Foreign Espionage Uncovered in "They Made Her a Spy"

Sally Eilers and Allan Lane Form Romantic Team in Spy Film.

One of the most popular "spy films"—and popular on its own decided merit both for its information and its entertainment features, is being shown at the Cartier theatre, Timmins, this week. The feature is entitled, "They Made Her a Spy," and the dates of presentation here are Monday and Tuesday, August 21st and 22nd. This picture has action, interest, intrigue, romance and other entertainment values, and all who see it will be pleased that they did.

Brown-haired Sally Eilers and husky Allan Lane are teamed romantically for the first time in the RKO Radio thrill drama, "They Made Her a Spy."

Although both players have played in numerous pictures produced by the studio to which they are under contract, the current offering marks their first appearance together. Miss Eilers' most recent films are "Tarnished Angel" and "Condemned Women," while Lane has recently been featured in "Twelve Crowded Hours" and "Pacific Liner."

"They Made Her a Spy," said to be an unusually timely document, lifts the lid from the mass of international intrigue in official Washington and points out how it invades all branches of civil and military life at the nation's capital.

Miss Eilers is cast as a young lady whose brother, an army man, is killed as a result of sabotage. Determined to avenge her brother's death and at the same time be of service to her country, Miss Eilers becomes a volunteer government agent and aids the army intelligence division expose a gigantic foreign spy ring. Lane plays a newspaperman who becomes a member of the spy organization in order to obtain a story for his paper. The activities of the pair throw them together a great deal and from this association a warm romance develops.

Directed by Jack Hively, "They Made Her a Spy" features in the supporting cast Fritz Leiber, Frank M. Thomas, Theodore Von Eltz and Addison Richards.

spoke to the council regarding the installation of the sewerage system on Elm street. He said that he understood that the council did not intend to do the work on account of the rock on the street. He suggested that the main be run on the back of the lots. Town Engineer Stueliffe explained that the plans provided for such a method to overcome the difficulty.

One day about twenty years ago some little excitement was caused by the dinky engine used in the construction work on the spur line to the river. The whistle pierced the fog a score of times with its hoofs that seemed calls for help. The cause of all this noise and turmoil was found to be due to the fact that a couple of cars of gravel had been broken away from a work train and started by themselves down the track of the spur line, gathering more speed as they went along, as there was a decided drop in the grade of the line to the river. Eventually the runaway gravel cars got going so fast that they could no longer keep the rails, and off they went from the track into the ditch. In the meantime, however, the little dinky engine, as soon as the runaway cars were noticed in their mad career, started after them, tooting the whistle and whistling the toot all the time. The whistle warned all and sundry that something desperate was in the air. At the time The Advance sarcastically suggested the double-tracking of all the T. & N. O. with Mattagami spur line grade on each track, the one grade south and the other north, as a method for securing speed among the trains on the line.

In August, 1919, from behind the Timmins rink a diamond drill outfit could be seen at work a short distance west of Moneta, and south of the town of Timmins. The diamond drilling was being done by the Northwoods Mining Co. of which C. B. Morgan was the local representative. The Northwoods corporation held a large number of claims in the Porcupine. They were drilling the claims on the sand plains in the hopes of locating extensions of Hollinger veins. The heavy overburden of sand made the work difficult.

The Advance of Aug 13th, 1919, said: "This week the Hollinger Gold Mines purchased J. P. McLaughlin's store and stocks, and the store is now closed for the taking of stock, after which it will be opened up again as a Hollinger store. The purpose is to do everything possible to make matters easier for the employees in the matter of the cost of living. "We are doing everything possible," Mr. Brigham said this morning. "To help the men employed by the Hollinger. We want them contented and pleased. The Hollinger Stores will mean an all-round reduction for them of at least fifteen per cent, as soon as everything is working smoothly. On some lines the reduction may not be as large as fifteen per cent, but on others it will be possible to give more and so the reduction on everything all round will work out to fifteen per cent or more." By co-operating with the Hollinger in the matter it would seem that the men can thus greatly improve their position. It is quite evident that the Hollinger is earnestly endeavouring to do all possible for the advantage of the men. The stores have not yet had time to get adjusted to the new plans, but progress is being made and material reductions given. With the inauguration of the new system now under way the plans will work much more smoothly. By working together in this matter the men and the mines can assuredly better conditions and guarantee a period of progress and prosperity for the camp. And all this can be accomplished without business in general being injured, for there will be lots of business for all in the camp."

