SIFTING THE NEWS

By Hugh Murphy

This nation is at war again after a rest period of twenty-five years. And again it is the German who has to be fought. The last war lasted for more than four years. How long this one will last God alone knows. Great Britain feels that it will go on for three years at least. Hitler says he can hold out for ten.

There is very little comment to be made. It seems to be just a job of work to be done and while it is man's most unpleasant task it is there to be done. We have been told how it started. If there is more to it than we have been told there is not a great deal one can do about it. The simple fact remains that Hitler is determined to conquer the world and the equally simple fact that people of this nation and the other democracies of the world would rather fight, and if need be, die, than submit to the rule of force which Nazism would impose.

One might say that this country is so situated geographically that it is almost safe from attack. Perhaps that is true. Perhaps if we could persuade the United States to link with us we could be snugly safe on this continent and free from Europe's turmoil. That seems to be the attitude of the United States at the present time.

Put men are peculiar creatures. Even at their lowest they have some kind of a principle to hang to. Even the worst of them will not always let expediency alone govern his outlook.

In this case the principle involved is democracy. It may not be in very good condition—in fact one is hard pressed even to define it in its present state, but it is infinitely better at its worst than any of the totalitarian creeds—be they Fascism, Nazism, Communism or what have you. So it seems to be a choice between our badly bent democracy, which however still might be doctored into a state of health, and a creed of force that is absolutely foreign to the nature of peoples who have a tradition of a democratic system of government behind them.

We could, as has been said, remain neutral in this conflict and save our skins. But we would sacrifice more in moral and mental health by doing so than we will even though the bodies of our men may be shattered and cruelly broken on Europe's blood-soaked soil.

At Doorn, in Holland, there lives an aged, white-bearded man by the name of Friederick Wilhelm Victor Albert von Hohenzollern. Once by the Grace of God he was Emperor of Germany and King of Prussia.

Like Hitler he had visions of world domination by Germany. To convince him that it was impossible about ten million men gave their lives and hundreds of thousands more were broken and twisted in mind and body. After four years the Kaiser's nation was defeated and it paid the penalties of the vanquished.

They hustled the then proud, contemptuous Prussian by the upturned moustache and withered arm out of Germany for fear that his own tired and disillusioned people would kill him. They took him to Holland and there he has since remained.

The years from that morning have been quiet years. No longer did people all over the world hate him; no longer did they want him hung. They just wanted to forget about him—and forget him they did.

What were his reactions a week ago, one wonders, when he heard that his Fatherland had marched into Poland and two days later that France and Britain were again at war with Germany.

When he heard the news, reports a despatch, the 80-year-old man called his wife Herminie and his entourage into his modest living room and led them in prayer. Then he went upstairs where his first wife Empress Augusta Victoria had died, and knelt by the bed and prayed again, alone.

He came downstairs then again and spread before him a map of Poland, and to the re-awakened echo of canon fire, he began once again to put little coloured pins in the paper.

Winter Carnival at the Cartier Theatre This Week

"Winter Carnival" is the feature at the Cartier theatre Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of this week, September 11th to 14th. High class vaudeville also adds interest to the programme.

"Winter Carnival" is a picture that is making a hit wherever shown. It has a capable cast, a pleasing plot, and superior stage settings. A review of the cast and plot are given herewith.

Cast: Ann Sheridan, Richard Carlson, Helen Parrish, Robert Armstrong, Virginia Gilmore, Alan Baldwin, Joan Brodel, James Corner, Morton Lowry, Marsha Hunt, Robert Allen.

Screenplay by Lester Cole, Budd Schulberg and Maurice Rapp. Original story by Budd Schulberg. Directed by Charles F. Riesner. Produced by Walter Wanger.

Plot: Ann Sheridan, alluring heiress, having divorced a European nobleman, boards a New England train in New York in an effort to escape reporters. She meets her sister, Helen Parrish, who is Dartmouth-bound to attend the annual Winter Carnival over which Ann herself had once reigned as Queen. Arriving at Hanover, Ann meets an old flame, Carlson, who still loves her but smarts under the treatment she gave him and her later marriage and divorce. Their reunion is cordial, but Carlson still remains somewhat aloof. Almost reunited, they quarrel again and she is ready to leave when she learns that Helen, elected Queen, plans to run away with Lowry, titled Norwegian ski champion. Hoping to save her sister from her own bitter experience, Ann appears at the dance, and turning on the glamour, lures Lowry away from Helen. Again she plans to leave, but Carlson, learning of her good deed, decides to go with her and make it a honeymoon.

