Old-Time Saloon a Feature of Picture at Cartier Theatre

Gary Cooper, Doris Davenport and Walter Brennan Star in "The Westerner"

One of the most impressive and realistic sets created for Samuel Goldwyn's "The Westerner," the new film production starring Gary Cooper at the Cartier theatre Sunday night 10:30, Thursday, Oct. 27th to 31st, is a saloon of the 1880 vintage. It is plainly a dive—a replica of that infamous liquor dispensary in which Judge Roy Bean of Texas held his court and ruled as the sole law west of the Pecos.

In this saloon important historical events transpire, with Walter Brennan, impersonating Judge Bean, and Gary Cooper starring in the role of a stranger who defends the rights of homesteaders to settle down upon the cultivated free range.

There are many drinks served in this barroom, including the Bean special, a fiery fluid then popular under the brand name of "Canada Rye." And Cooper, under the directorial whip-lash of William Wyler, had to drink much of it.

Cooper didn't really mind, for the rye served to him was harmless; it was nothing more spiritous than water spiked with amber-coloured vegetable dye. It isn't exactly palatable, but no matter how much you drink, you can still stand on your feet like a he-man. The exhibits on the bar shelf, however, were the real thing. Beer that was displayed was the one-half-of-one per cent "near" beer of the dear departed Prohibition era. This brew, incidentally, is harder to get now than the real stuff was in the days when real beer drinking was a moral transgression and the possession of it a criminal offense. This "near" beer is used in films as a safeguard against possible complaints by sabbatically-minded committees, and it costs a king's ransom—some three times the price of the genuine article.

Mirth and "Culture" in Picture at the Palace Theatre

"Always be Polite" Says Edward G. Robinson in Hilarious Offering.

"You mugs have done a bad thing; you have used guns in your work!"

"Never bump off a party without first saying 'Excuse Me!'"

"Whenever you rub out the wrong party, be sure you say 'sorry!'"

These are some of the sayings used by Edward G. Robinson in his new play, "Brother Orchid," in which he endeavours to instil manners and culture in his group of gangsters in the picture, "Brother Orchid," appearing at the Palace theatre Friday, Friday, midnight, and Saturday, Oct. 26th and 27th.

"Ladies and Gentlemen, get set for the movie laugh-sensation of the year Edward G. Robinson's back in his bullet-proof best. 'Brother Orchid' has been adapted for the screen from the hilarious funny Collier's Magazine story by Richard Connell. It tells the story of a retired gangster who returns to his rackets and decides to teach his 'mugs' how to be refined. They resent his new policy and try to put him on the spot. He manages to escape by taking refuge in a nearby monastery

Twenty Years Ago

From The Porcupine Advance Files

The front page of The Advance twenty years ago had several items regarding desperate doings in the district. One was about a hold-up and assault at the Dome. Another referred to a shooting affray at the "Wye" at Iroquois Falls. The third was about an attempted hold-up in the West Dome district. Because such things were rare in this district, they were essentially news when they did happen. In referring to the hold-up and assault at the Dome, The Advance twenty years ago said:—"When one of the workmen at the Dome Mine was coming 'off shift' on Sunday morning at four o'clock, he was stopped by three men who held him up, robbed him of about $50.00 that he was carrying, and assaulted him. After beating up their victim and taking all his money the three hold-up men made good their escape. According to the reports the men made no attempt to hide their identity. They were well known to their victim, being fellow countrymen of his, all concerned being Italians. The man who was robbed at once informed the police and efforts have been continued ever since the robbery to locate the culprits. Up to the time of writing this, however, the police have not made any arrests although they are now on the tracks of the culprits. The accused men, apparently, at once made for the bush, and the police have been able to follow them for a considerable distance. As all trains are being carefully watched they have little chance of getting out of the district. And if they stay in the district they will eventually be tracked down. The police have traced them along their line of flight for quite a distance. At one camp to which the three men were traced by the police there was evidence of their presence just a little while before the police arrived. The camp was a deserted one and had not been in use for some time apparently before Monday of this week. An alarm clock left in the shack, however, was ticking merrily away when the police arrived and there was other evidence to prove that the men being followed had slept in the shack for one night, and then hurriedly moved on. Their track was taken up again and the police expect to find three bold robbers before this week ends. As they are all armed and in the foolish and disorderly state that would tempt them to use them regardless of the consequences, the officers trailing them are not having a dull or unexciting time, though following them along, all as part of the day's work in the police game."

Dome to Dome Lake he was stopped by two men who flourished a gun or guns and demanded money. He did not show the desired promptness in handing over the money and to frighten him one of the men fired off one of the guns. Instead of frightening the man they frightened the horse and it promptly bolted. The result was that the highwaymen were unsuccessful in their hold-up game, and yet got nothing except a horse laugh. A description of the two men tallies very closely with the description of two of the men concerned in the hold-up coming off Sunday morning."

