

News Letter from 'D' Co. Algonquin Regt. C.A.S.F.

Bad Weather at Camp Borden Has Not Dimmed the Enthusiasm of D Company of the Algonquins. Number of Promotions of Timmins Men at Camp. Sports Under Way.

(By Lieut. C. G. Kinsey)
Cold winds and intermittent showers which have been sweeping for the past week over the rolling sand plains and wooded areas of Camp Borden have failed to chill or dampen the enthusiasm of the Algonquin Regiment. All the Algonquins have now settled down to a steady program of training and are generally showing great aptitude for the science of modern soldiering.

The Regiment landed in Camp Borden in a dim, dank dawn last Saturday, but over 900 eager Algonquins detrained with high enthusiasm and in orderly fashion, full of energy despite the tiring journey from the North Country.

The unfriendliness of the weather was forgotten in the warmth of the welcome given the Algonquins by the Grey and Simcoe Foresters Regiment. Waiting at the detrainment point were a Company of the Foresters to act as guard of honor, the regiment's bugle band, Lt. Col. T. Rutherford, Officer Commanding, and Major E. McDonald second in command.

The guard of honour was commanded by Captain Jack Robinson. The guard itself was made up of the Company which was recruited from the Algonquin Regiment for the Foresters. This company has Major V. Fell, M.M., of Burke's Falls, as commander, with Captain Robinson as second in command. The latter was formerly crown attorney at Haileybury, while one of the platoon commanders is Lt. Bob Buehl, of Timmins.

The better part of Saturday, Sunday and Monday was spent in getting the regiment properly settled down and in drawing necessary stores and equipment. On Tuesday morning all ranks were ready to get really into the swing of serious training.

The word quickly spread through Camp Borden on Saturday that the Algonquin Regiment had arrived from Northern Ontario. It took only a few minutes after the dismissal at noon for the Northern soldiers now with other units at Camp Borden to start visiting their friends in the Algonquin line. Men wearing the insignia of the 48th Highlanders, Ontario Regiment (Tank), Grey and Simcoe Foresters, Royal Canadian Engineers and the Provost Company were to be seen throughout Saturday and Sunday chatting with their friends and relatives from Timmins, Kirkland Lake, North Bay, Haileybury, Cochrane and a dozen other Northern towns.

An advance party had prepared the way for the arrival of the Algonquins at Camp Borden. The men were drawn up in battalion formation and then marched off by companies for a hot breakfast. The cooks had arrived with the advance party and were on the job. Among the cooks are Pts. Rafferty and MacLean who enlisted at Timmins with "D" Company. Officers and men are quartered in permanent huts which are all lighted by electricity. Spacious ablution rooms with hot and cold water and shower baths are available to the men, who have received further issues of clothing. Every man was soon given a mattress and blankets.

Several promotions have been made in "D" Company (Timmins) since the arrival at Camp Borden. Cpl. R. L. King was promoted to Sergeant and transferred to the 1st Reinforcements. Another man promoted to Sergeant was Cpl. J. W. Morrison who became Company of the Algonquin Regiment, known throughout sport circles in Northern Ontario for his fine work as a half back with the McIntyre Football Club. Lance Corporals Jock McCurdie (Dome) and J. A. McNeil (Timmins) are now wearing the stripes of full corporals, while former privates E. Dempsey (South Porcupine), C. G. Cochrane (Pamour), C. E. Minshall (South Porcupine) and R. G. Graff (Timmins) are now acting as Lancecorporals. Lt. Cpl. Graff with 1st Reinforcements Co. To make up for the loss of personnel through promotions, Ptes. G. A. Merrill and R. Heatherington have been transferred from 1st Reinforcements to 16 Platoon, "D" Co.

Sports competitions are getting under way now, and already some of the Companies have vied with each other at Soccer and Softball. The plan is to form a soccer team to represent the Algonquin Regiment and then issue a challenge to the other units at Camp Borden.

(There will be further information about the progress of the Regiment in its various activities in next week's Algonquin News Letter from Camp Borden.)

