Charge Japanese With Atrocities to Prisoners-of-War

Press Bitter in Promise of Punishment-

and in the United States in regard to Japanese atrocities to prisoners-of-war guards. and to British and United States civilians have roused bitter fury and a general promise that the Japs will be punished to the limit for their barbarities. The London Daily Express calls for redoubled effort to wipe the Japs from the face of the earth. The London Daily Mail says :- "When the Japanese are beaten back to their own savage land, let them live in complete isolation from the world, as in a leper compound, unclean.'

The Yorkshire Post describes the Japs as "a nation of savages tricked out deceptively in modern dress."

United States newspapers are equally severe in their condemnation of the Japanese and their call for due punishment. Isolation of the most drastic sort is suggested by many United States newspapers as punishment to be inflicted after the war, while many other influential newspapers see the best plan cyclone. Everything of value had been to be the virtual annihilation of the Japanese as a nation utterly unfit and unfitted to occupy a place in the world.

A Reuters despatch from London, England, says that with official announcements from Washington and London concerning Japanese atrocities, Chungking in the past two years can now be told.

These stoires of outrages against United States and British nationals have trickled through from Japaneseoccupied territory from time to time.

They have been suppressed previously at the request of British authorities in China, in hope that ways might be found to bring about improvement in the treatment of Allied nationals still in Japanese hands.

The Japanese apparently get great satisfaction and enjoymentout of heaping humiliation and indignities upon those unfortunate American and British nationals who fall into their hands. Marched Through Streets state that among the first things the from torture in Harbin. Japanese did, after their occupation of these two areas two years ago, was to parade American and British nationals through the main streets of Hong Kong and Singapore.

Japanese soldiers deliberately slapped their faces, kicked them and beat them with rifle butts. The Japanese would call on the natives to watch this humiliation parade, telling them that they need not fear the foreigners any more and that the Japanese were coming to liberate them.

Foreigners would be roped together and marched down main streets like slaves or chain gangs.

Conditions are reported to be particularly bad in Malaya and Burma from which it is difficult for information to leak. Only meagre information can be obtained from Chinese escaping into China from these areas. Shortly after the Japanese occupied

One Chinese who escaped from Malaya said he saw hunderds of British prisoners of war taken from Malaya to Burma to build railways and highways. British and United States They were practically naked. Many of them were barefooted.

Kong and Singapore, hundreds of wounded soldiers and officers in military hospitals were bayonetted to death. British prisoners of war were killed on the slightest provocation, either with bayonets or big swords.

Indians, Australians, Canadians and New Zealanders appear to have received slightly better treatment. This was purely for propaganda purposes.

It is true that British nationals in Japanese concentration camps in China receive fairly decent treatment, but their homes and business establishments and churches have been thoroughly looted by Japanese soldiers. Homes Looted.

One Chinese in Hankow visited the home of a foreign friend who had been taken away by Japanese. He said the house looked as if it had been hit by a removed and what was left was completely wrecked.

British nationals in Occupied China are now in a few main concentration camps. Those in Central China, particularly women and children, are quartered in a former foreign missionary stories of Japanese barbarity reaching school in Yangchow, a town on the famous Grand Canal just north of the Yangtse River.

Those in North China, mostly women and children, are in Weinsen, a small town on the main highway west of Chefoo. Many of those from South China are now also at Yangchow. As many as 10 persons are frequently forced to live in one small room.

Some British nationals have been detained in separate quarters on charges of espionage. They are kept in solitary confinement. They sleep on their cell floors.

J. P. Bickell and Four Associates Resign at Malton

No Reason Given at Ottawa Further than Mr. Bickell Desired to be Relieved.

A despatch from Ottawa this week says that J. P. Bickell, president of the McIntyre Porcupine Mines, who has been president of Victory Aircraft Ltd. since the Government took over the Malton plant on Nov. 5th, 1942, and his four directors have resigned and a new board, headed by V. W. Scully, has been appointed in place of the retiring group. According to an annoucement made by Hon. Mr. Howe, Minister of Munitions and Supply.

No reason for the switch in management was given in the terse announcement from Mr. Howe's department other than Mr. Bickell "has expressed a desire to be relieved of his responsibilities."

Mr. Scully, who has been president of War Supplies Ltd., the Crown company that handles purchases in Canada by agencies of the United States Government, will be succeeded in that post by F. G. Rounthwaite, now general manager of the Crown company, North West Purchasing Ltd. Leaving the board that has been directing the production of Lancaster bombers with Mr. Bickell, are E. C.

Mr. Scully is treasurer and Comptroller of York Knitting Mills Ltd., Toronto, and since the outbreak of war, he has held several offices with the Munitions Department.
