Canadian Ship in Epic Battle With Submarine

Nelson would have approved the battle of His Majesty's Canadian Ship Assiniboine and a German submarine, which resulted in the destruction of the enemy. All the great sea dogs of Britain's glorious past would have joined the acclaim.

This was an old-fashioned sea battle of ship against ship at close quarters. Reading the story, one almost expected to come upon cutlasses and boarding parties.

The Assiniboine, commanded by 32-year-old J. H. Stubbs, of Halifax, played hide-and-seek in the fog with the U-boat. Finally they came together a stone's throw apart—so close the Assiniboine could not depress her guns sufficiently to fire effectively. She tried to ram the Hun, but the wily enemy got clear by a narrow margin. The guns on both sides then came into action, at point-blank range so close were the ships that enemy faces could be distinguished.

The destroyer was hit and set ablaze, the central gun control damaged, but she fired on—and every time a shell hit the submarine a great Canadian cheer went up. The Assiniboine's coxswain carried out his duties as though on a Sunday parade. The youngest member of the crew, on his first ship and in his first fight, was serving his gun when hit by shrapnel. Carrying on bravely, another shell killed him instantly. Fourteen others were wounded.

Meanwhile the submarine was hit, her commander killed. Then the Assiniboine charged in, rammed the enemy, dropped depth charges over the U-boat brought it to the surface, took the surviving Germans prisoners.

Canadians everywhere are thrilled and inspired by this stirring proof that our own sea dogs have in safe keeping the gallant traditions of the Royal Navy.

The photographs that, amazingly enough somebody was taking during the tensest part of the action (reproduced in The Journal) help us land lubbers better to appreciate the shapness of the engagement. The picture taken after the return of the Assiniboine to port showing the 24-year-old executive officer from Ottawa, Lieut. R. L. Hennessey, leaning over the rail describing the action with a smile makes peculiar appeal to us.

Air Raid Precaution Work Featured at the Firemen's Convention

The convention was held in the Library in New Liskeard and was well attended by representatives from all over the North Country. In addition President E. Woods (North York) of the Dominion Fire Chiefs' Association was present as well as Fire Marshal Scott, Deputy Fire Marshal Caskey, Past President Spaulding (Preston), Fire Chief Guerin (Kitchener), Fire Chief Defields (Windsor).

At the morning session Chief Frank R. Brown, of Duparquet, was chairman. Proceedings arranged for the annual tournament on July 1st to be held in 1943 at Duparquet also inviting the Cochrane Association to take part there.

The joint convention of the two associations will be held at Iroquois Falls at the invitation of Chief Wilkes.

The Hazel Thompson memorial trophy was presented to Noranda Town Fire Department for taking first place in the St. John Ambulance Competition held on July 1st in New Liskeard.

The new officers elected were: Temiskaming Firemen's Association: President Chief F. R. Brown of Duparquet; 1st vice-president, Chief W. Tripp of Kirkland Lake; second vice-president, Chief George Thibeault, of Val d'Or, P.Q.; and secretary-treasurer, F. E. Thompson (New Liskeard).

Judge for three years — A. Jones, Kirkland Lake. District of Cochrane Firemen's Association—President, Chief E. Caswell, of Cochrane; 1st vice-president, Chief Second Robinson, of Kapuskasing; secretary-treasurer, Chief T. H. Wilkes, Iroquois Falls.

All guests, including ladies, were privileged to be present at a joint dinner meeting on Tuesday, of the Kiwanian, Rotarian, and Travellers' Clubs, at which Chief Clarence Defields of Windsor, was guest speaker.

It was the privilege also of your correspondent to be present, and the address of Chief Defields will be remembered as a highlight in timely and forceful speeches for long to come.

His title of "It Can't Happen Here" should be qualified by the addition of a query?

He gave in simple language the reasons for the necessity here in the North as well as all over Canada of the formation in every village, hamlet, and town of an ARP committee (Air Raid Precaution). Even if the only available equipment is a sand-pile for extinguishing incendiaries — have it ready.

He gave in detail the Windsor ARP precautions and committees, especially for the safety of factories and workers, and school children and hospital patients. Get every citizen interested said the speaker, and give them a definite job to do. In his picturesque language he said: "Build up your auxiliaries—be careful how you talk to 'em, or they may take up their bat, 'n' ball and go home"—but have no one idle. Our worst enemy to day is complacency—"It can't happen here? Look what happened on the Atlantic coast:—in the St. Lawrence!

"Get a map. How far is it from enemy air fields over the north to our country. This is not my opinion, but the opinion of many more. Don't think you are too small to bomb. Look at history. Look what that "yellow hound" has done to small country villages—and homes. He has to fly over you to get to us!

The speaker was convincing. His speech should be heard from one end of this North Country to the other.

His points for forming ARP auxiliaries were of course directed to the Fire Departments but he gave to all food for thought, and all came away with the intention of talking up ARP work in every possible way in his own home town.

His concluding story and final remark are worthy of note. His admiration for the Old Country people who have stood up so bravely under enemy bombs is great. He said:—

"A fire watcher in England was on his job on the roof of a building in the evening, watching for incendiaries and alarms. He was a typical Cockney. He was asked to tell his story of what happened. "Well," he said, "I takes me bucket and me fags and goes up on the orspittle roof. I was nearly asleep when 'boom, boom!" and I looks over the town and I scratches me 'ead.

"Blimey!" I sez, 'that looks like my 'ouse they've got! I takes me bucket and runs over to where I live, and I sees my ouse blown to 'ell. I looks for Mary and the kids, and calls, 'M'ary where are yer.' 'Are you alive?' When I 'ears a noise where 'e basement was and up comes Mary's 'ead. 'Of course I'm 'ere, she says—but wot are you a doing away from your post. Go back where you belong!"

"And," said Mr. Defields, "How can Hitler lick people with that outlook!"
