Gary Cooper as Sergeant York at Cartier Theatre

Slim Summerville and Zazu Pitts in Added Hit.

There are two special hits at the Cartier theatre on Friday and Saturday, April 17th and 18th. One of these is Warner Bros. "Sergeant York," starring Gary Cooper. The added attraction is "Miss Polly," with Slim Summerville and Zazu Pitts.

In regard to "Sergeant York," it has been said that it has everything that goes to make up a fine film—stars, romance, drama, excitement, a fascinating story and beautiful setting.

Joan Leslie, who is sure-fire star material, has the feminine lead opposite Cooper, as a simple mountain girl with a keen wit and a lovable personality. Walter Brennan, Academy Award winner, is cast as Pastor Pile, life-long friend of York, whose homely philosophy became part of York's creed. George Tobias, Stanley Ridges, Margaret Mycherly, and a host of other popular screen players make the cast one of the most impressive of recent years.

The story is at once both simple and exciting because it shows both sides of the lives of the Cumberland Mountain folk—their slow, easy-going manner—and the force of power they can bring out when their tempers are aroused.

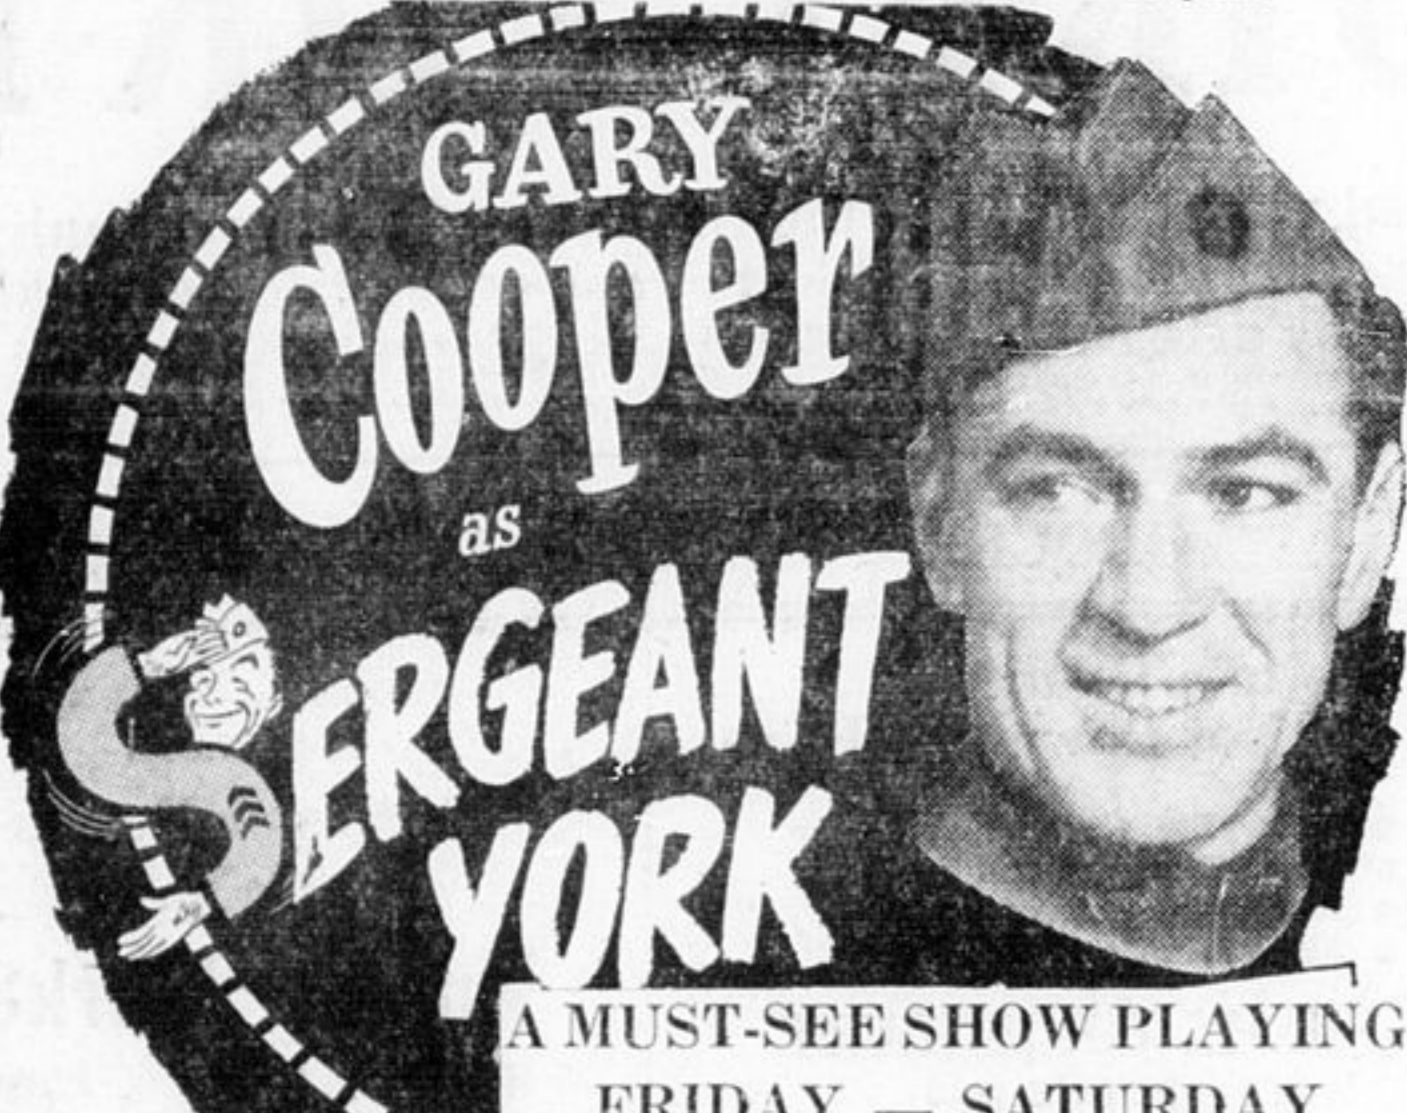

York, a sharp-shooting farmer who "gets religion" in his own manner, is a fellow who hates no one and registers as a Conscientious Objector when he is drafted during the World War. An understanding officer in his company, played by Stanley Ridges, shows him that sometimes violence is necessary to insure freedom. York turns out to be not only a good soldier, but one of the bravest heroes in the A.E.F.

personal supervision of Jesse L. Lasky and Hal B. Wallis. "Sergeant York" was given the most lavish care in production, and no expense was spared to make every detail of the many settings completely authentic. Besides the featured cast, hundreds of extra players were used in some of the picture's big scenes.

Tracy and Hepburn Score in Drama of Modern Career Girl

Stars Figure in Story of Modern Newspaper People.

