

MAY HAVE THREE-TEAM BALL LOOP

Star-Studded Visiting Team Humbled in Game With Local All-Stars Last Thursday

Locals Run Up Six to One Count Before Visitors Could Cut it Down. Esseltine Again Bests Chuck Jemmett in Master-Minding Winning Team.

For the greater part of the last hockey season C. Jemmett was the brains behind the Hollinger hockey machine and all through the season he matched wits with Coach Hobe Esseltine, of the Buffalo-Ankerite, without success. Came the play-offs and these two great coaches were again thrown together and the result was the same, Esseltine emerged the winner again. Last Thursday night these two coaches were again chosen to pilot the all-stars from the district and those visiting Timmins and for the third time Jemmett was on the losing side.

However, to say that coaching was responsible for the loss of the game last Thursday would be an injustice to Jemmett who was thrown into the breach to handle a team that was strange to him. He did a good job on the visitors' bench but the local all-stars were just the better team. They flashed more brilliance last Thursday than they did during the regular season and were good value for their win. The final score of 6-3 was indicative of the play.

The game was arranged to provide more funds for the men in the armed forces to purchase sports equipment with. This was the second contribution of the year to the fund, the local hockey clubs had donated ten per cent of their last scheduled games to the same fund, and it will be well used in the various army camps of Ontario. Most of the players came out to play after being out of the game for a month or more and are to be congratulated for their contribution.

The visitors took the lead in the game as Vic Haneberry slapped a fast one past Brownlee in the early minutes of the initial canto but before the period was over Reggie Allard, Dome defenceman, evened the count with a terrific drive culminating a length-of-the-rink rush.

Ossie Carnegie sent the locals into the lead for the last time in the second period when he slapped in the only counter of the session. It came near the end of the frame and was a nice shot that found a resting place in the top corner.

In the last period the visiting team seemed to fall to pieces and Coach Jemmett was forced to change his players at almost every bell. They seemed to collapse under the torrid pace set by the local stars and were yanked from the ice almost as soon as they went out. This disorganized condition was just what the doctor ordered for the locals and they swept over the visitors time and again to score or come close.

Les Nevins, flashy Dome forward, who was out of the game at the end of the season with a hand injury, was in top condition and flashed the red light for the locals before the final chukker was a minute old. About five minutes later "Wink" Wilson duplicated on a pass from Jackie Drummond. A minute later, the voice of the McIntyre team was heard as Alf Webster registered the locals' fifth goal. Three minutes later Hobe Esseltine's pet, Herbie and Ossie Carnegie, combined to finish the scoring for the boys from the Porcupine. Herbie got the counter on Ossie's pass.

The period was more than halfway gone before the visitors were able to get their second goal past Brownlee and at the twelve minute mark Nap Carriere, borrowed from the Macs by the visitors, slapped in a pass from Mike Miller. Two minutes before the game ended Nakina Smith, who looked just about the best for the visitors all night, scored their last goal.

The two forward lines of the local all-stars, Herbie and Ossie Carnegie and Jackie Laddis on one end, Maki Nevins and Woon on the other, looked pretty good all night while Morris and McKay shaped up as the best defensive pair in the district.

Nakina Smith looked about the best for the visitors while the forward line of Miller, Robinson and Orlando turned in a nice game. Red Doran looked right at home with Nakina Smith and Fasano while Bowman and Guidolin turned in a nice game at the blue line.

Porcupine All-Stars: Goal, Brownlee; defence, Morris, McKay; centre, H. Carnegie; forwards, O. Carnegie, Laddis; alternates, Webster, Drummond, R. Wilson, Maki, Nevins, Woon, Johnston, Allard.

Visiting All-Stars: Goal, Bastien; defence, Bowman, Guidolin; centre, Nakina Smith; forwards, Doran, Fasano; alternates, O. Smith, McLeod, Haneberry, Miller, Robinson, Orlando, Holouka, Carriere.

Referees, "Buck" Thomas, Ollie Proulx.