Twenty Years Ago

From The Porcupine Advance Files

At the council meeting twenty years ago, a good citizen of the town made public complaint to the council because the police had entered his house unannounced to search for liquor, and thus had alarmed the ladies of the house as well as putting an unnecessary and unwarranted reflection on the house. The police explained that the whole matter was a mistake made in the hurry of attempting to enforce the Ontario Temperance Act. Some drunken men had been noticed in the vicinity and Officer Collins had thought they came from this house. As soon as the house was entered the police realized a mistake had been made, and made courteous explanations and withdrew, Chief Wilson stated. The householder pointed out to the council that a little reasonable enquiry, a little common sense and judgment would have avoided this annoyance and injury to a respectable and law-abiding house. There were dozens of places in town where the law was brazenly flouted and neither Chief Wilson nor others of the police seemed to pay any attention to the matter. For this reason the citizen in question particularly resented the incident complained of, for which the police now admitted they had not the slightest fair ground or reason. Councillor Longmore said he could quite understand the feelings of a good citizen in such a case. He knew the man making the complaint, and for a respectable citizen to feel that a reflection had been placed upon him was not pleasant but Councillor Longmore thought that the matter had been remedied by the acknowledgement of the police that a mistake had been made. This, he felt, cleared the gentleman's character completely. The citizen complaining to council replied to this saying that he was satisfied if it was acknowledged that a mistake had been made. When he had approached the chief of police in the matter, however, Chief Wilson had simply "gone up in the air," and the good citizen felt that this sort of business should not be tolerated. Every assistance should be given the police, but at the same time the police should be careful in throwing reflections on good citizens. The matter was then allowed to drop. At the same meeting of the council Mr. D. Carling

Story of Big Bear From Canoe Lake, Near Renfrew

(From Eganville Leader)

While some women were on their way to the Post Office for the mail they were overtaken by a bear. Getting a bad scare they spread the alarm to the Barry's Bay lumber camp. A young gentleman from Killaloe who was working in the cookery where the rifle was, ran out with the gun but as he couldn't find anything to steady the rifle on refused to shoot the bear. Another man who was with him took the rifle on but by this time the bear was gone. He took up the trail which he followed for several miles, but being boss of the lumber yard he had to be back for work at seven o'clock in the morning.

This monster bear made his appearance on August 1st and made a vicious attack on the choreboy. He having a 30-30 rifle in hand tried his luck at killing the animal, but after missing with the first shot he dropped the rifle and made haste to the sleep camp. Then it was our faithful three months old dog gave a fierce cry and brought the boys out of camp. One of our Cormac boys picked up the rifle which was only within ten feet of the bear. Knowing it was a trusty ranger's 30-30 Winchester he shot; seeing the savage animal was still making his charge he fired a second shot which was fatal, and the big monster which weighed between five and six hundred pounds was done for—and little Joe's life was saved.

Campers came from all over Algonquin Park to see our dead brute before he was disposed of.

Second Death in 36 Hours from Poison in Rouyn, Que.

Rouyn, Aug. 19th.—Vassil Humanuk, 41, whose body was found in his wife's shack near Stadacona last Thursday night at about ten o'clock, died of eating or drinking poison, it was learned at a coroner's inquest in Rouyn or Monday night. There has been no evidence yet to point to the possibility of anyone administering the poison. Humanuk's death was the second in 36 hours from poison, that of Joe Charette, on Wednesday morning, having clearly been suicide.

provincial police headquarters following the submitting of a report from the Noranda post. On Monday night Coroner Dr. G. A. Rioux questioned several witnesses, one of whom had seen Humanuk immediately prior to his death.

Charge Man at Sudbury with "Peeping Tom" Tricks

Sudbury, Aug. 19—Trapped by an angered citizen who lay in wait for him, Mike Nikos, 34, 272 Bloor street, appeared in city police court here charged with vagrancy and was described as a "Peeping Tom" by Chief Constable L. S. Evans. Nikos was remanded pending further police investigation.

Nikos was caught on the verandah of 292 1/2 Frood Road, about 11 o'clock by Bill Simmons of that address, who was waiting under cover for a possible visitation of a "Peeping Tom" who had made a previous visit to the premises.

"We've been hunting him for weeks" declared Chief Evans. "He has been around bothering people by peeping in windows and frightening women."

Huntingdon Gleaner — How would you like to do a job of work every Sunday—and keep it up for 50 years? This has been the experience of William Rutledge, grand old man of the Dorset village of Evershot, who has wound up the church clock there every Sabbath for half a century. William would never have "struck," but the clock which has been going for 90 years, forced him to take a rest by ceasing work itself. The clock is a little brother of Big Ben, both being made by E. I. Dent, Queen Victoria's clockmaker.
