BIOGRAPHIES OF ACTORS APPEARING IN "JACKASS MAIL"

Below will be found brief biographies of some of the actors appearing in "Jackass Mail," at the Broadway theatre, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Sept. 3rd, 4th and 5th.

Wallace Beery has devoted 38 years to making people laugh. His acting career began in the New York stage production of "Babes in Toyland." He spent his boyhood in Kansas City where he was born, the son of Noah Beery a police officer. His stage career gave him unusual versatility. He even played a serving-maid in one well-remembered production. He started his motion picture career as a director but eventually turned to acting. His first starring role was in "The Unpardonable Sin." Since then he hasn't had an inactive moment in pictures. Among his more recent films are "20 Mile Team," "Wyoming," "The Bad Man," and "The Bugle Sounds."

Marjorie Main is the daughter of an Indiana clergyman. She was born and raised in Ashton, Indiana. She first played on the Chatauqua circuits and then obtained a role on the New York stage. The part that launched her to stardom was that of the mother in the stage production of "Dead End." When the picture version was made, Miss Main again played her original role. Since then she has made nearly 40 motion pictures. Some of her more recent films are "Wyoming," "Honky Tonk" and "The Bugle Sounds."

Darryl Hickman's acting career came about through a natural talent for singing and dancing. At the age of four, his mother encouraged his love of music and enrolled him in a dancing school. While applying for a dancing part in "The Star Maker," the boy was noticed by Bing Crosby, who urged that he given an acting part. He went from there into "Men of Boys Town" at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Since then he has appeared in "The Grapes of Wrath," "Joe Smith American," and others.

J. Carrol Naish was born in New York and as a lad sang in the church choir. When the first World War was declared he enlisted. In France, he sang for army camps and became a part of a traveling show company. After the war he continued his acting career on the New York stage. He answered the call of the movies. Since then he has been increasingly active in pictures. He has specialized in gangster and dialect parts but has experienced a wide range of screen roles during his many years in films.