The Summary First Period

1. Visitors, Haneberry (Holouka) 5-10
2. Porcupine, Allard 16-50
Penalties: Bowman (2), Miller.

Second Period

3. Porcupine, O. Carnegie 17-22
Penalty: Bowman.

Third Period

4. Porcupine, R. Wilson (Drummond) 45
5. Porcupine, Allard 5-10
6. Porcupine, Webster (McKay, Morris) 6-11
7. Porcupine, H. Carnegie (O. Carnegie) 8-12
8. Visitors, Carriere (Miller) 12-04
9. Visitors, Nakina Smith 18-20
Penalties: Guidolin, Allard (2).

Gambles Eliminate T. & N. O. in Sudden Death Game

Fruiters Have to Come from Behind to Take Measure of Stubborn Railroaders.

Gamble Robinson's bowling team qualified to meet The Advance in the finals for the Commercial Cup when they dumped the T. & N. O. trundlers by forty-seven pins in a sudden-death play-off to break the tie for second place. The fruiters had to come from behind and win the last game by 64 pins to make up their win margin.

The first game of the three went to the fruiters by 24 pins while the railroaders came back strong in the second game to roll a total count of 1203 to take the fixture by 41 pins.

Pete Nicolson paced the fruiters in the first game as he hung up a 231 count to be the only man over the charmed mark. "Army" Armstrong was the best for the railroaders with 194 but his team ended up twenty-four pins short. In the second game, however, "Army" pulled up his socks and hammered the hickory for a 308 count to stand head and shoulders above all the other bowlers. Alf Fleming helped him with 251 and Eric Fleming contributed another 232 to raise the T. & N. O. total to 1208. Lambert paced the fruiters with a 268 score and close behind him followed Henry Horrester with 251, Pete Nicolson with 242 and Johnny Moss with 225. Gambles' total score was 1187.

Pete Nicolson rolled his nicest score of the evening in the third game to put the piece on ice for the fruiters. He rolled 285 to bring his total to 758, the best on the sheet. Once again as in the first game, he was the only man to roll over two hundred and Gambles tucked away the game by sixty-four pins to give them the series by forty-seven pins.

The honour roll for the night consisted of only three names in spite of the high totals that were turned in. Pete Nicolson led it with 758 while Armstrong followed along with 668 and Leach rolled 622 for his three games. The following are the complete scores:

T. & N. O.

Armstrong	194	308	166	668
Fleming	162	232	174	572
Leach	177	251	174	622
Burkholder	157	---	175	332
Total	182	190	135	507
Pritchard	---	173	---	173

Flat total	872	1154	848	2874
Handicap	63	54	63	180

GAMBLES

Robinson	174	149	165	488
Lambert	162	268	167	597
Horrester	184	251	156	591
Moss	176	225	170	571
Nicolson	231	242	285	758

Flat total	927	1135	943	3005
Handicap	32	32	32	96

Total 6 959 1167 975 3101

Man and Wife Earn Acquittal in Strange Case

Were Fighting in Restaurant but Magistrate Can't Decide Which Party Started It.

Magistrate Atkinson made a decision at this week's police court that appeared to be queer to the listening audience but it was quite according to the Criminal Code of Canada. It appears that a restaurant is described as a public place under the Liquor Control Act but not as a public place under the Criminal Code. The result was that Mr. and Mrs. Peter Babic were acquitted on charges of disorderly conduct and obstructing police. The evidence in the case was quite lengthy.

The defence presented by Mr. J. E. Lacourciere tended to suggest that the police had been persecuting the defendants unnecessarily as one witness after another appeared to say that the police had been handling Mrs. Babic roughly for no apparent reason.

The charges arose from a fight that took place at the Star Cafe and neither side could reach an agreement as to who had started the brawl. The police could shed no light on the subject as they hadn't been present when the thing started but they testified that it was certainly a fight when they arrived.

Jess Howe, an employee of the cafe, was the first witness to take the stand and he told of Mr. and Mrs. Babic and another gentleman, Mr. Joe Hudack, entering the restaurant on the night of April 29th. The trio sat at a table and ordered some soft drinks. When the bottles of drinks were delivered, he said, Mrs. Babic argued that one of the bottles had been opened before and had been taken from another table. He said that the woman had then hit him and was scrapping with him when the husband interfered. A Chinese girl in the restaurant, then appeared accompanied by a couple of policemen, he said.

