

Manager of Palace Theatre Wedded at North Bay Tuesday

Frank Colameco and Miss Rose Palangio Wedded This Week.

Snapdragons, peonies and carnations decorated the altar of St. Rita's Roman Catholic Church in North Bay on Tuesday morning at 8:30 o'clock, for the marriage of Rose, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Palangio, of 258 First avenue, North Bay, to Mr. Frank Colameco, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Colameco, of 169 Balsam street, south, Timmins. The Rev. Fr. Truffa officiated in the presence of a large number of friends of the popular bride and groom.

Mrs. John Palangio, Jr., was the organist, and Miss Jean Cangiano sang Mascagni's "Ave Maria." A duet during the mass was sung by Miss Ann Notte and Mr. E. Virgili.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was very lovely in a gown of white chiffon, fashioned with a sweetheart neckline, long sleeves, and a very full skirt. Her veil of silk net with insets of lace fell in a long train, and was caught in a coronet of orange blossoms and lily-of-the-valley. She wore white shoes, and a pearl necklace, the gift of the groom. Her bouquet was made up of white roses and lily-of-the-valley.

Miss Mary Palangio, of Timmins, sister of the bride, acted as maid-of-honour, charming in a gown of mava blue silk net, over taffeta, appliqued with pink rosettes. It was made with a fitted waistline, and flared skirt, and very full short sleeves, and she wore a wide hat of soft natural straw. The maid-of-honour carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Mr. Enzo Colameco, brother of the groom, of Timmins, was the groomsmen.

Following the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was served at the Empire Hotel to about seventy-five invited guests. Mrs. Palangio, mother of the bride, received the guests, attractively attired in an ensemble of blue chiffon, with a large white hat, and a corsage of pink roses. The groom's mother chose for the occasion a street-length frock of black lace, with matching accessories, and a corsage of pink roses. Immediately after the wedding ceremony, the bride and groom left on a honeymoon trip to New York City, and other points in the United States and Canada. The bride chose for travel a navy and white rendingote ensemble, with a large white straw hat and matching accessories.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding included: Mr. and Mrs. D. Colameco; Mr. and Mrs. G. Ferrari; Mr. and Mrs. A. Pappone; Mr. Enzo Colameco; Little Miss Matilda Colameco; Miss Theresa DeTullo; Mr. and Mrs. Gene Colombo; Mr. Leo Mascioli; Miss Mary Palangio; Miss Rose Pilon; Miss Ann Honkala, and Mr. Norman Mascioli, all of Timmins.

The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful pearl necklace; the bride's

SIFTING THE NEWS

By Hugh Murphy

Twenty-one years ago a thin man in a brown suit shot the Archduke Ferdinand, heir to the Austrian throne and his wife, Princess Sophie. Seizing the opportunity, Germany plunged the world into war—and there hasn't been a quiet moment since.

When the Archduke stood up in his car in Sarajevo, Yugoslavia, received the assassin's bullet in his chest and slumped down, it plunged the world into a maelstrom of killing and plundering which never before had been equalled.

Finally the warring nations made a peace. It was made only after a strong, proud nation had been beaten to its knees. After the war the winners met to decide the terms of peace. Being winners they were not too lenient. They imposed huge penalties, financial and economic, on the defeated nation.

After a time, as strong nations are bound to do, defeated Germany rebelled. She repudiated debts; she violated treaties and was accordingly branded as a nation which did not live to its word.

Taking advantage of general dissatisfaction and unrest a man came along and offered the old solution of nationalism. Of course it was dressed up—it took a different form. Today we are fearing that man and that nation.

The British House of Commons on Monday night approved the excess profits bill which (the papers say) "provides for a levy on excess profits of firms receiving £2,000,000 (about $936,000) or more in gross annual orders for armament works."

The papers give a wrong impression. By reading them one would assume that the sixty per cent tax was on all profit. Such is not the case. The government would not be that harsh on the poor penless armament manufacturers. That word "excess" is where the catch comes in.

"Normal" profits are allowed the armament makers. In order to determine what is meant by "excess" profits the government has taken "normal" profits over a period of three years and averaged them. Above that average is considered "excess" profits and is taxed accordingly.

Which leaves the armament makers their "normal" profits, which—no might venture to say, are considerable.

One of those "confidential sources" reputed to be close to the government—one of those "authoritative source" hitherto found reliable, states that Britain at the present time, is building planes faster than Germany.

gift to the groom was a pair of travelling slippers; to the groomsmen, travelling set; to the maid-of-honour, evening bag; to the organist, framed picture; to the soloist, dresser clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Colameco will take up residence in Timmins on Mountjoy street south.

WORK BETTER HERE THAN WEALTH

Wealth and social position mean so little in comparison with liberty and peace that Stephen H. Haly gave up a good executive position to Rumania to start a small farm near Chatham, Ont. A brilliant career lies behind him. Ahead there awaits the arduous labor and the small pay of an Ontario market gardener. With him are his wife and their 11-year-old son Tibor, who will grow up a Canadian. Mr. Halmay and his son are shown here.

Aidromes are popping out of the ground in England 'tis said here and there—wherever one may look one's vision is likely to be obscured by an aidrome popping up like a mushroom.