Summary: Gay and exhilarating throughout, with moments of compelling drama interspersed here and there, "Winter Carnival" is not only ideal entertainment for the summer but any other season as well. Although it has a college background, the scripters have wisely accorded the film a novel twist by centering its action against the world-famous Dartmouth Winter Carnival and then evolving a romantic story of a girl who though life was just one grand winter carnival. Never has Ann Sheridan appeared to such advantage, and even though she is entitled to her "comph girl" designation, there are times, especially in the dramatic and romantic interludes, when her charm and loveliness seem so natural that the "comph" designation becomes artificial in comparison. Richard Carlson, as the professor determined to save himself from further heartbreak, is excellent. Helen Parrish, Robert Armstrong, Virginia Gilmore and others in the large cast perform well. Director Charles F. Riesner, aided by a corking script, talented players and a gay and exciting background, keeps the story moving along at a swift pace. Since the picture was actually photographed during the Dartmouth Winter Carnival, the snow-covered backgrounds enhance the beauty of the photography. Miss Sheridan displays a wardrobe to delight feminine audiences.

Swastika Man Sentenced for Offence Against Girl

Kirkland Lake, September 9.—In the police court Thursday afternoon Magistrate Atkinson sentenced Thomas Mayhew, of Swastika, to five years in Kingston Penitentiary on a charge of serious offence against his 15-year-old daughter.

The whole afternoon was taken up by presentation of the lengthy evidence in the case. The girl testified against her father, who pleaded guilty to the charge.

Cochrane Man Given Term for Reckless Driving

Kirkland Lake, Sept. 9.—Magistrate Atkinson sentenced Aurele Deforges, of Cochrane, to two months in jail in police court this week when he found him guilty on a reckless driving charge which His Worship described as a case of gross carelessness.

Deforges was charged after his car hit a small girl who was playing beside the highway, when Deforges drove by last week. He told the court that he saw the child but did not know that he struck her. Two eye witnesses stated that the two-year-old was at least two feet from the travelled portion of the road and was struck on the head by the Deforges car as it passed.

The fact that the child was not seriously hurt or killed saved the young man from a possible charge of manslaughter. His Worship pointed out. In making his decision Magistrate Atkinson stated that it appeared to be a case of gross carelessness. The driver's license was also cancelled for one year.

Virginia Jubilee Singers Here This Evening and Tuesday

Popular Musical Group Again Visiting Timmins.

For the fifth successive year, the Virginia Jubilee Singers are visiting Timmins. Under the auspices of the Timmins United Church Choir they will present their pleasing musical entertainment in the church building this (Monday evening and to-morrow (Tuesday) night. The event on each evening will commence at 8.15 p.m.

The Virginia Jubilee Singers have won high repute on the concert stage and on the radio with their presentation of Negro melodies, plantation songs, folk songs, Negro spirituals and other specialties. Audiences in Timmins in past years have been delighted with their programmes, and in this have shown kinship with other and larger centres. For example, Toronto last year gave this brilliant company of singers some forty-eight separate engagements.

Tickets for the event this evening, or for to-morrow evening, may be secured from any member of the United Church Choir or from Molesley and Ball's Drug Store, Third avenue.

Advises Planning of Subdivisions Being Opened

Says Thickest Populated Area of Timmins Has About 250 Persons per Two and a Half Acres.

Donald Monson of the Chicago Armour School of Technology, was the speaker at the regular meeting of the Lions Club on Thursday evening in the Empire Hotel. Mr. Monson, who is a town planning and construction architect, told club members that they should be very careful in Timmins to see that every new subdivision was properly planned.

In illustration of his warning, Mr. Monson pointed out that at present, in the most thickly populated area of Timmins, there were about 250 persons for every two and a half acres. Conditions in the area were similar to those in a slum. There was little room and not the proper amount of air and sunshine.

In a planned area of the same size, two and a half acres, it was possible, said the speaker, to house 500 people comfortably and well. Unnecessary roads would be eliminated. The plan would eliminate peak roofed houses. Flat roofed houses which were more practical, less expensive and which did not cast shadows to darken the area, would take their place.

To make that change in built-up sections of Timmins now would be extremely expensive and quite impractical, said Mr. Monson, but one thing the citizens could do and that was make sure that new subdivisions being opened up were planned for the maximum efficiency.

Unnecessary side streets could be closed off and the area sodded so that it might be used for much-needed playgrounds. For instance, Chicago blocks are twice as large as those in Timmins; New York blocks still larger. Hence it is safe to say that half of the cross streets could be closed without inconvenience to the traffic and with substantial tax savings in street upkeep. The parks resulting would be close to the homes of the children using them and thus keep them off the streets and out of danger.