Constables Brown and Christianson testified that they had been called from the street by the girl and that when they entered the place Mr. and Mrs. Babic and the Chinese waiter were fighting. They placed Babic under arrest and then they said that Mrs. Babic had seriously interfered with their bringing the prisoner outside. Babic, too put up quite a resistance.

Babic took the stand for the defence and said that he had been sitting in the booth when the Chinese waiter started to hit Mrs. Babic. He got up to stop it and somebody grabbed his hands and held them behind his back while the Chinese waiter started to beat him up. He said the police had then entered and they tried to take him away. He resisted because, he said, he had done nothing wrong. He denied, under cross-examination, that he had kicked one of the constables.

Mrs. Babic had practically the same story to tell and she added that she had been so glad when she saw the police enter because she knew that she was in the right. Her joy turned to disappointment when she saw that the police were arresting her husband and she vigorously protested the action.

J. Hudack took the stand and said that the waiter had started the fight with Mrs. Babic and that he had seen the police arrest the wrong man. He admitted that he was pretty well under the influence of liquor at the time though and also admitted that he later paid a fine for being drunk on the same night.

Magistrate Atkinson weighed the evidence carefully and finally came to the conclusion that if the fight had been outside it could be classed as being disorderly in a public place but not if it had been inside. The crown contended that the man had been resisting arrest and was creating a disturbance outside as the police were trying to put him into the car but the magistrate said that it had been the trouble inside that had brought that on and he dismissed the pair.

South Porcupine C.W.S.F. Finish Mechanics Course

South Porcupine, May 6.—(Special to The Advance)—Captain Ewing of the C.W.S.F. and eight of the women in her corps here finished on Thursday last a ten-week course in mechanics, qualifying for the W.A. Drivers' Corps Course, C.W.S.F. Each received a certificate and celebrated by a banquet at Luxton's in the evening. This course was sponsored by the South End Garage and instruction was given through the courtesy of the Township Council in the Tisdale Garage on Railroad St.

Instructors were Emerson Smith, Elmer Ferguson, James Rushton and Jack Ehmam. Each of these members is now fully qualified to do repairs on motors, change tires, etc., and is able to do all that a good driver should be able to do.

The members of the C.W.S.F. so qualified are: Captain Ewing; Sergt. Beuhm Rayner; Ptes. Verna Rayner, Irene Turner, Margaret Edwards, Valeria Morley, Marjorie Costain, Verna Connors, and Margaret Roberts. Captain Ewing and her Company would like to publicly express their thanks to the Township of Tisdale for the use of the garage and to Mike Cymbulski, proprietor of the South End Garage, for the instruction given.

After the banquet on Thursday the Company were shown war pictures by Jim Rushton at the Township Garage.

Men's Club at Golden City to Hold "Monster Quiz"

South Porcupine, May 6.—(Special to The Advance)—The Men's Association of the Porcupine (Golden City) Church are holding a "Monster Quiz" in the Edgewater Beach Pavilion on May 12th, and would be glad to see South Porcupine friends at this affair. Rev. Fred Jackson, of Monteville, will appear as "Mandrake the Magician." There will be good prizes and a social evening. Proceeds for the Porcupine United Church.

The Advance Wins Commercial League Cup for Sixth Time in Ten Years of Competition

Big Cup is the Only Thing the Printers Have Been Able to Win. Have Three Men Over Seven Hundred Last Night as They Take Mug Away from Last Year's Winners.

With three of their men rolling scores over the seven hundred mark, The Advance bowlers took the Commercial Bowling League cup away from Gamble-Robinsons last night at the Empire Bowling Academy. The printers had run up a lead of 186 pins in the first set of three games and last night they added another 389 pins to take the mug by the big margin of 575 pins.

