Oddfellows Honour W. M. Whyte

that he had known Brother Whyte since 1909 when he founded a friendship with him in Elk Lake. He spoke of the long term of years in which the guest of the evening had served the communities in which he lived and the cause of brotherhood and friendship.

Mrs. J. Keene, former President of the Rebekah Assembly of Ontario, added apt words for Bro. Whyte's contribution to the advancement of Odd-fellowship and all that it meant in the benefit of all. Mrs. Keene made a big hit with some of her humorous references of the twenty-three years that she had known the guest of the evening and watched his energy, his ability and his kindly spirit.

G. A. Macdonald, as one who though not a member of the Order, but who for nearly a quarter of a century had known and appreciated the honoured guest of the evening, added tribute to Bro. Whyte, who had won the highest regard and affection of all who knew him. A few stories, including some Scottish ones, were added.

The chairman suggested that while all present seemed to think Dad Whyte about perfection, it might be well to have a word or two from one who knew him longer and better than any. "We may get the real low-down from his daughter, Mrs. R. Edleston," he said. Though she disguised her reply with genuine humour, the daughter did not break the record of esteem and affection expressed by all for "Dad." Mrs. Edleston thanked all for their kindly thought for "Dad" and for the friendship given him and meaning so much to him.

Bro. Geo. S. Drew in a brief but witty speech, spoke of the fine services of Dad Whyte and expressed the sincere hope that he would be spared many more years to observe happy birthdays in good health and happiness. As a mark of the affection and esteem in which he was held, he asked Bro. Whyte to accept an envelope he handed him. The envelope contained a substantial cheque from the Odd-fellows and Rebekahs.

The address by Bro. W. M. Whyte in reply was a striking proof that all the tributes paid him and the references to his remarkable memory and ability

One of the gifts received by Bro. Whyte during the evening was a year's membership in the Kitchener Rebekah Lodge, a gift for which he expressed especial appreciation.

He was founded on straight fact. He thanked all for their kindness and words of appreciation, and after a humorous story, he gave notable example of his keen faculties by reciting a lengthy poem from memory on the theme that example is better than precept. From the poem and his comments inspiration was given for better and nobler living. References to his early life and those who had inspired and encouraged him in better ways of living were followed by a recital of Tennyson's poem, "Crossing the Bar." Bro. Whyte pointed out that to truly understand the meaning of this poem it was necessary to know something of the sea. In his younger days he had lived beside the sea and the allusions in the poem had particular meaning for him. His recital of the poem gave it a new and deeper meaning and significance.

Bro. W. H. Pritchard, as one of the old-timers present who had worked from the early days with Bro. Whyte in the progress of Odd-fellowship in this part of the North, congratulated "Dad" Whyte on attaining another birthday in good health and hoped that many more such gatherings would be enjoyed. On behalf of the Lodge he thanked all who had helped to make the evening so happy and so successful. Referring to others of the old-timers who had been prominent with Dad Whyte in establishing Odd-fellowship in the Porcupine Camp, Bro. Pritchard had a good word for the chairman, who was the first Noble Grand of the Lodge here and who had given generous help to the Order since its first days here.

Bro. S. Sky, on behalf of himself and Mrs. Sky added a personal gift for the guest of the evening.

Another delightful feature followed in a pleasing lunch provided by the ladies. There was a handsome birthday cake with eightyseven lighted candles carried the length of the hall to the table in front of the honoured guest. It might be well termed a highlight of the evening to watch "the way" Dad Whyte blew out all the candles with the one blow in honored custom.

After the luncheon had been enjoyed, there was dancing for a time, all present feeling that a very happy old-time evening had been enjoyed and all sincerely wishing the honoured guest many happy returns of the day.

Highlights and Sidelights

Poland, and even bombed fleeing refugees on the roads, Premier Chamberlain last week informed the House of Commons that the Royal Air Force was strictly banned from making attacks on civilians.

British War Humour

While the British are taking the war more seriously than they have ever taken any other war, there are still samples quoted of the British war humour. One of the favourite stories in London, England, is about an aviator who took part in the now-famous leaflet raids over Germany. He is said to have returned to the base four hours after the other planes in the flight. "Where in the blinkety-blank have you been, and what kept you?" the squadron leader asked. "Why," was the reply. "It was so quiet over there in Germany, that I landed and shoved the leaflets under the doors," was the reply.

Looking for Orders

At present the city of Ottawa is said to be jammed with agents seeking war contracts of one kind or another. Members of parliament have been fairly deluged with letters in regard to probable work or employment in war supplies or equipment.

Warning from the U.S.A.
The United States Government last week issued a statement suggesting that the government is reserving all rights of the U.S.A. and its nationals under international law. It also served notice that when these rights were violated, "such measures as may seem most practical and prudent" would be adopted.

Closing Universities
Heidelberg University, for generations world-famous as one of the leading colleges in Germany, is to be closed indefinitely. Now, only five universities in Germany will continue classes during the winter. There are:—Berlin, Leipzig, Jena, Munich and Vienna.

Canadian Information Board
It is understood that the government is soon to name the personnel of a new board of public information which is to co-ordinate news of Canada's war efforts as developed from the various government departments.

Regulating Foreign Exchange
Finance Minister Ralston is quoted as saying that the use of Canadian money for circulation abroad, or for other purposes which cannot be regarded as desirable or necessary, would be bound to hamper Canada's war effort, and should be prevented." Consequently, there are strict regulations in regard to foreign exchange, the purchase of foreign securities, and the importation of foreign goods.

Baltimore Enterprise:—A Scotchman called at a local hardware store on Saturday and asked if he could buy a mousetrap with cheese on it.