The Advance added that hold-ups threatened to become as frequent in the district as wrecks on the T. & N. O. "Both of them will keep on until somebody gets hurt," said The Advance.

The shooting affray at the "Wye," near Iroquois Falls, was given the following reference in The Advance twenty years ago:—"A serious shooting affray is reported from the Wye, Iroquois Falls, on Sunday last, but as usual in such cases when foreigners are concerned, it is difficult to secure any measure of truth or the exact details of the event. However, it appears that a quarrel occurred on Sunday among a crowd of foreigners at the Wye, and several shots were fired. One man is so seriously injured that it is not believed that he can recover, according to some of the reports. The man accused of doing the shooting is said to have made good his escape, but where he has gone to or how he got there are matters to be imagined. When the police were notified they sent word along the line, and it is not easy to see how any man could get south or north on the T. & N. O. without being caught. His chances would be particularly small as the police of the North Land are now anxiously watching for about a half a dozen badly wanted men, including one fellow who did some shooting at Gowanda and the three men who were in the hold-up game at the Dome Mines district."

At the regular meeting of the town council twenty years ago the question of a couple of hospital bills from Toronto received some attention. One of the patients had property in town and it was felt that he was quite able to pay his own hospital bills. The idea of the residence of the other patient being Timmins was questioned, and the council handed over both bills to the town solicitor to advise as to the town's proper attitude to both these accounts. The Workmen's Compensation Board submitted forms to the town for the list of town employees so that these could be brought under the Workmen's Compensation act as desired by the council. There were two ratepayers, J. P. Bartleman and Chas. Pierce, before the council in regard to taxes. Mr.

Bartleman objected to his income tax assessment as he had not been allowed any exemption. He also said that a reduction in business assessment advised by the town solicitor and granted by the council's court of revision had not been allowed on the tax bill. Mr. Pierce, said The Advance at the time, "created considerable amusement by his humorous way of pressing his case and by his witty remarks on the side. His chief objection to the tax was that he had been charged business tax on three warehouses that he said were now used only for storage purposes. Both these cases were turned over to the town solicitor for a report. John Dalton called the attention of council to the dangerous condition of a small part of the road between the town and the Hollinger Hill. Council decided to make the necessary repairs at once. Councillor D. Laprarie spoke of the bad condition of the crossing on Spruce street going into Moneta. This street had the heaviest hauling of any street in town and he thought it should be looked after. The mayor said that the council had already instructed the town engineer to have this crossing fixed. The town engineer pointed out that the T. & N. O. was responsible for this crossing and the town could not touch it. Further the town engineer said that the T. & N. O. at his suggestion had made one effort to fix the crossing, but as they had not followed out his suggestions as to planking it the work was unsatisfactory. Council decided to make further effort to have the T. & N. O. attend to the crossing properly. Angus Campbell appealed to the council in regard to the enforcement of the building by-law on the building he had recently purchased and moved on to his property. He felt it would be a waste of time to plaster the building at this time of year. He asked instead to put on fireproof shingles now and then have the plastering done the following year. Chief Borland said the shingles referred to would give better fire protection than the plaster asked by the by-law. The matter was left to the decision of Chief Borland, who, in addition to being fire chief, was also building inspector.

Cure for Diabetes Now Claimed as Available

(By J. W. S. McCullough M. D., D. P. H.)

Nearly 10 years ago, a young Toronto doctor and his associates discovered insulin, a remarkable remedy which delayed the progress of diabetes that lives of the unfortunate victims of this affliction gained a new lease of life. But insulin does not cure it. It merely prevents further progress of the disease and, combined with regulation of the diet gives relief and comfort to the individual.

Now, Dr. Charles Best, according to the statement of Dr. Elliott Joslin, of Harvard University, himself one of the best-known clinicians in diabetes, has discovered a cure. "The world," he said, "can look forward to the day when diabetes can be cured and prevented in both men and animals."

There are, it is said, 600,000 diabetics in the United States. This means that the proportionate numbers for Canadian is about 50,000. The normal increase in both countries is much the same. This means that, if this increase is maintained there will be a million in the U. S. and about 100,000 in Canada by 1950.

It is well known that for some time

Dr. Best and his assistants, Drs. Campbell and Haist, have been conducting research with a view to securing a cure for the prevention of diabetes in animals. In view of this fact Dr. Joslin's statement is regarded as highly significant for Joslin is not the man to make unreliable forecasts.

It will be a notable advance if Joslin's predictions comes to be verified by the actual effect of the new remedy. Science is daily uncovering new things because of the patients unremitting work done in laboratories all over the civilized world. What a pity that so much money, which otherwise might be diverted to life-saving uses, should be squandered in the viles war of Hitters making.

Peterborough Examiner:—We notice a report of a party where the people gathered and burned a number of war savings stamps. That is no freak entertainment but a perfectly sound performance. It means the government has secured the money but will not be called upon to pay it back, and when we reach the stage where we start giving something to the government we are undoubtedly advancing toward high ground.