The big cup has been in competition in the Commercial League since the season of 1932-1933 and this year was the tenth time that it has been competed for. In that ten years of competition The Advance has been able to annex the silverware six times and won it three times in a row once.

Alfie Guidice, Tommy Bonnah and Bill Dunn led the printers to their one-sided win last night as they hung up totals of 726, 713 and 710. These three men were the only ones who were "hot" on the printers' outfit but turned out to be too many for Gamble's High singles of the night were rolled by Bill Dunn and Alfie Guidice with 317 and 310.

Little Johnny Moss was the best of the fruiters could offer last night as he turned in their high total of 644. Horrester contributed another 624 pins while Lambert threw 607 more into the pot. Johnny Moss had Gambles' high single with 242.

The honour roll for last night was: Guidice 726, Bonnah 713, Dunn 710, Moss 644, Horrester 624, Lambert 607.

The complete scores were:

GAMBLES

W. Robinson	197	125	141	463
H. Lambert	171	192	244	607
H. Horrester	234	229	161	624
J. Moss	208	242	194	644
P. Nicolson	195	146	139	480

Flat total	1005	934	879	2818
Handicap	32	32	32	96

Total	1037	966	911	2914
-------	------	-----	-----	------

ADVANCE

F. Hornby	170	168	166	504
B. Dunn	317	232	161	710
H. Pirie	195	147	155	497
A. Guidice	204	212	310	726
T. Bonnah	266	261	185	713

Flat total	1152	1020	978	3150
Handicap	51	51	51	153

Total	1203	1071	1029	3303
-------	------	------	------	------

The Advance took a lead of 186 pins in the first set of games played between the two teams on Monday night as they rolled up big scores in the first two games and then released the pressure a bit in the last game.

Alfie Guidice was the poison pill for the fruiters to swallow in the first game as he turned in a 269 score to top his man, Johnny Moss, by an even seventy pins. Bill Dunn turned down his man by another ninety-three pins with a score of 230 to give the printers their win margin. Robinson was the only fruiter able to make the 200 and he got 223.

Alfie took the back seat in the second game when the pint-sized but noisy part of the printers outfit turned in a

Hollinger-McIntyre Officials Won't Operate Unless a Team is Entered From South End

Three-Team Junior Loop is Confidently Expected but Senior Ball May be Out This Year Unless South Porcupine is Represented. Fans Won't Support Two-Team Loop.

Weatherman Again Predicts Warmer Weather Coming

Fine and clear weather was predicted this morning by Mr. S. Wheeler, the Hollinger weatherman, when talking to The Advance. It is also expected that it will be quite a bit warmer today than it has been for the past few days. Very little change is seen for tomorrow.

Since last Thursday half an inch of rain has fallen and it fell on Friday. Only small traces of rain were noticed on Saturday and Sunday.

Last week was a real hot week and it ended on Saturday with the temperature hovering around the seventy mark. Friday was the hottest day with a recording of 85 degrees while the coolest day of the past week was on Tuesday when the thermometer dropped to 26 degrees.

Temperatures for the past week were: Thursday, max 74, min 41; Friday, max 85, min 56; Saturday, max 71, min 51; Sunday, max 50, min 30; Monday, max 37, min 29; Tuesday, max 56, min 26; Wednesday, max 60, min 36; this morning at eight o'clock, 40 degrees.

Baseball officials of the Porcupine district met at the McIntyre Community Building last night to iron out the difficulties that are experienced in this district. It was decided that unless South Porcupine has an entry in the senior loop they would be unable to operate. Last year the loop operated with only the McIntyre and Hollinger teams but officials deem it unwise to try the same arrangement again this season.

Junior teams will be sponsored by each of the clubs and it is expected that a good three-team junior league will be in operation this season. The Canadians, of Timmins, have already started their organizing and are expected to field a strong squad with the starting gun is fired. McIntyre and Hollinger will also definitely have junior teams. South Porcupine may also field a junior team.

Delegates at last night's meeting decided a number of propositions that will be presented to the meeting of the Temiskaming Baseball League that will be held in Kirkland Lake on May 20th. At this meeting it is expected that a schedule will be drawn up and released for consideration by the various team managements.