Spencer Tracy and Katharine Hepburn pool their respective talents in "Woman of the Year," which opened at the Broadway theatre yesterday and is playing the rest of the week, April 15th to 18th. The story was chosen by Miss Hepburn with the stipulation that Tracy be her co-star. Accordingly, it was to be assumed that the plot would avoid formula, and it definitely does. With Miss Hepburn appearing as a brilliant newspaper columnist in the title role, Tracy is sports editor on the same metropolitan daily. They clash immediately and by their very differences find interest in each other. The girl demands in her column that baseball be abandoned for the duration of the national emergency, which brings a swift rebuttal from Tracy. Their feud is silenced only when Reginald Owen, as the managing editor, orders an armistice. In the interval of peace, a series of events arise which brings about a marriage and an inevitable clash between husband and his career wife.

Understanding Direction
George Stevens directed the picture with deft understanding. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer surrounded the stars with a strong cast including Fay Bainter, as Miss Hepburn's aunt, herself an imposing figure in public life; Reginald Owen, as the sympathetic managing editor, and in the supporting group Miner Watson, William Bendix, Gladys Blake, Dan Tobin, Roscoe Karns, and William Tannen.

The story was written by Ring Lardner, Jr., son of the late newspaper man and playwright, and Michael Kanin. They submitted it directly to Miss Hepburn, who selected it over a dozen others as the suitable vehicle for her appearance with Tracy.

Two More Drunk Drivers Sentenced as Campaign in Timmins Continues

Police Determined to Clean Streets of This Sort of Motoring Menace. Three Men Convicted of Same Charge Last Week. Both Given Seven-Day Terms This Week.

The local detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police co-operated with the Timmins Police force this week in a determined drive to rid the streets of the town and district of drunken drivers. In their relentless campaign against this form of motorist the local police departments have lodged charges against five Timmins motorists in the past two weeks and had convictions against all five of them.

There were three men charged with drunk driving last week and they all pleaded guilty and received the regular ten day term in jail. This week the Timmins police and the Provincial police each had another motorist in court facing the same charge. Both drivers, Omer Leblanc and Robin Caldwell, pleaded not guilty but after a hearing before Acting-Magistrate S. C. Platus, they were found guilty and each sentenced to terms of seven days in jail.