Troops are flying the colors. Britain is becoming a nation of might rather than one which maintains that truth will win in the end no matter what may come. In other words England is going back to her natural state. She is becoming more and more like the Britain the younger generation read about in its history books.

Premier Chamberlain has armour plated his umbrella. He has sharpened the point in order to use it as a lance. Britain is going back to type.

Complaints Against Police Heard

would not.

"Why wouldn't you?" asked the Magistrate.

"They had no right to have me there," was the reply.

Corroboratory evidence was given by the older brother, Eli Dion.

Constable William Thompson was called by the Commission. He said that the three boys who were brought in were put in separate rooms. One was with him. When Daniel, who was with him, got up to speak to his brother in another room he told him to sit down, said the policeman.

"He wouldn't do, so I grabbed him by the shoulder. When he started to curse, half in French and half in English, I put both hands on both of his shoulders and sat him down," said the officer. He denied that he was angry or that he bumped the boys head.

A complaint had come in that thieves were siphoning gasoline from automobiles, explained Inspector Olson. One complaint was investigated and when police arrived they found their car there. It was the same car the police believed which is driven by Eli Dion and his brother and friend. When they went to Dion's home no one was home. Later, said the Inspector, the father called to say the boys were home. Police went and got them and started to question them.

The matter was dismissed with a warning to police to treat prisoners with civility and consideration.

Sam Kosa believed that police had been persecuting him "to the extent that my business is on the verge of ruin." Police were after his trucks more than other people's.

"Certainly they are not," said the Magistrate. "Other people have been fined much more than you."

Kosa maintained that the payment of fines, legal fees, the posting of a bond to get his license back and other expenses last year had amounted to $2,000.

Referring to the several convictions again for him overloading trucks, Kosa said that it was impossible to estimate the weight of the water-soaked timbers he drew from the river to the McIntyre Mine for eight cents each.

"Why not use the Town scales?" asked the Mayor.

"It was not a matter of a few pounds," said the Magistrate. "When this man overloads it usually is thousands of pounds over."

Kosa was told to get in touch with police in order to try to fix a legal load and to try and co-operate with police.

Mrs. Jerry Poulin wrote a letter to the Commission to say that she had been "blacklisted" by her friends and relatives since the report got in the papers that she charged Ben Palubski with burning down Coulas's store. She wanted the statement stricken from the Commission's record.

"We have no records," said the Magistrate. "If she has any grievance with the newspapers let her take it up with them."

Everything from shirts of various sizes to light gabardine uniforms were discussed and finally it was decided that in any event it was late in the summer to do anything this year. The department was given authority to order up to six new summer tunics of the type being used at present.

A report from the Chief Constable informed that 14 of the Constables had passed their first aid examinations and that thanks were due Mr. Matthews Madden, of the St. John's Ambulance Society. The Commission passed a resolution of thanks to Mr. Madden.

It was Chief Gagnon's idea to dress his men in shirts during the hot weather, said Inspector Olson—shirts to be worn without tunics.

"I hate shirts," said the Magistrate. "I would far rather see the men in a light tunic."

Find Farmer's Body Hanging from Rafter Suicide Police Say

Find Body of Louis Labrecque Late on Monday.

Louis Labrecque, 45 years of age, a Mountjoy Township farmer, was found hanging from a rafter in the hay loft in his barn on Monday evening at a late hour. The gruesome discovery was made by his wife who went to look for him when she discovered he had not been to bed.

Police who investigated said that the hanging appeared to be a straight case of suicide. For some time Labrecque had been in ill health, and through his illness, had suffered periods of despondency.

Dr. L. Minthorn, Coroner, was called to the scene of the apparent suicide by police. He released the body and ordered its burial. No inquest was deemed necessary as all the circumstances pointed to suicide.

Mrs. Labrecque told police that her husband was suffering from a painful stomach ailment and that he had been acting peculiarly for some time. She had a premonition that something was going to happen.

Labrecque ran a small dairy farm on the east bank of the Mattagami River near the Fesserton Lumber Company.

Police said that the knot tied in the rope was a type to break the man's neck instantly. His heels were only a few inches off the floor when police arrived on the scene and cut him down.

The funeral will be held this morning. Labrecque is survived by his wife and small family.

Gray's Shows Open at Riverside Park for This Week

First Show Last Night. Will Leave After Saturday Night.

Cwing to the flooded condition at Kapuskasing where they were last week, Gray's mighty midway was not able to reach here to open on Monday as expected, but were open at the Riverside park last night and will continue the big show the rest of this week, closing after Saturday night. This popular midway always draws big crowds. Gray's shows specialize in rides and amusement, having all the popular features in those lines with some extra specials not carried by any other show. The leader this year is "The Rocket," the only one in Canada, the latest import from Europe where it has thrilled thousands, just as it is thrilling thousands here. Sideshows and other attractions add to the pleasure of the Gray's Midway. The free act each night is the sensational dive of Capt. Duncan Fairlie from a height of 85 feet to a 5 ft. tank flooded on top with gasoline and lighted, and with Capt. Fairlie himself ablaze.
