Palace Theatre to Show "Gone With the Wind" All This Week

Return Engagement of Picture That Caught Popular Fancy.

Few modern pictures achieved such general popularity as David O. Selznick's Technicolor production of "Gone With the Wind." On its first appearance there were hundreds of people who went a second and third time to see this particular film. When it was shown in Timmins, it was a common expression by many that they would like to have a return engagement of this particular film. Accordingly there will be literally hundreds who will be pleased to note that "Gone With the Wind" will be the feature at the Palace Theatre all this week, April 21st to 26th. Any who missed the previous showing of this very decidedly popular picture will be sure to wish to see it while hundreds who saw it before will take that as a special reason for wishing to see it again.

"Gone With the Wind" is a dramatic story of the days of the Civil War in the United States, and the production is made so realistic that the characters and scenes take on most convincing life.

Because some producers insist on making motion pictures tell the truth about life, actors are occasionally called on to do things they never did before. The significance of this observation was disclosed when Clark Gable discovered he had acquired new social graces during the filming of "Gone With the Wind."

In this David O. Selznick's Technicolor production of "Gone With the Wind," Gable was required to enact for close-ups many intimate accomplishments of a dashing young blood of the 60's.

Gable had to learn to dance the Virginia reel smoothly. Frank Floyd, dance director, and Iris Myers, Floyd's assistant, gave him instruction at his San Fernando valley ranch. A related accomplishment was learning to walk gracefully in trousers that had a strap under the shoe sole, and not so related was the knack of tying Scarlett O'Hara's bonnet string.

The actor customarily smokes cigarettes, but he had to change over to fogies. An expert automobile driver he had to take lessons from Bill Stuart, studio animal trainer, at the reins of a pair of carriage horses before he could handle them expertly.

Starred with Gable in the picture are Vivien Leigh, Leslie Howard and Olivia de Havilland. They also had to learn to do things they had never tried before, sometimes on the set, under the sharp eyes of Director Victor Fleming.

Those Hoop Skirts
All the women in the cast, of course had to learn to wear and handle hoop skirts. Miss Leigh, in the part of Scarlett O'Hara, as well as Evelyn Keyes and Ann Rutherford, who played Scarlett's sisters, Suellen and Carreen, had to learn to pick cotton. They took lessons from Wilbur G. Kurtz, Atlanta historian, who was technical advisor on Southern customs. Most of the women knew how to knit, but they'll do better after the practice they got in several scenes.

Miss Leigh had to know how to bandage wounded soldiers. She also had to learn to milk a cow.

Howard, as Major Ashley Wilkes, had to appear familiar with the Confederate manual of arms, which wasn't difficult as he served with a British cavalry regiment during the World War.

Most dramatic bit of information was acquired by Miss de Havilland, who in preparing to act the part of Melanie Wilkes, had to learn how a woman acts in childbirth. To find out, she consulted her physician, and garbed in the white robe of a nurse, sat for a long time at the bedside of two prospective mothers.

"There'll Always be a Canada"

(By Margaret Ireland, S. Porcupine)
The world is in a turmoil
As it never was before.
But we'll come out victorious
As our fathers did of yore.

There'll always be a Canada,
Where freedom shall remain
And troubles shall go down the brook
Like falling drops of rain.

There'll always be a Canada
With growing fields of grain,
Where joyous hearts will gladden
When rearing down the lane.

There'll always be a Canada
When the Nazis are no more,
And our country shall go marching on
As it has gone before.

There'll always be a Canada
Though the Germans roar and rave,
With our country in prosperity
The British flag shall wave.

Hitler in his vengeance
Would try to make us slaves.
In spite of all his efforts
Britannia rules the waves.

We're Canadians and we're British
And we are proud to brag
There never was a country
Could down the British flag.

Sudbury Reader Writes About Use of Parking Meters

Endorses Mr. W. Stewart's Stand on Parking Question.

Sudbury, April 18, 1941
To the Editor of
The Advance, Timmins.