A meeting of all persons interested in baseball in the district will be held in the McIntyre Auditorium next Wednesday evening and an attempt to get enough interested players to make up three teams will be made. There are plenty of players in the district and officials feel that it would be a better idea to have them all playing instead of sitting on the bench most of the season.

Any person interested in playing ball this summer should make certain that they attend the meeting next Wednesday evening.

Accused of Being Drunk in Charge of a Car Man Draws a Ten Day Term

Milton Shushack Fails to Prove to Magistrate Atkinson That He Was Not Drunk When Police Arrested Him on April 21st. Six Men in Car When Arrest Was Made.

Milton Shushack, 46½ Kirby avenue, faced a charge of drunk driving that had been remanded from last week and at the conclusion of the evidence Magistrate Atkinson sentenced the man to a term of ten days in jail. Dean Kester, K.C., defence counsel, made a strong plea for the man and tried to show that there was a doubt and that the benefit of the doubt should be given to the accused.

Police officers testified that they had arrested the man at three o'clock on the morning of April 21st at the corner of Fourth avenue and Spruce street. Constable Beacock said that he had noticed the car that Shushack was driving make a wide turn on Third avenue after going through a stop sign. He had tried to follow the car and eventually signalled for the patrol car which finally stopped the man. The constable added that the car wasn't running properly but that it was running in a "jerky manner."

Under cross-examination the constable admitted that there wasn't much traffic at that time and that the man could have been excused for going past the stop sign but added that it had been the fact that drew his attention to the car. He then noticed the other defects in the man's driving. The suggestion was made by the crown that the car motor might have been cold and caused the motor to function improperly but the constable said the reason the car wasn't running properly was because the ignition switch wasn't on all the way.

It was then pointed out that the car didn't belong to Shushack and that he might have been experiencing a little trouble driving a strange car. The constable agreed that this could have been the case but still insisted that the man was drunk.

The question of a doctor being called for the man then came up and the defence counsel was told that the man had never asked for a doctor. Another man in the party had been loitering around the police station and had asked the police to prove that his friend was drunk but they had ignored that, the defence counsel stated. The constable admitted that a friend of the accused had been making a nuisance of himself at the police station and had to be locked up. The man later pleaded guilty and paid a fine for being drunk.

Sergeant Lepic took the stand and said that he had been on desk duty the night that Shushack was brought in and that the man had been very much under the influence of liquor at that time. The man's eyes were bloodshot, his clothes were disarranged and he was in no condition to drive a car. Constable Christianson also told the court that the man was drunk. He was in the patrol car when the arrest was made and the man was brought in. Constable Grieves was then asked if the man was drunk and he replied that he couldn't swear that the man was because he hadn't been close enough to find out. He was driving the patrol car and hadn't stepped out of the car. He thought the man was drunk when he was being locked up about fifteen minutes later, though.

Defence counsel placed the accused on the stand first and Shushack told of the night that he was arrested. He had been playing a banjo at a party at the Oddfellows' hall from eight o'clock in the evening and he never left the hall at any time during the evening. The party was for a friend of his who was leaving to join the army and it was a stag affair. When the party broke up, about 1.30 a.m. he and five friends had gone to another friend's room in the St. Charles Hotel where the party each drank two bottles of beer. About three o'clock the six men left the hotel and Shushack said that he was asked to drive the car because the owner was a little too drunk. He agreed to do this but before he had driven more than four blocks he was arrested. Shushack was asked by the crown why he had not asked for a doctor and he answered that this had been his first trouble and he didn't know about calling a doctor.

One after another the defence witnesses came to the stand and told their stories which were practically the same each claiming that Shushack had never left the Oddfellows' hall during the evening and that he had consumed two bottles of beer in about an hour a half. All were quite certain that he wasn't drunk when arrested.

In summing up Mr. Kester pointed out that he had the highest regard for the local police force and said that it was one of the best in the country but that a policeman's opinion regarding the matter of a man being drunk or not was no better than any ordinary citizen. He pointed out that the police should have called a doctor for his client to prove beyond any doubt whether the man was drunk or not. He then went on to show that the evidence of the crown had been contradicted by the defence and that a doubt had been established. He asked that the benefit of the doubt be given to the accused.

