

Dropped Between Stitches

By Doris

Noon is the sullen weight of lead, When — sudden redemption — strikes the rain.

The glided horse on the weather-vane Nuzzles the east with outstretched head.

The wind and the rain drive home their store

To freshen the bone-dry day, and pass, Wave upon wave, through plant grass, To die on, who knows, what summer shore?

Prophecy-tell, the white church stands, Tapered to heaven and clean of dust: God's finger raised from the moth and rust

To salvation of souls and thirsting lands.

A vivid description of "Summer Storm" as submitted by Eugene Carver, gives us a heart-felt story of the rain and the storm as a salvation to the thirsting lands and souls.

From all reports the bride was very lovely in a white gown with a finger-tip tulle veil caught at her head with a halo, and she carried a large bouquet of calla lilies. Miss Olga Klapchuk, the bride's sister, attended the bride, and was gallantly attired in a blue sheer gown. The couple left the same day at 3 p.m. for a honeymoon trip to points south. Present for the ceremony were the groom's parents from Southern Ontario. The many friends here of the bride and of the groom extend best wishes, both being well-known in this district. The bride, Mrs. Swank, once resided in Timmins for a short while, attending the Timmins Business College, and during her stay here made many friends, who all wish her the best happiness in the world.

Wedding plans are indefinite, but the best wishes of all are extended.
