey City the judge sentenced a man to serve from 20 to 30 years in prison and then told him "Despite all that has happened, your wife will be waiting for you upon your return."

License Language Mrs. V.W. submits license number "3CH10" (To Ohio).

An employee of Calladine and Baldry, Ltd., says Eric Calladine has license number "12121" on his car. "Is he 21?" He says he is 21—.