Crown Attorney Caldwell told the magistrate that there wasn't any reason to discredit the police evidence. They had all seen the man and swore that he was drunk. He then mentioned that it was difficult at times to get a doctor to examine a man at that time of the night. Most doctors, when called, would furnish some sort of excuse to avoid the assignment, he said. He said that the man had admitted drinking two bottles of beer and that some people were known to have become intoxicated on that amount.

Magistrate Atkinson reviewed the evidence and came to the conclusion that it was just a drunken party. He said that the police officers had testified that all the occupants of the car were intoxicated and that there was no reason to believe that Shushack was the only one who was sober. He then sentenced the man to ten days in jail and cancelled his driver's license for six months.

shot, his clothes were disarranged and he was in no condition to drive a car. Constable Christianson also told the court that the man was drunk. He was in the patrol car when the arrest was made and the man was brought in. Constable Grieves was then asked if the man was drunk and he replied that he couldn't swear that the man was because he hadn't been close enough to find out. He was driving the patrol car and hadn't stepped out of the car. He thought the man was drunk when he was being locked up about fifteen minutes later, though.

Defence counsel placed the accused on the stand first and Shushack told of the night that he was arrested. He had been playing a banjo at a party at the Oddfellows' hall from eight o'clock in the evening and he never left the hall at any time during the evening. The party was for a friend of his who was leaving to join the army and it was a stag affair. When the party broke up, about 1.30 a.m. he and five friends had gone to another friend's room in the St. Charles Hotel where the party each drank two bottles of beer. About three o'clock the six men left the hotel and Shushack said that he was asked to drive the car because the owner was a little too drunk. He agreed to do this but before he had driven more than four blocks he was arrested. Shushack was asked by the crown why he had not asked for a doctor and he answered that this had been his first trouble and he didn't know about calling a doctor.

One after another the defence witnesses came to the stand and told their stories which were practically the same each claiming that Shushack had never left the Oddfellows' hall during the evening and that he had consumed two bottles of beer in about an hour a half. All were quite certain that he wasn't drunk when arrested.

In summing up Mr. Kester pointed out that he had the highest regard for the local police force and said that it was one of the best in the country but that a policeman's opinion regarding the matter of a man being drunk or not was no better than any ordinary citizen. He pointed out that the police should have called a doctor for his client to prove beyond any doubt whether the man was drunk or not. He then went on to show that the evidence of the crown had been contradicted by the defence and that a doubt had been established. He asked that the benefit of the doubt be given to the accused.

Crown Attorney Caldwell told the magistrate that there wasn't any reason to discredit the police evidence. They had all seen the man and swore that he was drunk. He then mentioned that it was difficult at times to get a doctor to examine a man at that time of the night. Most doctors, when called, would furnish some sort of excuse to avoid the assignment, he said. He said that the man had admitted drinking two bottles of beer and that some people were known to have become intoxicated on that amount.

Magistrate Atkinson reviewed the evidence and came to the conclusion that it was just a drunken party. He said that the police officers had testified that all the occupants of the car were intoxicated and that there was no reason to believe that Shushack was the only one who was sober. He then sentenced the man to ten days in jail and cancelled his driver's license for six months.

shot, his clothes were disarranged and he was in no condition to drive a car. Constable Christianson also told the court that the man was drunk. He was in the patrol car when the arrest was made and the man was brought in. Constable Grieves was then asked if the man was drunk and he replied that he couldn't swear that the man was because he hadn't been close enough to find out. He was driving the patrol car and hadn't stepped out of the car. He thought the man was drunk when he was being locked up about fifteen minutes later, though.

