

Inspiring Thanksgiving Message to Kiwanis Club by Rev. H. Cockburn

Wit and Humour Give Added Point to the Message. Striking Digest of Week's News by Kiwanian Karl Eyre. Reference to International Goodwill Programme at San Antonio, Texas.

The Thanksgiving Message to the Kiwanis Club at their meeting in the Empire hotel on Tuesday was one long to be remembered. It was delivered by Rev. Herbert Cockburn, member of the Toronto Riverdale Kiwanis Club, and son of Past International Vice-President Bill Cockburn, who presented the Kiwanis charter to Timmins Kiwanis Club when this club was started. The address by the guest speaker for the day was an inspiring one, lightened by flashes of wit and humour and story. Kiwanian Rev. Herbert Cockburn expressed his pleasure at this, his first visit to Timmins, and asked the club to accept his greetings from the South—not only from Southern Ontario, but also from the South, Atlanta, Georgia, where he had been asked personally to carry the greetings of the people there to all Canadians.

In days like these, the speaker said, with a world like it is at present, with clouds of war, growing unrest, the future a dark picture as yet, with millions living under the iron heel, what cause is there for thanksgiving? It is not the things we have, but the things we do not have, that cause the greatest unhappiness, he noted. Also, he pointed out that the ache of a single tooth makes a person forget about the healthy condition of all the other good teeth. "If you stop to count up the many blessings you enjoy in this country you will see much for which to be thankful," said Rev. Mr. Cockburn. Even in Britain, with the danger of invasion and the horrors of night bombing, thanks can be expressed, and Rev. Mr. Cockburn told the story of the Britisher who had lost his home and all his worldly possessions through an air raid, but who put his arm around his wife and said: "Never mind, old girl, at last we've got rid of the mice." Every gift that comes from above may not be good—bombs, for example—the speaker said, but every good and perfect gift and every true blessing does come from above. "When we count our blessings in this country, we have every reason to be very thankful," Kiwanian Cockburn continued, "and the best way to express our thanks for these gifts is by putting our whole effort into helping others."

Kiwanian Phil Kinkel expressed the sincere thanks of the club to Kiwanian Cockburn for the helpful Thanksgiving message, and President Bill Langdon added his own words of appreciation. Another outstanding feature of the meeting was the digest of the week's news by Kiwanian Karl A. Eyre. These were the highlights of the week's news as presented by Kiwanian Eyre:—General blitz on Moscow, and Hitler's wild claims and promises; Mussolini has to call off visits to parts of his country owing to the unrest; food rations increased in Great Britain, with prospects of further increases; discovery by the U.S. Navy of German broadcasting station in Greenland; labour troubles quiet in Canada; launching of the largest ship ever built in Canada, with more to follow; visit of the mechanized equipment and recruiting unit to Timmins; birth rate normal.

Kiwanian Arch Gillies read a very interesting—but very incorrect—magazine clipping on "The Travelling School Cars that Visit Timmins."

The visitors for the day were: Kiwanian Dwight Bissell, of the Downtown Kiwanis Club of Toronto; Rev. H. Cockburn.

The war savings draw for the week was won by Kiwanian Phil Laporte. Kiwanian Geo. N. Ross was drawn to give the weekly digest of news for the next meeting of the club.

The singing for the day was led by Kiwanian Phil Kinkel. There was a Thanksgiving hymn, "Come, Ye Thankful People, Come!" A solo by President W. O. Langdon, "Work for the Night is Coming" was much appreciated. The "Porcupine Song," presented in lusty fashion by all the members, was another number of special interest.

An account was read by President Bill Langdon of the International Goodwill programme at the San Antonio, Texas, Kiwanis Club. This programme was dedicated to the Timmins, Ontario, Kiwanis Club, and was symbolized by the presentation by Kiwanian Vince Woodbury, of Timmins and San Antonio, of a Union Jack donated to the San Antonio Club by Timmins Kiwanis Club.

Kiwanian Horace Laidlaw announced that the proposed Kiwanis trip to Noranda had to be postponed for the present, owing to Noranda Kiwanis having other commitments for the proposed date for the visit.

Kiwanian Arch Gillies reported on the re-organization of the committee for the sale of war savings certificates, owing to some of the members having left the district to take up war work in other parts of Canada or overseas.

Volunteers were asked for—and obtained—from members of the Club to continue the work under Kiwanian Geo. S. Drew as chairman.

Thousands of People Line Streets to Welcome Convoy

Bren Guns mounted for anti-aircraft. In each of these carriers there was a full complement of men representing a machine gun crew.

After the Bren Gun Carriers came the demonstration platoon marching ahead of the supply trucks, the mobile hospital, the mobile kitchen and the other trucks in the convoy.

Arriving in front of the town hall the men were welcomed to Timmins by Mayor Brunette, who spoke for the people of the town in welcoming the fine body of men. The mayor mentioned that because this part of the country was separated from the training centres the people living in this district did not have the opportunity to see the marvellous machines of war or the able men who run them. He said that he hoped the men would enjoy themselves during their short stay in town and again expressed his honour at having the men present. Captain Hambley replied to the mayor's message, saying that he was sure the men would enjoy themselves and that he would glad to come to Timmins.