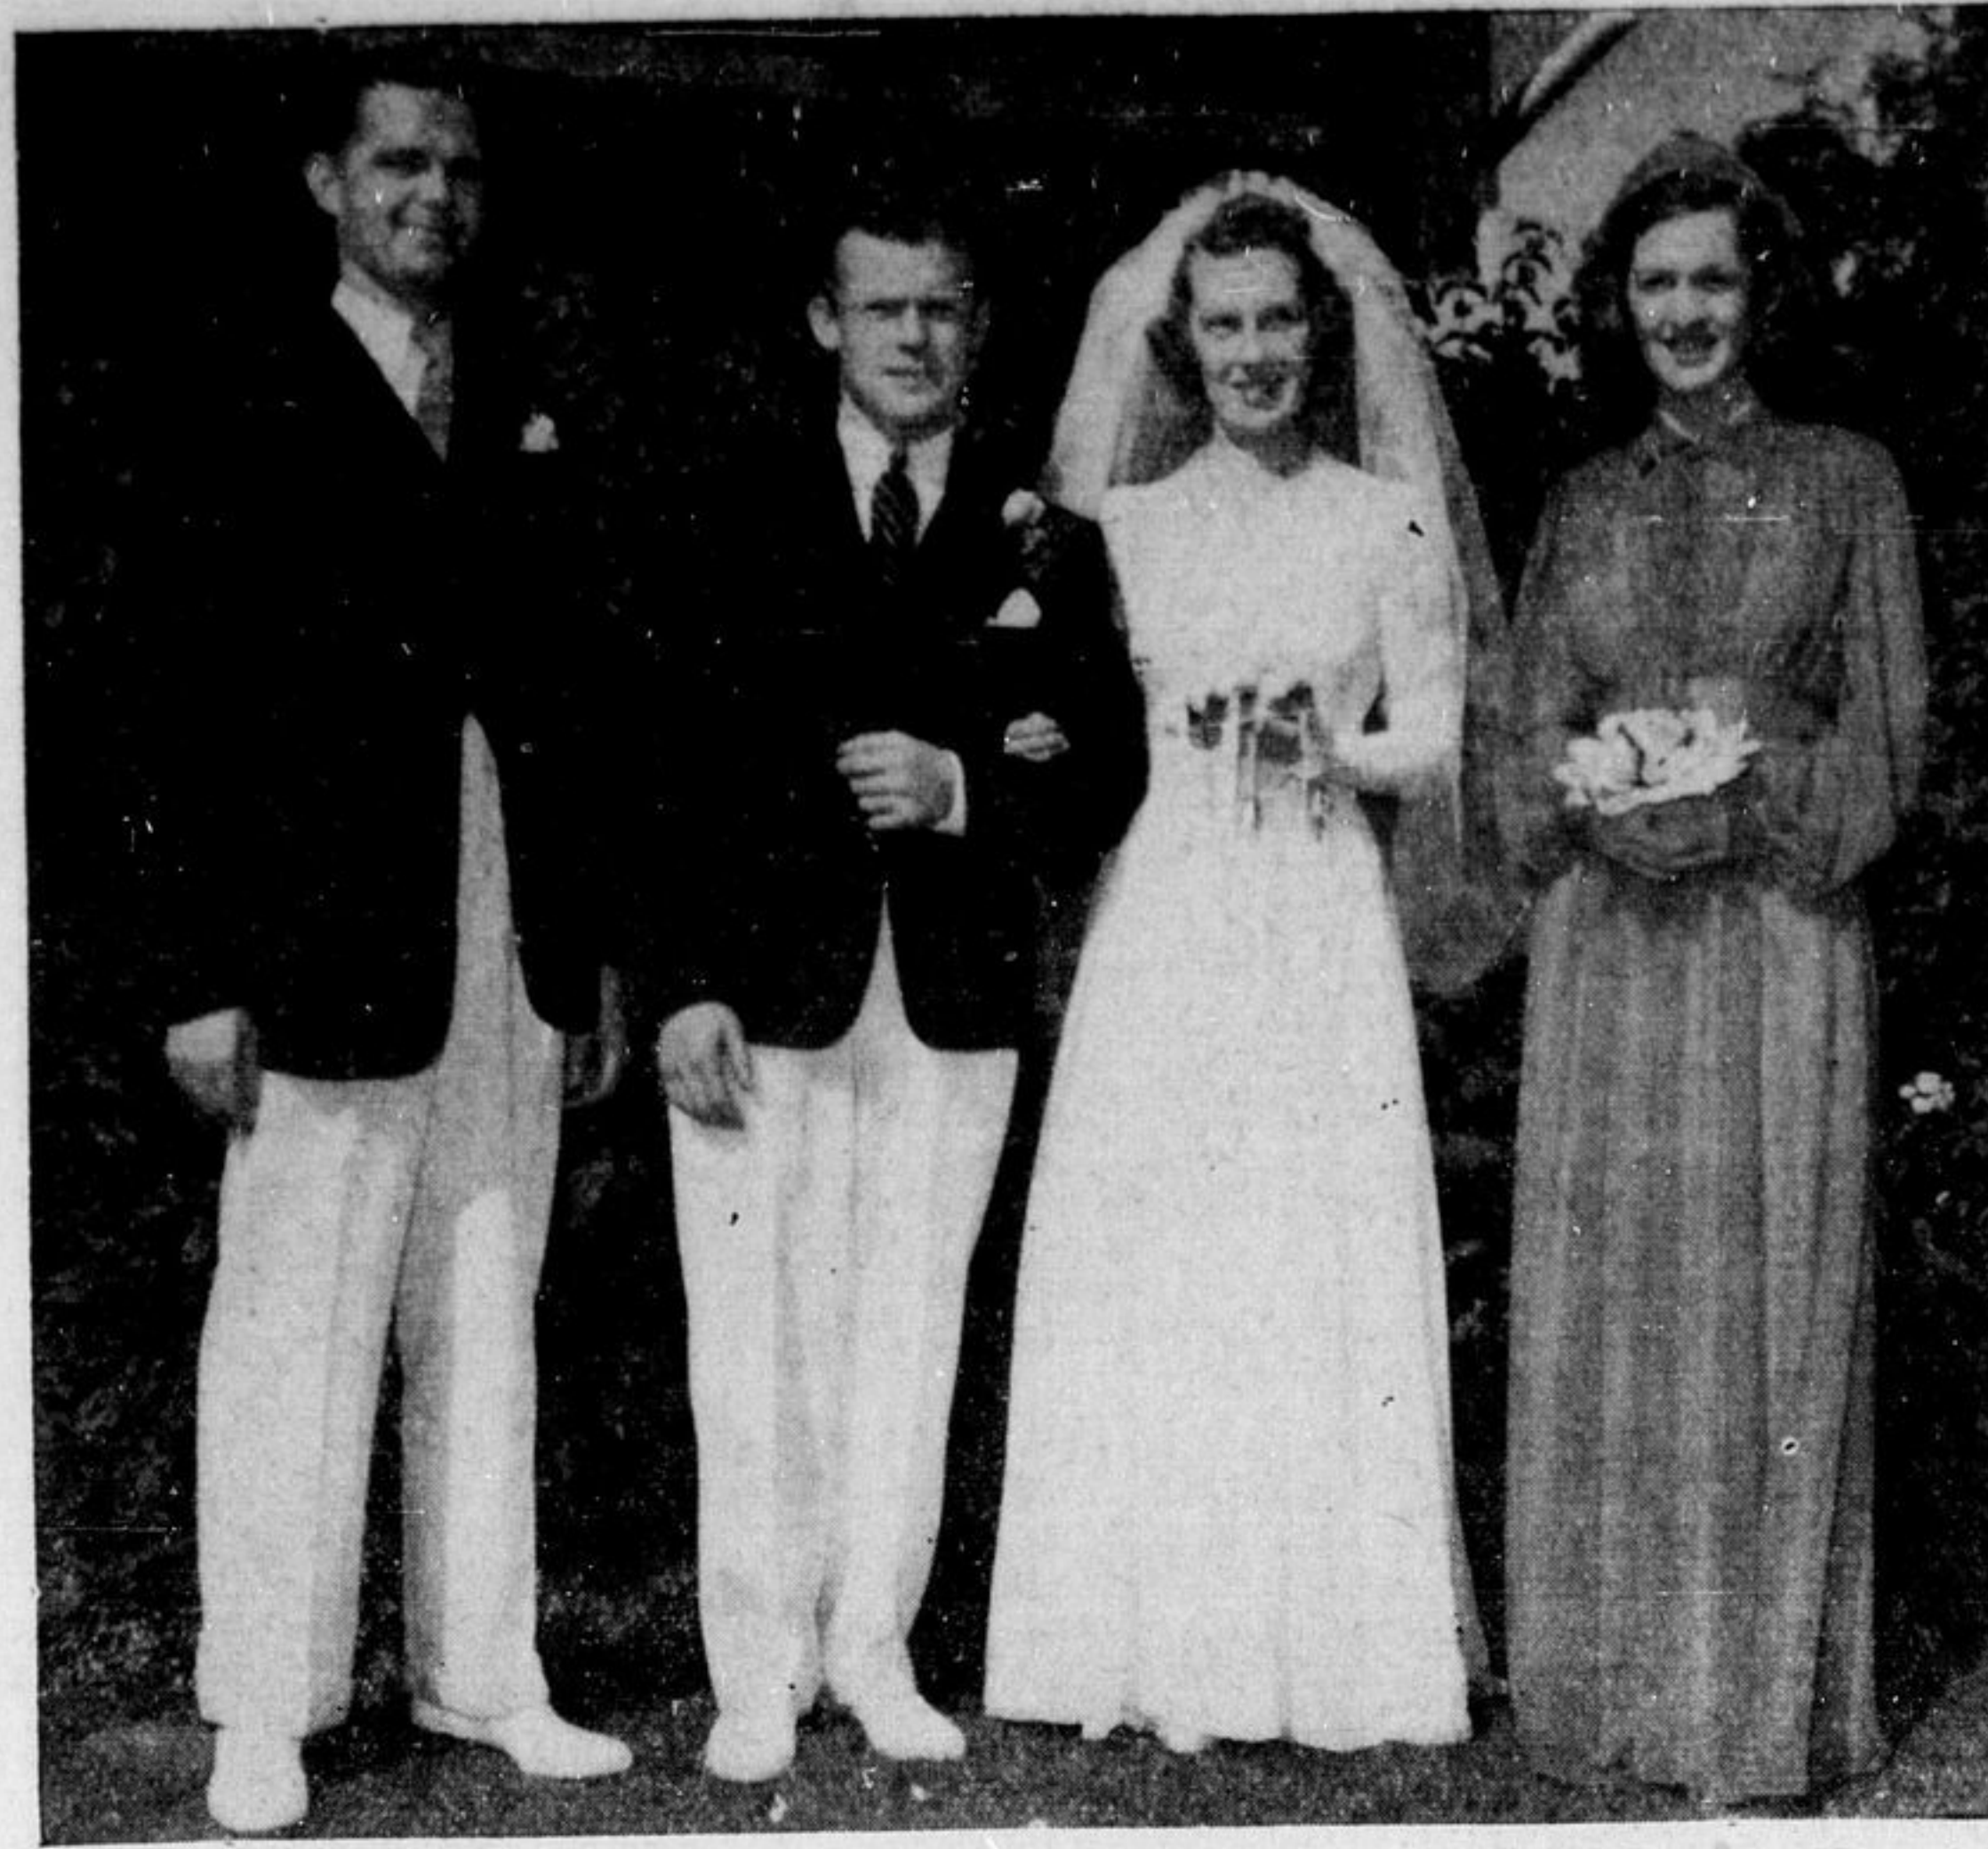

Twenty Years Ago

From The Porcupine Advance Files

One of the front page items in The Advance of Sept. 8th, 1920, is to the effect that the Dome Mines had purchased the Dome Extension property. At a meeting of the Dome Mines shareholders on Sept. 4th, 1920, the meeting was unanimous in exercising the option held by the Dome. General Manager DePencier and C. D. Kaeding, consulting engineer, both had reports endorsing the amalgamation of the properties.

After twenty years there will no doubt be more than passing interest in the following item from The Advance of September, 1920—"J. W. Reed, of Timmins, has the contract for considerable diamond drilling to be done on the sand plains near town. The idea is to see if the vein system of the camp continues to the west. These sand plains have an over-burden of sand and gravel running as deep as one hundred feet and more over the rock foundation. Three drills are now at work on the sand plains west of the town on the properties owned by the Ontario Porcupine Exploration Company, an English Company. The work is being done by a Canadian-holding company formed for the purpose, under the direction of E. Loring, who is seeing to the conduct of the local operations. The experiment will be watched with much interest, and results awaited with special attention." It may be added to this that the public did not learn very extended particulars of the results of the diamond drill work and so it was more or less taken for granted that the findings were either not particularly satisfactory or promising, or else financial considerations prevented the carrying on of the work to the extent that might have brought success.