Defence counsel placed the accused on the stand first and Shushack told of the night that he was arrested. He had been playing a banjo at a party at the Oddfellows' hall from eight o'clock in the evening and he never left the hall at any time during the evening. The party was for a friend of his who was leaving to join the army and it was a stag affair. When the party broke up, about 1.30 a.m. he and five friends had gone to another friend's room in the St. Charles Hotel where the party each drank two bottles of beer. About three o'clock the six men left the hotel and Shushack said that he was asked to drive the car because the owner was a little too drunk. He agreed to do this but before he had driven more than four blocks he was arrested. Shushack was asked by the crown why he had not asked for a doctor and he answered that this had been his first trouble and he didn't know about calling a doctor.

One after another the defence witnesses came to the stand and told their stories which were practically the same each claiming that Shushack had never left the Oddfellows' hall during the evening and that he had consumed two bottles of beer in about an hour a half. All were quite certain that he wasn't drunk when arrested.

In summing up Mr. Kester pointed out that he had the highest regard for the local police force and said that it was one of the best in the country but that a policeman's opinion regarding the matter of a man being drunk or not was no better than any ordinary citizen. He pointed out that the police should have called a doctor for his client to prove beyond any doubt whether the man was drunk or not. He then went on to show that the evidence of the crown had been contradicted by the defence and that a doubt had been established. He asked that the benefit of the doubt be given to the accused.

Crown Attorney Caldwell told the magistrate that there wasn't any reason to discredit the police evidence. They had all seen the man and swore that he was drunk. He then mentioned that it was difficult at times to get a doctor to examine a man at that time of the night. Most doctors, when called, would furnish some sort of excuse to avoid the assignment, he said. He said that the man had admitted drinking two bottles of beer and that some people were known to have become intoxicated on that amount.

Magistrate Atkinson reviewed the evidence and came to the conclusion that it was just a drunken party. He said that the police officers had testified that all the occupants of the car were intoxicated and that there was no reason to believe that Shushack was the only one who was sober. He then sentenced the man to ten days in jail and cancelled his driver's license for six months.

shot, his clothes were disarranged and he was in no condition to drive a car. Constable Christianson also told the court that the man was drunk. He was in the patrol car when the arrest was made and the man was brought in. Constable Grieves was then asked if the man was drunk and he replied that he couldn't swear that the man was because he hadn't been close enough to find out. He was driving the patrol car and hadn't stepped out of the car. He thought the man was drunk when he was being locked up about fifteen minutes later, though.

Defence counsel placed the accused on the stand first and Shushack told of the night that he was arrested. He had been playing a banjo at a party at the Oddfellows' hall from eight o'clock in the evening and he never left the hall at any time during the evening. The party was for a friend of his who was leaving to join the army and it was a stag affair. When the party broke up, about 1.30 a.m. he and five friends had gone to another friend's room in the St. Charles Hotel where the party each drank two bottles of beer. About three o'clock the six men left the hotel and Shushack said that he was asked to drive the car because the owner was a little too drunk. He agreed to do this but before he had driven more than four blocks he was arrested. Shushack was asked by the crown why he had not asked for a doctor and he answered that this had been his first trouble and he didn't know about calling a doctor.

One after another the defence witnesses came to the stand and told their stories which were practically the same each claiming that Shushack had never left the Oddfellows' hall during the evening and that he had consumed two bottles of beer in about an hour a half. All were quite certain that he wasn't drunk when arrested.

In summing up Mr. Kester pointed out that he had the highest regard for the local police force and said that it was one of the best in the country but that a policeman's opinion regarding the matter of a man being drunk or not was no better than any ordinary citizen. He pointed out that the police should have called a doctor for his client to prove beyond any doubt whether the man was drunk or not. He then went on to show that the evidence of the crown had been contradicted by the defence and that a doubt had been established. He asked that the benefit of the doubt be given to the accused.

Crown Attorney Caldwell told the magistrate that there wasn't any reason to discredit the police evidence. They had all seen the man and swore that he was drunk. He then mentioned that it was difficult at times to get a doctor to examine a man at that time of the night. Most doctors, when called, would furnish some sort of excuse to avoid the assignment, he said. He said that the man had admitted drinking two bottles of beer and that some people were known to have become intoxicated on that amount.

