SIFTING THE NEWS

By Hugh Murphy

One of the characteristics of British Prime Ministers seems to be the gout. Hobbling gingerly after his first bout of gout (podagra) in eighteen months, Neville Chamberlain presided over a cabinet meeting last week his left foot swathed in an enormous flannel boot. Many British Premiers have been gouty. Some of them have been Derby, Disraeli, Palmerston, McSorbie, Canning and the two Pitts.

"The Elder Pitt's attacks of gout," said that Italian paper Telegrafo, last week, "were the most splendid and memorable in British history. They are definitely linked with the conquest of Canada and India. In British statesmen gout acts as an imperialist stimulant. Beware, if Mr. Chamberlain returns to the House of Commons hobbling on crutches."

A person is rather inclined to smile at the thought of gout but it is no smiling matter. The pain can be terrific. Chief cause is imperfect elimination of uric acid. Attacks may be caused by heavy consumption of rich food, malt liquor, liquors or by mental shock. Fifty per cent of gout is hereditary however, and over-indulgence usually only aggravates the condition. Uric acid retained in the bloodstream is likely to form chalky, stony deposits in the joints. First to suffer is the joint of the big toe, then the ankles, knees, hands and wrists. Common symptoms are cramps, inflammation, fever, headache, neuralgia and hot, itching feet. The latter symptom was known to oldsters picturesquely enough as 'the lipping of the gout.'

Why Premier Chamberlain should have gout is a matter of conjecture. It seems rather unfair that Chamberlain, no high liver, should be gouty. Many of his predecessors got it from stuffing themselves with mutton chops and port but not Chamberlain.

Adolf Hitler has rejected a French proposal, submitted through the International Red Cross, to designate neutral zones in which non-combatants would be safe from aerial warfare. The rejection was made on the grounds that this war will be a "total war" in which Germany will be unable to make any engagements in advance.

In other words this is to be a war in which there will be no limit placed on frightfulness. Well, we knew that after what happened in Poland. It should be no surprise that Germany is unwilling to bind itself to a promise to spare the women and the children. They too will have to suffer in this conflict.

On this continent we have no idea of the anxiety for the non-combatants that must be present in the minds of Europeans. Whatever happens we know that our dependents will be safe enough from a deadly rain of death from the skies. That feeling is not present in Europe and apparently it won't be.

Has Scored No Goals Shares Scoring Lead

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 25.—Max Kaminsky, Springfield's goalless wonder, was forced to share the scoring leadership in the International-American Hockey League today with Butch McDaid and Conny Brown of Indianapolis Capitals.

Kaminsky, in the van since the season opened, was credited with no goals and 10 assists for a total of 10 points in league statistics made public here.

McDaid scored a goal and an assist in Sunday's game against Cleveland Barons to give him 10 points—two goals and eight assists—while Brown recorded an assist to put him into the three-way first-place tie with four goals and six assists.

A charming wedding was solemnized at the Church of Assumption at Matachewan on Saturday morning at 9 o'clock, when the Rev. Fr. Bart united in marriage Miss Ethel Hogan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hogan, of Matachewan, and Mr. Chas. Glynn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glynn, of Toronto.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in a floor-length ensemble of wine chiffon velvet, fashioned on fitted lines, with a fitted bodice and sweetheart neckline, long fitted sleeves, and bustle back in the full flared skirt, falling into a short train. She wore a matching pancake hat, with a shoulder length veil, white gloves and silver and wine slippers, and a gold medal and chain, gift of her aunt on her wedding day. She carried a beautiful white satin prayer book, with bookmark of Talsman roses, falling into the long white satin streamers.

Miss Anne Macpherson of Timmins, attended her cousin as bridesmaid, charmingly attired in a gown of grape chiffon velvet, made on long fitted lines, with a fitted bodice, adorned with gold clips, long leg o' mutton sleeves, and bustle effect in the full flared skirt. She wore a turban to match, white gloves, and gold slippers, and a gold locket, and carried a white satin prayer book. Her corsage was made up of Talsman roses.

Mr. Bert Nolan, of Matachewan, was the groomsmen.

Following the ceremony, a buffet lunch was served at the home of the bride's parents, at Matachewan, where Mrs. Hogan received the guests, attractively attired in a gown of black chiffon, with matching accessories and a corsage of red roses.

A large number of friends were present to wish the popular bride and groom every happiness, and to present them with numerous lovely gifts.

The bride and groom are on a honeymoon trip to Sudbury, Toronto and Windsor, the bride choosing for travel a chic ensemble of teal blue, made on fitted lines, with a bustle back in the full skirt, and a jacket to match, with trimming of black fur. Councillor Tresidder Not to Seek Re-election

Kirkland Lake, Nov. 25.—Councillor Charles Tresidder, who has been on the Teck township council for the past three years, and was nominated on Friday for both the mayoralty and for council, announced this week that he will not be a candidate this election for any public office. His opinion as expressed in The Northern News, of which he is the manager, is to the effect that he should give way to others aspiring for municipal honours. "I must also admit," he said, "that I am not very enthusiastic about the term of two years, or for the duration of the war, which the provincial government has announced." "The work on council has been particularly interesting in the last three years, and it has been a pleasure to be associated with colleagues, who have, I feel, accomplished a great deal for Kirkland Lake," he added.

Mutual Life to Help All Employees Who Enlist

In accordance with its announced desire to render all available aid to the country in its present crisis and to co-operate fully in all measures designed to promote the successful conduct of the war, the Board of Directors of The Mutual Life of Canada has notified its Head Office and Branch Office staffs that assistance will be rendered to employees who leave to serve the Empire.

An immediate benefit of full pay for one month after enlistment, without any deductions, will be followed by further salary continuation benefits during the entire period of absence. The amount to be paid will be adjusted by government allowances to soldiers, the difference making it possible for dependents to carry on at home while the employee serves with his country's forces.

It has also been announced that positions will be retained for all those who leave to become soldiers, and the period of absence will be credited to the employee as service with the Company when he returns.
