South Porcupine Mourns the Passing of a Beloved Teacher

Miss Teresa Burns Died Suddenly on Monday.

South Porcupine, Feb. 11th. Special to The Advance.

South Porcupine and Dome residents are today sincerely mourning the very sudden passing of Miss Teresa Burns, beloved teacher of art and music in both South End and Dome Schools.

She died on Monday at 12:40 noon after a sudden heart attack, in the Teachers' Residence.

On Friday she was teaching as usual giving of her best and not complaining of feeling ill. She was taken with a sudden attack on Friday evening, recovered somewhat and was cheerful and happy on Sunday. On Monday morning she felt tired to get up, so was encouraged to sleep on. She died when another attack came later in the morning.

The shock to us all is great, but has proved a greater blow to the community of teachers who lived with her and taught with her, and to whom she had endeared herself by her fine character and loving disposition.

From 7 p.m. on, on Monday, a steady stream of friends, old and young, and from all walks of life passed through the Residence to pay their last respects and on Tuesday morning all her pupils, in classes, went in to see their beloved teacher for the last time and to pay the "tribute of a silent tear."

A "Libera" service was held in St. Joachim's church at 12:30 p.m. on Tuesday, and the edifice was filled to the doors with friends. Father LaSalle conducted the service and the organist (Mrs. Bennett) was ably assisted by Mrs. Roger Allard as soloist.

A touching tribute was the singing by the two junior choirs (whom she taught) of her favorite hymn "O God of Loveliness", as the cortege passed from the church.

Father LaSalle, at the conclusion of the rites, addressed the mixed congregation. It was fitting, he said, that some reference be made by him to the memory of the "great lady" who had passed on. To you parents who are here, he said, she was a faithful friend. She taught your children the beauty of life in art and music and was a friend to you all. To you children she was a devoted teacher. You know how faithfully and untiringly she worked with you. For the past ten years she had built and taught the "Children's Choir" in the church, the singing of which had helped all to pray and worship better. At no time did she tire or feel that this was too much for her to do. To the community at large she was a good citizen. In any project for the good of the town she gave of her ability and her time. As a faithful church worker she was a model for all to imitate.

Honorary pallbearers—old friends—were: Messrs. J. Gallagher, Maxwell Smith, Dr. Wm. McLaren, D. A. McLellan, Ralph Ellis and Percy Andrews.

Pallbearers—Messrs. John Fell, W. H. Johns, Maurice Bessette, Fred Mason, John Costello, Cliff Myles.

All teachers of both schools with the principals—Miss B. M. C. Shaw and Miss M. Lynch—teachers from the High School, ex-teachers, and some from Timmins Schools who had worked with Miss Burns—all were present and followed as mourners; with a very large number of citizens making a very large cortege to the station from whence the body was shipped on the 1:30 train for Peterboro for interment.

The duties of some of these women include manning defence guns on the English coast, manipulating searchlight batteries; operating Anti-Aircraft guns, taking sights to gauge the speed of enemy planes and using field telephones on the ground in all kinds of weather. They do this for us. Here is something we can do for them. How about having a shower of some of the following articles and sending them over to the Red Cross rooms? On Sunday at 9 p.m. another call came to 65 Bloor Ave. to T. Diberardino's dwelling, from frozen water pipes connected with the water jacket in the kitchen stove. The jacket exploded and scattered the stove plates around the kitchen. Mr. Berardino was attending to the stove at the time but apart from being spattered from head to foot with ashes and soot, escaped injury as did also the children and mother.
