Temagami Station Agent Wins Appeal in Taxation Case

Temagami, Nov. 2nd—Reversing a decision of the court of revision here when that tribunal heard appeals against assessments made on behalf of the public school section, his Honour Judge J. S. Plouffe, of Nipissing has allowed an appeal taken by A. R. Swayne, station agent at Temagami for the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway and has ruled his dwelling is exempt from taxation by the school section. The house is located on the railway right-of-way.

$300 placed against the building claiming "that the railroad hold this property in trust for the Crown and hence is not subject to taxation" and also that he is required by agreement between the T. & N. O. and Order of Railroad Telegraphers to occupy the house in his official capacity as a tenant of the Crown.

The case came before the court of revision on June 15 last, when it was held that the agent comes under the provisions of section 38 of the Assessment Act and cannot qualify under the exception granted in the words "official capacity." Mr. Swayne then appealed to Judge Plouffe and the hearing was held in North Bay some time ago, when judgement was reserved. It was the second appeal within a year by Mr. Swayne a similar case before the same chairman last November being decided then against him. At that time no appeal was taken from that ruling.

Word that his honour has given this judgement has been sent to members of the board from North Bay, but it is indicated the case may be carried to another court.

While the local case is of a relatively small amount, other communities along the route of the T. & N. O. are reported to have been watching the proceedings with interest. Mr. Swayne appealed to the court of revision, of which ex-mayor Frank Lendum of Cobalt was chairman against the valuation of

Outstanding Double Feature Programme at Cartier Theatre

Showing To-day and Until Thursday, Nov. 4th to 7th

There is an outstanding programme at the Cartier to-day until Thursday, Nov. 4th to 7th.

The feature attraction at the Cartier, "Too Many Girls" is billed as the season's gayest and most melodious musical comedy romance. The top-notch cast includes such personalities as Lucille Ball, Richard Carlson and Ann Miller, who all come through with fine performances in this outstanding musical comedy.

The added attraction is the timely March of Time subject, "Britain's R. A. F." a picturization of the Royal Air Force in all its glory, driving back Hitler's larger air fleet. The actual scenes of battle are breath-taking and amazing and will thrill you every minute.

Kirkland Police Still Seeking Stolen Taxicab

There were two somewhat unusual features to a case at police court at Kirkland Lake last week. The one unusual feature was that the accused—a sixteen-year-old youth—gave himself up to the police in a case, or series of cases when the police had been unable to trace the culprit. The lad confessed to breaking and entering three local business places. The second unusual feature was the fact that Chief of Police Pinegar, of Kirkland Lake, made a strong plea for leniency for the youth, stating that it was the first time this lad had been in trouble with the law, and that he had done what he could to right the mistake. Chief Pinegar thought if he was given another chance the lad might develop into a good citizen. It is only fair to note that the case of police chiefs trying to help accused lads is not by any means as unusual as some people think. As a matter of fact literally scores of cases could be quoted in regard to the Timmins police court where police officers have tried to help boys on their first break of the law. It is also only right to add that such pleas receive careful consideration by the magistrate and if it possible to conform to them without detriment to the public interest, the magistrate does so. In the case referred to at Kirkland Lake, the young man was given a splendid second chance, being allowed his liberty after signing a bond to keep the peace for two years.

Kirkland Police Chief Speaks on Behalf of Boy

Kirkland Lake police are still seeking a taxicab stolen last Monday from the McLellan Transportation Company stand. Last Monday evening one of the drivers going off shift left the car in front of the McLellan garage for the next driver. At the time the tank was full of gas and the keys were in the ignition. The loss of the car was not noticed until Tuesday, as officials and other drivers took it for granted that either one of the drivers or a mechanic for the company had the car.

The missing car is a 1939 model Dodge sedan of a dark blue-black colour. It carries the license number of 4-E-189. It is pointed out that the car may easily be identified by garagemen or others familiar with cars by the size of the four tires, these being noticeably oversize. Mr. McLellan reports to the police that the tires are 6.50 by 16, which is an odd size for that make of car. The missing car is also equipped with a heater and windshield fan.

Vivien Leigh Does Not Want Fame Only as Scarlett O'Hara

Is Happy in Altogether Different Role in "Waterloo Bridge."

Miss Vivien Leigh made an outstanding name for herself as a talented actress in her role as Scarlett O'Hara in "Gone With the Wind". Few who saw and heard "Gone With the Wind" will be likely to forget Scarlett O'Hara. But—"I would rather not be remembered as Scarlett O'Hara."

Vivien Leigh made the amazing remark while frankly admitting her debt to the lady who won her the Academy Award as the best actress of the year, adding that she feels no actress can afford to stake a career on a single role. "The danger," she said "is one every actor dreads. It is being typed. Nothing could be more fatal."

To combat this threat, Miss Leigh has deliberately set out to be as different from Scarlett in future screen appearances as possible. For that reason she has been happy about her second American film, "Waterloo Bridge", starring her with Robert Taylor and at the Palace theatre to-day and to-morrow, Monday and Tuesday, Nov. 4th and 5th.

As a ballet dancer who falls in love with a dashing officer in Robert Sherwood's romantic drama of war day's Miss Leigh has been given the opportunity to present new facets of her personality. The role more truly presents the real Vivien Leigh than any film in which she has been seen.

"It would be pleasant to be able to live in the past," Miss Leigh said. "I cannot deny that playing Scarlett was a great satisfaction I am aware of my good fortune and I am sincerely appreciative of my reception by American audiences. At the same time I am sure they would soon tire of me as a perennial Scarlett. I know I would tire of a continuous Scarlett portrayal. It is variety that keeps an actor interesting. Besides, I am always most keenly enthusiastic in whatever I am doing at the moment. The past can take care of itself."

Miss Leigh's versatility was recognized in England long before she came to Hollywood. She was just beginning to win recognition for her talents when she appeared with Taylor in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's British production of "A Yank at Oxford". Oddly enough she almost lost the role of the College Widow in the picture because she was considered the wrong type. Until then she had played nothing but sweet ingenues.

She had become one of England's most sought after young actresses when she made "The Sidewalks of London" with Charles Laughton in 1938. Perhaps her most impressive triumphs up until the time of Scarlett was on the London stage in "The Mask of Virtue", a play that ran for five months and labeled her a definite "find". "I am grateful to Scarlett," Miss Leigh said, "because she made it possible for me to have an unbelievably pleasant introduction to the American public. But if I am to be remembered only as Scarlett I shall feel that I have been a failure. For it is only by being accepted and liked in other types of roles that I can win a secure place for the affections of American film-goers."

Proof of the Pleasant Mild Weather in North

Proof of the wonderful weather in this North was given last week—actually at the beginning of November—when lilac bushes in the garden of Mr. A. G. Carson decided that summer, or spring or something had come again, and so it was necessary for them to come out again in fresh, green leaves. Second crops are a common thing in the North, and one year—some seasons ago—farmers and gardeners in this district claimed a third crop in some fruits and vegetables but for lilac bushes to come out and in new green leaves for the second time in the year—and in November—is news.