Magistrate Atkinson reviewed the evidence and came to the conclusion that it was just a drunken party. He said that the police officers had testified that all the occupants of the car were intoxicated and that there was no reason to believe that Shushack was the only one who was sober. He then sentenced the man to ten days in jail and cancelled his driver's license for six months.

shot, his clothes were disarranged and he was in no condition to drive a car. Constable Christianson also told the court that the man was drunk. He was in the patrol car when the arrest was made and the man was brought in. Constable Grieves was then asked if the man was drunk and he replied that he couldn't swear that the man was because he hadn't been close enough to find out. He was driving the patrol car and hadn't stepped out of the car. He thought the man was drunk when he was being locked up about fifteen minutes later, though.

Defence counsel placed the accused on the stand first and Shushack told of the night that he was arrested. He had been playing a banjo at a party at the Oddfellows' hall from eight o'clock in the evening and he never left the hall at any time during the evening. The party was for a friend of his who was leaving to join the army and it was a stag affair. When the party broke up, about 1.30 a.m. he and five friends had gone to another friend's room in the St. Charles Hotel where the party each drank two bottles of beer. About three o'clock the six men left the hotel and Shushack said that he was asked to drive the car because the owner was a little too drunk. He agreed to do this but before he had driven more than four blocks he was arrested. Shushack was asked by the crown why he had not asked for a doctor and he answered that this had been his first trouble and he didn't know about calling a doctor.

One after another the defence witnesses came to the stand and told their stories which were practically the same each claiming that Shushack had never left the Oddfellows' hall during the evening and that he had consumed two bottles of beer in about an hour a half. All were quite certain that he wasn't drunk when arrested.

In summing up Mr. Kester pointed out that he had the highest regard for the local police force and said that it was one of the best in the country but that a policeman's opinion regarding the matter of a man being drunk or not was no better than any ordinary citizen. He pointed out that the police should have called a doctor for his client to prove beyond any doubt whether the man was drunk or not. He then went on to show that the evidence of the crown had been contradicted by the defence and that a doubt had been established. He asked that the benefit of the doubt be given to the accused.

Crown Attorney Caldwell told the magistrate that there wasn't any reason to discredit the police evidence. They had all seen the man and swore that he was drunk. He then mentioned that it was difficult at times to get a doctor to examine a man at that time of the night. Most doctors, when called, would furnish some sort of excuse to avoid the assignment, he said. He said that the man had admitted drinking two bottles of beer and that some people were known to have become intoxicated on that amount.

Magistrate Atkinson reviewed the evidence and came to the conclusion that it was just a drunken party. He said that the police officers had testified that all the occupants of the car were intoxicated and that there was no reason to believe that Shushack was the only one who was sober. He then sentenced the man to ten days in jail and cancelled his driver's license for six months.

shot, his clothes were disarranged and he was in no condition to drive a car. Constable Christianson also told the court that the man was drunk. He was in the patrol car when the arrest was made and the man was brought in. Constable Grieves was then asked if the man was drunk and he replied that he couldn't swear that the man was because he hadn't been close enough to find out. He was driving the patrol car and hadn't stepped out of the car. He thought the man was drunk when he was being locked up about fifteen minutes later, though.

Defence counsel placed the accused on the stand first and Shushack told of the night that he was arrested. He had been playing a banjo at a party at the Oddfellows' hall from eight o'clock in the evening and he never left the hall at any time during the evening. The party was for a friend of his who was leaving to join the army and it was a stag affair. When the party broke up, about 1.30 a.m. he and five friends had gone to another friend's room in the St. Charles Hotel where the party each drank two bottles of beer. About three o'clock the six men left the hotel and Shushack said that he was asked to drive the car because the owner was a little too drunk. He agreed to do this but before he had driven more than four blocks he was arrested. Shushack was asked by the crown why he had not asked for a doctor and he answered that this had been his first trouble and he didn't know about calling a doctor.

One after another the defence witnesses came to the stand and told their stories which were practically the same each claiming that Shushack had never left the Oddfellows' hall during the evening and that he had consumed two bottles of beer in about an hour a half. All were quite certain that he wasn't drunk when arrested.