Dear Sir:—I am a constant reader of your paper, even after leaving your town to reside in Sudbury. Like Sudbury, Timmins has gone ahead with the times this past ten years, and no doubt has its parking problem, just as Sudbury still has regardless of its parking meter system. Not being a resident of Timmins and paying my taxes to the city of Sudbury, perhaps there will be citizens of your town who will resent my butting into their town affairs. But a recent article written to your paper by a Mr. Stewart has prompted me to express, not my own personal opinion of these "Slot Machines," but the grievances of any number of our city's motorists. Mr. Stewart mentions only one annoyance in that there are a privileged few who park regardless of the red indicator and get away with it. But granting that the professional, and the "immediants" do pay for the parking time, what about the average wage earner with a car? With the meters he will be worse off than before they are installed. As instance in my case alone: Before the meters were installed, I could go to my favourite store to shop, always finding a spot to park within half a block. I'd perhaps be 10, 15 or 20 minutes making my purchases. I'd then perhaps have other places to shop in the business section. Therefore I'd move my car (in less than the 30-minute limit) and go on about my business. You will ask perhaps, why I can't do that now, after the meters are installed. The reason is this. For one cent I get just 12 minutes parking time, and one can't shop in a busy city in 12 minutes. And I won't put five cents in the meter when I don't need one hour's parking in that spot. Who wants to park in one spot for an hour, then walk for blocks back and forth carrying parcels. To overcome this, I save my 5 cent pieces by parking on a back street, and carrying parcels in the opposite direction. For the benefit of the business men of your town, I'll add that I do not shop at the store I did previous to the installation of the parking meters, but shop nearer the place I can park my car free of charge. As it is now, one can't stop out of his car to buy a newspaper, or a package of cigarettes unless he deposits a copper in the meter. And, after 7 p.m. in this city, just try to find a parking place within three

Man Found Unconscious on Lang Street in Cobalt

The New Liskeard Speaker last week under the heading, "Police Probe Mystery Case," had the following:—

"Found on Lang Street in Cobalt last week-end in a comatose state, Sydney Cahill, about forty years of age, is in Misericordia Hospital for observation while police are making enquiries into mysterious circumstances said to surround the case. Cahill last night was reported as only still semi-conscious, and the extent of his illness cannot be determined, it is stated, until the result of X-ray photographs taken is known. Chief Cote said last night he was checking up on the man's movements from Saturday evening. Cahill was noticed later lying on the street, and John Hutman, Jr., who found him and knew him, took him to the room he occupied in a Cobalt rooming house. The man apparently was there alone until Monday evening, when further enquiry disclosed his condition and the authorities were notified. Chief Cote said Cahill's condition is serious. The man had been employed in one of the A. J. Murphy lumber camps during the winter."

Jasper Mine Encounters 22-ft. Quartz Vein System

The deep diamond drill hole being drilled at Jasper Porcupine Gold Mines has encountered a 22-ft. quartz vein system at a depth of 1,686 ft. and at one point visible gold is in evidence, an official states. Core, with the exception of the section containing the visible gold, is being sent out for assay. Conditions in the hole are said to be similar to those found on an adjoining producer. The hole is being extended to an objective of 1,900 ft.

blocks in any direction of the main thoroughfare! Why should we have to pay extra to get done what we, through our taxes, have already paid for. That is to be rid of the parking problem. If our police will enforce the 30-minute parking law, one can always find space to park while going about his business. Give the overtime parkers a ticket and fine them every time they so over-park, and your problem will be solved. Solved in a way which will not annoy those who are not privileged to park anywhere, at any time, and for as long as he pleases. Your paper will get few complaints until after the meters are installed, but you will need an extra secretary then. I hope your paper won't brand me as a sorehead as our Sudbury Star here did. Of course, The Porcupine Advance, does not own a large parking lot in the centre of its town.

Thanking you, I am
Respectfully yours,
O. Lalonde.

Young Timmins Boxer Killed at Paymaster Mine

Victor Kostron, 21, Falls 1,000 Feet Into Shaft. No Date Set for Inquest.

Victor Kostron, twenty-one year old Timmins man, met death yesterday at the Paymaster Mine when he fell down a shaft a thousand feet deep and evidently landed on his head. The accident happened at two o'clock yesterday morning.

The young man was single and was very popular and esteemed, both at the mine and in Timmins. He was keenly interested in sports and was scheduled to appear in a boxing show being staged in Timmins by the T.P.A.A. on Wednesday night.

The body has been at Hunkin's Funeral Parlours in South Porcupine and is being sent to Timmins today where it will be brought to the Roumanian Church. From here the body will probably be shipped to Regina, Saskatchewan, to the home of the dead man's mother.

The deceased man had few relatives in the North. One uncle lives in Sudbury and two cousins in Timmins.

An inquest will be held but as yet no date has been set.