Labour Day at Ingoquois Falls in 1920 was a pleasing success as in previous years, though there was not the large attendance from outside towns that had featured some other years before and after 1920. A number of Timmins tennis players were present to compete in the tennis tournament.

Twenty years ago W. G. Smith had his name in the paper. The item twenty years ago read as follows:—"W. G. Smith, who has been for some years on the Hollinger Mine staff, this week took over the management of the local store of the Geo. Taylor Hardware Co. Mr. Frood, who has been in charge here since J. Perreault left on account of ill-health, has been needed for special executive work at the head office of the company, and the securing of the services of Mr. Smith releases Mr. Frood for the needed and important branch of the work referred to the Geo. Taylor Hardware Co. Having extensive interests throughout the North Land, Mr. Smith, who has business experience, executive ability and personal popularity in the town and district, will no doubt make a success of his new position as manager of the local branch of the Taylor Hardware Store."

R. Lilly was the winner in 1920 of the annual trophy of the Timmins Golf Club. In the semi-finals he beat S. A. Wookey, 5 up and 4 to play. Mr. Frood beat Mr. Mackie in the semi-finals, 5 up and 4 to play. In the finals Mr. Lilly beat Mr. Frood 6 up and 4 to play. The Advance at the time noted that the golf course had been steadily improving and the number of devotees of the game steadily increasing.

At the week's police court twenty years ago in Timmins two different men were fined $500.00 and costs each. The thousand dollars so secured made many hopeful for new sidewalks and so on. Twenty years ago a party of British journalists from all the Empire toured Canada and visited Timmins on the trip. Dr. J. A. McInnis, mayor of Timmins, A. F. Brigham, manager of the Hollinger, and others, met the party on its arrival here by special train. The address of welcome by the mayor was responded to by Mr. Penn, of The Taranaki Herald, New Zealand. The visitors were then taken to the mines and also shown the motion picture film of the mines. The visitors also had a trip around the town and district to see the sights, and were much impressed.

The following from The Advance of twenty years ago will be read with much interest:—"At the home of the bride's parents, Timmins, Ont., on Friday, August 27th, 1920, by Rev. R. S. Cushing, rector of St. Matthew's church, Mr. Sidney Robert McCoy, and Miss Olive Victoria McGuire, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. McGuire, of Timmins, were united in marriage. The young couple are among the most popular in the camp and hosts of good wishes will be extended to them. Mr. and Mrs. McCoy left for a wedding tour to be spent in Ottawa and other points east and south. On their return they will reside in Timmins.

The annual picnic given by the Odd-fellows of the camp on Sept. 1st, 1920, proved an enjoyable and pleasing event though the attendance was not as large as it would have been had the weather been more ideal. The picnic had been postponed twice for the benefit of baseball events in the camp that season and the last day picked on proved not altogether the best. However, there was a good crowd, and a regular treat for all attending. The weather even turned out better than it looked. There were the usual games, sports, athletics, etc.

SIFTING THE NEWS

By Hugh Murphy

Have you ever heard the derivation of the word "cop"? The word, which of course, means a policeman, has been traced back to the days of Sir Robert Peel.

In the nineteenth century Sir Robert Peel organized the Irish Constabulary while he was secretary for the British government in Ireland. This Irish constabulary was the first force ever organized on the lines of the modern police force. Its members were called "Peelers" after the founder.

Later, in 1829, Sir Robert Peel became home secretary in the cabinet of the Duke of Wellington. While in this position he introduced his improved police system in London. There his men were called "Peelers" as in Ireland, and "Bobbies", the latter a still popular name.

One feature of the men's uniforms was the bright copper buttons which suggested the name "Coppers" to the London cockney, a name which shortened to one syllable, became "cop".

If you are susceptible to perfumes watch out—you may be an easy victim of a new method to break down sales resistance. Perfumers have been called in.

Writing in "Advertising and Selling", Ray Gies said that last Christmas chocolate-scented rubber dogs were a hit in the department stores. New shower curtains give off a pleasant fragrance when water hits them. A manufacturer of scented carbon paper and typewriter ribbons is making a hit; so is a manufacturer of "spicy smelling" pencils which stenographers find refreshing. A famous bus line is experimenting with perfumed gasoline as a builder of public good will; the same reason a railroad is trying perfumed fuel for its diesel engines.

