Find Drivers Negligent In Inquest Into Death Of Two In Delnite Crash

"Find There was Negligence on the Part of Sholuker and McNeill, With the Greater Degree of Blame Attached to McNeill," is Verdict. Probe Evidence in Deaths William Anderson and Murray Gillis.

"We find that there was negligence on the part of Sholuker and McNeill with the greater degree of blame attached to McNeill" was the verdict of a Coroner's jury which yesterday probed the double fatality recently on the Delnite Road in which William Anderson and Murray Gillis lost their lives.

The deaths followed a motor accident on the evening of September 1. Anderson and Gillis and another young man, Gerald West, were picked up near the mine by Max Sholuker, who was driving a light roadster. They stood on the running board to be driven to the mine. Another automobile, driven by John McNeill, approached and struck the Sholuker car. The three were swept from their precarious locations and thrown to the road.

Anderson was being made comfortable in the centre of the road, spectators having been afraid to move him for fear of complicating his injuries, when another car came along and is believed to have passed over his body. Whether or not it did was not clearly brought out at the inquest yesterday. Driver of the third car involved was Peter Robillard.

Members of the jury were: Ernest Stevens, foreman; H. J. McMillan, Armand DesRoches, I. L. Stewart and A. A. Clarke.

Presenting a history of the case, Coroner Dr. Minthorn told the jury that at 10.30 p.m. on the night of September 1 a man named Sholuker was driving a car with Jack Barry as a passenger. Near the Delnite mine they picked up Murray Gillis and William Anderson and Gerald West. Gillis and Anderson stood on one running board and West on the other. They were run into by a car driven by John McNeill. After the impact Anderson was found lying in the centre of the road. Women put a pillow under his head and blankets over him. Another car, driven at a "terrific rate of speed," came along. It may or may not have run over Anderson's body.

Dr. Alex Finlayson, who was called to the scene of the accident, said that Anderson was dead when he arrived. Gillis had a very bad compound, comminuted fracture of the leg. He later died from heart failure induced by an infection, which in turn, was the result of the many injuries he received.

Dr. J. W. Sinclair, who performed the post-mortem examination on Anderson, said that death was caused by a broken neck and internal bleeding.

Legion Zone Meeting Urges Improvement

and the National Survey. He impressed on all to stress strongly to their members, not to be in a hurry to throw up their jobs. Canada has ample physically fit unemployed young men and these should be allowed the preference of enlistment or special work. Unemployed veterans were as far as fitness was concerned doing guard duties on important and vital locations.

Mr. Neame then touched on the recruiting situation that had arisen that day in Timmins. "Why should Toronto units get the cream of the North, when we already have a regiment here?" He also stated that the Algonquin Rifles seemed to be completely ignored by the military authorities. He urged the delegates to forward a strong resolution to the Minister of Defence. This, after a brief discussion by several of those present, was eventually brought in and passed unanimously. The resolution was as follows:—

"Whereas the Algonquin Rifles have been a more or less permanent Militia force in this area, that this Zone 21, Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L., does suggest to the proper authorities that the said Algonquin Rifles be allowed to conduct recruiting for their own regiment in this area, prior to any other regiment."

Cochrane representatives, through Comrade Carter, said they had a real problem. When war was declared, the young lads of the district had flocked to the Legion office, and sought information on enlistment. Some of the veterans who had previously registered for National Service were anxious to be placed into some duty and taken off relief. The officers got permission to open their premises as a clubroom. At their own expense they installed equipment and a telephone. The full-time services were being paid for a caretaker and in this regard, the speaker said the Mayor of Cochrane had cooperated very generously. He thought the idea behind the National Survey was to take over duties of enlistment or recruiting, but no word to this effect had been given. They had a very large number ready to join up. If something was not soon announced he thought they would not be so eager. He also asked that the caretaker of the club be paid by the Hydro or Provincial police as he was sending men out all the time, thanks to the telephone installed. Mr. Neame said he would take up this question with the authorities. The Kapuskasing delegates reported along the same lines and it was the general opinion that the Canadian Legion should be considered at least in the North in the matter of recruiting and the following resolution was ordered forwarded immediately:—

"Whereas the Canadian Legion Branches through Zone Commanders and Branch Officers are already in close touch with the Situation through the National Survey which has recently been taken, and whereas they are already in touch with a large number of men who wish to enlist, therefore, the Minister of National Defence be requested to take advantage of services of the Legion Branches as soon as recruiting is started."

Other local matters of Legion interest were touched upon, the convention reports being held over for use at the Iroquois Falls branch general meeting which was being held at the curling rink and the delegates adjourned to meet as a zone committee in Cochrane, the date to be decided by the zone commander.

At the Zone meeting there were representatives present from the following branches:—Timmins, 5; South Porcupine, 2; Iroquois Falls, 2; Matheson, 4; Cochrane, 5; Kapuskasing, 10; Heart, 1.

Entertained Friends on Her Eighth Birthday

A number of her little friends gathered at the home of little Miss Laila Kojonen, 69 Cameron Street, north, on Monday, to celebrate the eighth birthday of the hostess. The youngsters enjoyed many happy games, and Laila served a tasty lunch of goodies. She received numerous birthday gifts from her little friends, who all wished her many happy birthdays.

Quiet but Pretty Wedding at Trinity United Church

A quiet wedding took place at the Trinity United Church on Saturday, September 2nd, when the Rev. F. J. Baine united in marriage, Bernice, daughter of Mr. N. Whall, of North Bay, and the late Mrs. Whall, and Mr. Carl J. "Pat" Drown, son of the late Mr. Thomas Drown, and Mrs. Drown of Staffa, Ont.

The lovely bride was becomingly attired in a steel-length dress of pale midnight blue crepe wool, fashioned with elbow-length sleeves, shirred bodice and flared skirt, with a wide navy blue sash. She wore a wide-brimmed navy blue felt hat, and navy blue accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Drown have taken up residence in Timmins.