After the civic reception in front of the town hall the men were marched to the old Ball Grounds on Cedar street, where they put on a demonstration that thrilled the thousands who gathered there to see it. All through the demonstration, Sergeant-Major Dymond explained what each of the vehicles was and what they were doing. Any of the people who were there and who wanted to ride on any of the machines were given the opportunity of doing so. Hundreds of the younger men in town rode in the various machines. The men who handled the machines expressed the opinion that the show would have been better if the ground had been rougher. The machines were built to perform on rough ground, they said, and that was where the machines showed what they could really do.

After the demonstration the men left for the McIntyre Arena where they were billeted and then were the guests of the Town of Timmins at a special Thanksgiving day dinner in the arena. The town supplied the food for the dinner and the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion cooked and served the meal. After the meal the men were billeted in the Arena and some of the men were issued with passes.

On Tuesday morning the men were given their breakfast at the McIntyre Arena and then were brought to Timmins where they were the guests of E. Lorne Moore, manager of the Broadway Theatre. The men were all brought into the theatre where they saw a showing of the picture, "Forty Thousand Horsemen," the first Australian moving picture to be shown in Canada. It was a picture featuring a number of scenes from the last war and was thoroughly enjoyed by the army men.

After the showing of the moving picture the men were given their dinner which was prepared in their own mobile kitchen and served at the Armouries. After dinner the men went to Schumacher and South Porcupine where they put on more demonstrations.

Tuesday evening the men were again banquetted in the McIntyre Arena, this time the hosts being the Township of Tisdale. After their banquet the men were entertained and at nine o'clock they were given a special entertainment by members of the Timmins branch of the Canadian Legion. This entertainment lasted for an hour and then they were entertained at a monster free dance in the Arena.

Early yesterday morning the men were up and ready for action and shortly before nine o'clock they were loaded on the trucks and were on their way south again. Last night they arrived in Kirkland Lake and spent the night there.

Officers with the convoy were: Captain W. A. Hambley of the Toronto Scottish Regiment, who was in charge of the convoy; Captain W. R. Pacaud, of the Armoured Division, who was in charge of the vehicles; Lieut. W. E. Milner, of the Argyle Southern Highlanders, who was the adjutant and the second in command of the convoy; Lieut. W. J. Powers, of the Royal Canadian Regiment, who was in charge of the Demonstration Platoon; Lieut. Forest of the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps, who was in charge of the mobile hospital; Lieut. Wood of the Armoured Division who assisted Capt. Pacaud with the vehicles.

Most colourful of all the officers and men in the convoy was Sergeant-Major Dymond, a veteran of this war. Sergeant-Major Dymond was in England and was sent back to Canada. He has first-hand information on the German blitz as he was on duty in Coventry and Liverpool when those cities were practically levelled to the ground under the terrific air attacks. He lauded the courage of the British people when he spoke before the arrival of the convoy at the town hall.

Story of First Women's Institute Told to W. I. Here

the birth of the Women's Institute. She recalled a few memories of the days when as a child she had attended the meetings, feeling very proud of her mother in the work she had undertaken. In 1915, said the speaker, the Women's Institute was organized in England, from where it spread to various other countries of Europe, and became a national institution.

After this war, continued the speaker, the Women's Institute will be one of the organizations that will have a great responsibility in reconstructing the world. It will make history, as this is a tremendous responsibility. For that reason, its members should now be thinking ahead to that time.

Mrs. Conant recalled the day in 1935 when women from all over the world came in pilgrimage to Stoney Creek, and as her mother had passed away in 1932, Mrs. Conant and her father were honoured by their visit. They were interested in the original documents of the Institute, and although many of them could not speak the English language, each and every one was interested in the work of the organization in her country and in other countries.

The institute motto, "for home and country" should now mean more than ever to its members, stated the speaker. "Our freedom is in jeopardy until the scourge of Hitler is wiped from the face of the earth," stressed Mrs. Conant, "and women are a second line of defence. In co-operating and being united, women can give a social strength that will help to win this war."

Following her talk on the Women's Institute, Mrs. Conant spoke briefly on the Canadian Women's Voluntary Service, of which she is vice-chairman. (Elsewhere in to-day's paper will be found a full account of this work as given by Mrs. Conant at a banquet held later on Wednesday.)

In closing, Mrs. Conant wished every success to the Timmins W. I. in their war work, and said that she would look to the Timmins Institute to produce many leaders in the work of Canadian women.

Mrs. J. McChesney, vice-president in extending the vote of thanks to Mrs. Conant, said that the visitor's remarks would inspire the women of the local branch to work even harder than they have been doing during the past months. Mrs. P. G. Howard, president, welcomed the speaker on her arrival.

Another speaker during the afternoon was Miss Menzies of the Children's Aid, who gave a talk on her work, stating that it is more preventative than curative.

Only a short business meeting was held, roll call being answered with each member's favourite flower. A request was made to members to have a full turnout for sewing at the Red Cross rooms next Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Crispin convened the programme and Mrs. Griffin was in charge of the refreshment committee. Mrs. Conant was accompanied to the meeting by Mrs. Geo. A. MacMillan, whose guest she has been during her northern visit.