First of the pair to be tried this week was Omer Leblanc. Mr. Leblanc operates a farm in Tisdale Township in partnership with Karl Kuechmeister and on Friday evening last week he came to Timmins to sell a hog to a packing concern. After he had disposed of the hog he called on a friend on Commercial avenue and the pair went out to have a drink. They drank two bottles of beer and then Mr. Leblanc proceeded back to the farm. As he was travelling along the highway near the Hollinger mine, the gas accelerator on his small truck became locked and the motor started to race. He tried to correct the trouble and in doing so he ran his car off the road into the ditch.

At that moment he was noticed by Constable Paul Laperriere, of the local detachment of the Provincial Police, who went over to investigate. The constable asked the man several questions and then took him to the police station and charged him with drunk driving.

Constable Laperriere then asked the man if he wanted to have a doctor examine him and the man said that he would like to be examined so Dr. Minthorn was called. The doctor tested the man by taking his blood pressure, making him walk a straight line, answer several questions, etc., and decided that the man was under the influence of liquor. This examination took place about twenty minutes after the charge had been laid.

Both the constable and the doctor were subjected to a rigid cross-examination by Defence Counsel J. E. Lacourciere, and both stuck to their original evidence.

Leblanc was then called to the stand by the defence and he told about delivering the hog in Timmins and having a couple of drinks. He denied, however, that he was intoxicated but said that he was nervous because he had been very sick the day before.

Two more witnesses were called by the defence and they swore that Leblanc had been in the Riverview Hotel when they were there and that he had taken two bottles of beer while there. They both said that he wasn't drunk when he left the hotel.

Karl Kuechmeister, Leblanc's partner, was then called to the stand and he told the court that Leblanc had been very sick in the early part of the week, suffering from asthma, and that he had not been able to walk until the day that he was arrested. The witness told of the shaky condition of the accused on the day that he was arrested and prompted the suggestion that it was perhaps because of this sickness that the man had been unsteady on his feet when examined by the doctor. He also said that the accused had not been drinking before leaving the farm in the afternoon.

Acting-Magistrate Platus reviewed the evidence and said that there wasn't any doubt that the man was drunk. On his own admission he had been drinking just previous to the accident and even though he was suffering from asthma that didn't alter the situation. The doctor also swore that the man was drunk when he examined him, he said. The acting-magistrate then passed sentence of seven days in jail and impounded the car for three months besides suspending the accused's driver's license for six months.

It was then brought out that the man had sold the car the day before court and that it now belonged to his partner. The partner wanted to use the car but it was shown that as long as the car was registered in the accused's name at the time of the accident, it could be impounded. Defence Counsel Lacourciere intimated that there might be an appeal in this case.

Robin Caldwell also faced a similar charge of drunk driving and through his solicitor, Gregory T. Evans, he pleaded not guilty to the charge. About halfway through the evidence, however, the defence counsel asked for the magistrate's permission to reverse the plea. The new plea was accepted and the sentence was passed.

Doctor J. D. Hope was the first witness called for the crown and he told of examining the accused about a quarter after one last Friday morning. In his opinion the man was under the influence of liquor. In answer to a question from the defence counsel in regard to the accused's degree of drunkenness, the doctor said that the man was, in his opinion, a little too drunk to drive a car. He outlined the various methods he had used to test the man.

Constable Gordon Beacock was then called and he told of seeing Caldwell cross Cedar street and get into his car just before his arrest. He went over to question the man and found that he was drunk. He then took him to the police station and locked him up. The constable said that he was certain that the man was drunk when he arrested him.

Defence-Counsel Gregory T. Evans, then asked that he be allowed to change the plea and he pleaded guilty for his client. He then made a plea for leniency asking for the minimum sentence as the man had not been driving the car when arrested and had not been involved in any accident during the night when he was arrested. The acting-magistrate listened to the leniency plea and then said that he was forced to sentence the man as he had pleaded guilty and gave him the minimum of seven days. The car was ordered impounded for three months and the man's driving license was suspended for six months.

Special features of the evening will be a presentation to Dean Young and addresses by speakers of high reputation in the engineering profession. CONVENIENT

A soldier asked for exemption from church parade on the grounds that he was agnostic.

The sergeant-major assumed an expression of innocent interest.

"Don't you believe in the Ten Commandments?" he asked mildly.

"Not one, sir," was the reply.

"Not even the rule about keeping the Sabbath?"

"No, sir."

The sergeant-major smiled.
