Labelle called an independant witness in the first phase of his defence and that was as far as the defence went before Magistrate Atkinson reached a decision. The witness said that he had not noticed the truck stop at the intersection while he was standing in front of his home. In reply a question from the magistrate the witness said that the truck had been the first to enter the intersection and it was on that answer that the case was won because that act gave Sanford the right-of-way. Before sentencing the the taxi driver the magistrate asked him whether he was employed and the young man said that he had been employed at the mine but had quit to join the army and had been rejected but was now working as a "checker' at a local taxi company.

Gordon Douglas, Leo Theo Fauville and Steve Lewiski were all jointly charged with common assault following a fight in a local beer parlour and the result of the case was that Fauville and Douglas were dismissed while Lewiski was fined ten dollars and costs, total of $27.25. Sergeant Kirk gave the first evidence ond it was corroborated by Constable O. E. Kristensen and it was corroborated by Constable Hickman while Mr. J. E. Lacourciere acted as the prosecutor. Sergt. Kirk said that he and Constable Hickman had visited a house occupied by St. Pierre in Mountjoy Township December 20th about 3.45 p.m. Three small children were found in the house and one of them said that their mother had gone into town while none of them knew the whereabouts of their father The police officers had conducted a search and located a still about eighty yards from the house. He also found a similar drum as that used in the still in a workshop. The sergeant presented pictures and a sketch of the locality.

St. Pierre conducted his own crossexamination and then presented his own defence. He said that the police testified that they had found the still by following a path in the snow. He then said that he had left the place about the beginning of December and had not returned till near the end of December and when he had left there was no snow on the ground. He could not see how he could be responsible for making the tracks that led to the discovery of the still and the magistrate agreed with him as he dismissed