The idea has possibilities. Think what could be done with a newspaper, for example. Page 1, full of war and blood and horror could waft to the nose of the reader the pleasant odour of burning flesh; of ether and iodine; of gasoline and grease for tanks and planes and of salt water and flying spray.

The sports page might give off an odour suggestive of a baseball club's dressing room, which usually smells like a cross between a bottle of liniment and a broken down shoe. The woman's page might have a variety of odours. There could be a suggestion of jasmine and sweet peas; or perhaps the slightly more cloying scent of the rose.

The page upon which the municipal news was printed might smell in a variety of ways. Taking the municipal government of some towns and cities into consideration the page might be scented with musk or rotten meat. In others no scent at all would be necessary. Those would be the towns where the local government had been emasculated by the Department of Public Welfare.

A past commander in the American Legion, V. M. Armstrong quotes the following "Rules of the Road" he picked up in the Orient:

At the rise of the hand of a policeman, stop rapidly. Do not pass him by or otherwise disrespect him.

When a passenger of the foot hove in sight, tootle the horn trumpet to him melodiously at first. If he still obstacles your passage tootle him with a vigour and express by word of mouth the warning "hi-hi."

Beware of the wandering horse that he shall not take fright as you pass him by. Do not explode the exhaust box at him. So soothingly by or stop by the roadside till he shall pass away.

Go soothingly by on the grease mud as there lurk the skid demon. Press the brake of the foot as you go around the corners to save the collapse and tie-up.

THE REST OF IT

The other day an officer approached an English woman who was in the midst of the evacuation operation. "How is everything?" he inquired. "Thank you, officer," she replied "everything is running smoothly. My valuables and jewellery are safely tucked away in the bank; I've sent the silver and china to my sister who lives in the country; and as for the rest, the Almighty will take care of that." St. Matthew's Anglican Church, Scene of Lovely Wedding on Saturday

Miss Marion Rush Ostrosser and Mr. Frederick Evans Married. Church Beautifully Adorned with Autumn Flowers. Reception Held at Home of Bride's Parents After the Ceremony.

St. Matthew's Anglican Church was the setting for a very lovely wedding on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, when Miss Marion Rush Ostrosser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dayton Ostrosser, of 15 Hemlock street, became the bride of Mr. Frederick Evans, of Schumacher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bryn Evans, of Toronto. The Rev. Canon R. S. Cushing performed the marriage ceremony.

Gladioli and fern were used in decorating the church, and during the ceremony, Mrs. G. S. Lowe presided at the organ, while wedding selections were sung by the church choir.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride made a charming picture in her bridal gown of white chiffon, with inserts of French lace in the bodice. Princess sleeves and a slight train were featured in the gown, and the bride wore a finger-tip length veil, caught in rushing. She carried a prayer book adorned with a single white orchid, and with white ribbon and bouvardia giving a shower effect.

Miss Elizabeth Ostrosser, sister of the bride, acted as maid-of-honour, attractively attired in American Beauty chiffon, floor-length fashioned with a small Peter Pan collar, full bolero sleeves, long waistline, and flared skirt. Her small hat of matching chiffon was gathered with a single bow at the back, and she carried a nosegay of cream roses.

Mr. Harry Evans, brother of the groom, was the groomsmen, and ushers were Messrs. Peter Ostrosser, brother of the bride, Ronald Sanderson, and Hume Douglas.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the Bride's parents, 15 Hemlock street where Mrs. Ostrosser received the guests, becomingly attired in an ensemble of sold-jerette blue crepe, with gold nail-head trimming. She wore a hat in contrasting shades of blue with matching gloves and shoes, and corsage of roses. Mrs. Evans, mother of the groom, chose for the occasion a street length dress of air force blue crepe with matching accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Later in the afternoon, the bride and groom left on a motor trip to Toronto, Windsor and Kingston and upon their return they will take up residence in Schumacher. For travel, the bride chose an ensemble in turquoise wool, with a short jacket of Alaskan seal, and black suede gloves, bag and shoes.

Prior to her marriage, the popular bride was entertained at numerous showers and teas, and received many lovely gifts for her new home.

Out-of-town guests included: Mr. and Mrs. B. Evans, Mr. H. Evans, and Miss Audrey McKecknie, all of Toronto; Mr. H. P. Ostrosser (grandfather of the bride), Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Holbrook and son, George of Hamilton.
