Europe Faces Greatest Shortage of Foodstuffs

Jersey City, N.J., July 24—John W. Maloney, an American Red Cross representative, returned from war-torn Europe today with a declaration that "Europe faces one of the greatest shortages of foodstuffs in modern times."

Maloney, who toured 19 European countries since February, arrived on the American export liner Exeter from Lisbon. "The situation in Europe today gets more appalling by the week, as far as food is concerned," Maloney said. "Conditions are very bad. In fact, they are chaotic. There are a lot of people in Europe wondering what is going to happen this winter."

"France looks as though a bunch of locusts had gone over the land."

Another of Those Chain Letters, But This is Different

Local Gentleman Receives This One. Hopes the Chain Never Broken.

Last week The Advance referred to chain letters received in town on the pretence of selling war savings stamps, but promising the recipient $500 if the chain was not broken. Each man receiving the letter was to send it on to five friends and the five friends to five friends and so on. A war savings stamp was to be sent in each case to the man whose name headed the list of names below. The Advance was not in favour of it.

But a local gentleman this week showed The Advance another chain letter he had received. It is different. Here it is:—

"This chain was started in Reno in the hope of bringing happiness to all tired business men. Unlike most chains, this one does not cost any money. Simply send a copy of this letter to five male friends.

"Then, bundle up your wife and send her to the fellow whose name heads the list.

"When your name works up to the top, you will, in return, receive 15,176 GEORGEOUS GIRLS.

"HAVE FAITH, DO NOT BREAK THIS CHAIN. One man broke the chain and got his wife back."

Funeral on Tuesday of T. W. Woollings Pioneer of the North

Had Wide Interests in the North Land.

Englehart, July 24—The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon in Toronto, with burial in Prospect cemetery there, of Thomas S. Woollings, widely-known citizen of the North Country and one of the pioneer residents in this district, and who died at his home here after less than two weeks' illness. The body was sent to Toronto on Monday night's train, following funeral services held on the lawn at the family home, officiating clergymen being Rev. James Harrower, of the United Church; Rev. P. W. Graham, of the Presbyterian congregation and Rev. John Heal, Baptist minister.

Mr. Woollings, who was born in Toronto in 1874, had been among the earliest members of both the Masonic and Oddfellows' lodges here, and both Orders participated in the services in town. Mr. Woollings, a son of the late Joseph Woollings and the former Eleanor Doubleday, had been in the butchering business before he came North for the first time 37 years ago, and in the intervening years he had developed extensive lumbering interests throughout the northern part of Ontario. In recent years his health had not permitted very active participation in his business affairs.

With his brother, Mr. Woollings first came to Englehart in 1903, taking up residence in this town two years later after the brothers had erected a small cabin whose lumber they carried on their backs from the sawmill then operating at Thornloe. They subsequently held a contract to dig the first ditches in Englehart and cut timber on the road into Charlton when that highway was projected. Afterwards they went into the pulpwood business. Well-known as tree lovers, Mr. Woollings and his wife had planted all the ornamental trees on their home in Englehart. Among their other operations was a pulp business and store at Connaught.

Survivors include the widow, a daughter of Rev. William and Mrs. Farmer, of Bracebridge; three sons and a daughter. The sons are Victor, Albert and Englehart Woollings, all living here, the last named the first male white child born in this district, and the daughter is Mrs. Clayton Pollock, of Englehart. There are 10 grandchildren. One brother, James Woollings, of Englehart, also survives.

PAST PRAYING FOR

A cobbler christened his establishment "The Boot Hospital." A customer took him a pair of boots which would have disgraced a tramp.

"Shouldn't have these mended if I was you," said the cobbler severely. "I would present 'em to the deserving poor."

"But I want them mended," was the reply. "This is supposed to be a hospital for boots, isn't it?"

"Yes, it's a hospital all right enough," rejoined the repairer, "but it ain't a mortuary."
